Northern Cal facing worst fire menace in half a century

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The menace of flames sweeping across arid brush and timber in dust-dry northern California this year may be the worst in half a century, forestry officials warn.

The danger grows as the lack of rain or snow and the rapidly sinking ground water level create thousands of acres of grass and trees just waiting for a spark to set them ablaze.

Once the fires start, the lack of water will make it far harder to stop them. Water is so scarce in some areas that there is a problem mixing the fire retardant used to stifle flames.

The first serious fire of the year blackened 560 acres of brushland in the Stanislaus National Forest near Sonora over the Washington's Birthday weekend. A rainstorm, the first in weeks, helped 330 firemen put out the blaze.

"The present fire conditions facing National Forest and state lands in California have the potential for making this one of the most disastrous fire years since 1923," said Bill Powers, information officer for the U.S. Forest Service.

The threat of flames means that authorities may be forced to close prime recreation land. Federal and state officials feel they may, like last year, have to shut the gates at some Sierra Nevada camping and fishing locations to protect them from the possibility that campfires or cigarettes might start a fire.

In 1923, in the midst of another brutal drought, fire destroyed a record 967,000 acres. Last year, more than 190,000 acres of state and federal land were blackened by flames, causing losses estimated at almost $27 million.

About 65 per cent of all fires are caused by man, with 30 per cent of those set by arsonists. Most of the rest are caused by lightning or other natural causes.

One of the most serious recent blazes began last year near Redding, when a single spark from a lawn mower erupted into devastating flames which burned 72,000 acres of brush and timber.

Police may patrol city schools

Formal vote okaying off-duty, uniformed policemen expected

By DAN NIEBRUGGE
PB Staff Writer

Off-duty uniformed police officers will begin patroling the perimeter of Pomona's three high schools, as well as Marshall Junior High School, if the Pomona school board takes formal action on an informal consensus reached Tuesday evening.

David Evans, the district's assistant supt. for personnel, said that officers could be at the school sites in a week to 10 days. Cost to the district would be $8.62 per hour per officer.

With well over 100 persons looking on at a special meeting at Simons Junior High School to discuss the discipline situation in the district, board members agreed to hire the special patrols to act as a safeguard to help keep students in class and help keep loiterers off the campus.

Additionally, the board agreed to utilize school security officers in an overtime capacity for the next 30 days to assist at high school campuses when school is dismissed. Security officers will come on duty at approximately 3 p.m. instead of 5 p.m.

In a change from the announced agenda, the meeting was closed to comments from the floor leaving only board members and administrators speaking for the evening.

A large contingent of Ganesha High School area reisdents attending the meeting was told they would have an opportunity to present their views next Tuesday at the regular meeting.

The board also agreed to hold a second special meeting on discipline March 22 at which time the administration will make its recommendation to either close campuses or allow them to remain open at the high schools.

The board heard Ken Noonan, the district's acting director of secondary education, present a lengthy laundry list of activities already being performed to bring about improved discipline.

These included additional communication equipment, increased proctor hours, increased proctor training and reexamination of the proctor program, increased attendance clerking and programs, a Saturday work study program for regulation breakers, and upgrading of security equipment on the high school campuses.

While Noonan said the proctor program was being upgraded, trustee Ken Pine called the proctors "one of the weakest areas" for discipline in the district and said that upgrading the program was, at best, a long term solution. Pine asked for a short term solution to bring about some changes immediately and, in so doing, asked the board if there was consensus to put uniformed police officers on campus full time.

Trustee C. Allen Braswell objected to this saying the degree of training needed for work on the campus is greater than that offered to most peace officers.

Trustee Don Donnelly suggested making the peace officers available to those principals who request them. Donnelly added that each principal should be responsible for discipline on his campus with his job on the line.

Trustee Eugene Whitlock said he felt some sort of interim security force with trained persons was now needed on campus to protect the students attending the schools.

"If the principals say things are fine, and the members of the community say things are not fine, then someone can't see," said Whitlock.

It was Pine, however, who continually voiced his frustration at the board's inability to reach a hardline decision.

"If the next meeting is like this one I'll bring a tape recording," he said. Pine called for closure of the high school campuses which would give the district an opportunity to recognize the disrupters on campus and have them removed.

"We keep talking about options," he said. "The days of options are gone. It's time for action."

Braswell noted his objections to officers on campus, saying that "the uniform is often a handicap" in dealing with youths.

Whitlock also proposed that the board initiate a policy by which a student would automatically be expelled after a certain number of suspensions. The administration will report back on this item.

The board also agreed that the district should contact the city and express its support for the construction of an 8-foot wall on Kennedy Park's north border.

Local judge to weigh L.A. schools integration plan

By VONNE ROBERTSON
PB Staff Writer

Superior Court Judge Paul Egly, 55, supervising judge of the court's Pomona branch, will weigh the integration plan for the Los Angeles City Schools.

Attorneys on all sides of the case agreed on Egly who handled desegregation litigation for San Bernardino. Superior Court Presiding Judge William P. Hogoboom announced the appointment Tuesday during a seven-minute court session.

Egly will handle the city integration case in downtown Los Angeles Courthouse. The first court session will be on March 1, when several individuals and the Bus Stop organization request to become parties in the suit. Without that status, no group or person would have standing in the courtroom and could not participate in adoption or rejection of an integration plan.

The judge, who is dean of the La Verne College Law Center, must decide if the Board of Education's integration plan meets state Supreme Court requirements that Los Angeles schools be desegregated.

The Supreme Court has sent the San Bernardino case back to Egly, who originally had ruled in the case in 1973. He must now also decide whether both cities are meeting requirements to integrate.

Hogoboom said Tuesday he was not familiar with Egly's responsibilities in the San Bernardino case, and that case had not been a factor in Egly's consideration. But attorneys on both sides praised Egly's experience with integration matters and said they felt his previous experience in the San Bernardino case would not give either side an advantage.

It was "business as usual" this morning for Egly who began hearing cases promptly at 9 a.m. He declined to talk with the press or issue a statement this morning.

A native of Fullerton, Egly has been instrumental in the development of the LVC Law Center and was the founder of the former California College of Law in West Covina.

He has taught constitutional law, real estate law and tort law.

He earned his law degree at George Washington University in Washington, D.C. and practiced law before the American Occupation Court in Germany after serving as a first lieutenant in the Army during World War II.

Egly has practiced law in California since 1952 and was named to the Citrus Municipal Court in 1963 by Gov. Edmund G. Brown Sr. and was elevated to the Superior Court by Gov. Ronald Reagan.

He was defeated for the California Assembly by Houston Flournoy in 1960.

Egly was named supervising judge of the Pomona Superior Court in 1973 and re-appointed to the post again in 1974.

JUDGE PAUL EGLY

Drizzle wets valley, drops temperatures

A light drizzle, not enough to measure, moistened the valley today as a minor storm front moved past the Southland.

It was the first precipitation since Jan. 20. The weatherman predicted intermittent showers and drizzles through Thursday afternoon and clearing Thursday night. Fair weather is forecast for the weekend.

The drizzle was far from enough to relieve drought conditions throughout the state. Water conservation officials said it would take heavy rains through the rest of the month to replenish water in underground wells and reservoirs.

The storm did cause a 15 degree drop in temperatures, with a high of 66 expected here today and Thursday. A low of 54 is predicted overnight.

Weather

Cloudy with intermittent showers today and Thursday. Clearing Thursday night, fair Friday. High today 66, low tonight 54, high Thursday 66. The high Tuesday was 70 and the overnight low was 50. Thursday's sunrise 6:26, sunset 5:43.

Acid attack over hairdo burns girl

LINWOOD, Kan. (AP) — Jealousy over a hair style apparently led to a schoolgirl acid attack on a teen-age cheerleader here.

Stacey Tinberg, 14, wore her hair styled like actress Farrah Fawcett-Majors of the "Charlie's Angels" television series.

The eighth grader was opening her school locker on Valentine's Day when another girl dashed nitric acid on her back and shoulders. The burns were treated at a hospital, and the girl may require skin grafts.

"We just thank God every day that she didn't turn her head when this happened," was about the only solace Mrs. Kenneth Tinberg had after the attack.

School principal Bill Chambers said he thinks the plan was to damage Stacey's hair so she would have to get it cut. Her hair was damaged and had to be cut and restyled.

Chambers said he was recommending that the girl who threw the acid be expelled. He suspended six other girls he said had talked about the attack or knew it was coming.

"The hairdo was mentioned prominently in all their statements," Chambers said.

County Attorney Patrick Reardon said Tuesday he was considering legal action and may ask for juvenile court hearing.

"Even if she has a scar on her back, that isn't going to change Stacey — and that's what they were jealous of," Mrs. Tinberg said.

Stacey said little about it. Two of the girls had been classmates since kindergarten, and she thought all were her friends.

Supervisors will go ahead with suit against Watson

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Los Angeles County Supervisors' Chairman Ed Edelman says the panel has no alternative except suing to force the assessor's office to put 170,000 residential tax reassessments on the rolls.

His statement Tuesday is the latest in a long and heated controversy between the supervisors and assessor Philip Watson over the reassessments.

Watson, now recovering from open-heart surgery at St. Francis Hospital, earlier had refused to place the new assessments on the 1977-78 tax roll, contending that their placement should be held up until reassessment is completed for the entire county.

State briefs

Tax preparers

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The nation's largest tax preparation firm, H&R Block, says a California state study criticizing commercial tax preparation firms is misleading.

The California Department of Consumer Affairs said after release of a study by a private research firm that taxpayers had less than a 50-50 chance of getting correctly computed returns from commercial preparers.

But Block attorney Robert Coleman said Tuesday that the survey of 477 preparers commissioned by the state was misleading because researchers posing as taxpayers gave conflicting information.

"Our position is that if you report to a tax preparer different deductions and different tax situations, the only thing you can expect is a difference in the tax liability," Coleman said in an interview from Block's Kansas City headquarters.

Integration plan

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Schools Supt. William Johnston has submitted a revised integration plan for the city's schools as a new judge was named to decide whether the proposal will satisfy court-ordered integration requirements.

Bill Rivera, a school district spokesman, said Johnston recommended to the board of education Tuesday that 41 integrated learning centers be created to serve 23,000 children in 1977-78, the plan's first year.

Fifty-five centers would be added in the second year to bring the total to 96 such centers for 86,300 children. The sprawling 600-school district has an enrollment of about 600,000 students.

School officials said the plan calls for fourth through sixth graders to be bused to the "specialized learning centers" for nine weeks of the school year and first through third-graders would be bused one day a month.

Tracheotomy

MARIPOSA, Calif. (AP) — A doctor crushed in a car wreck attempted to save her own life by performing a makeshift tracheotomy, but died before she could finish, officials said.

"It would have saved her life if she had succeeded," coroner's deputy Howard Harbulak said Tuesday. He said she "probably would have needed less than a minute" to finish the operation.

He said Dr. Marilyn Markovitch, a Saratoga anesthesiologist, attempted the tracheotomy with a paring knife when her windpipe was crushed against her steering wheel in an accident Sunday.

Harbulak said the 48-year-old woman managed to cut a three-quarter inch incision in her throat before dying of suffocation.

DMV records

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The California Department of Motor Vehicles will notify anyone whose drivers license or vehicle registration records are the subject of an information request.

DMV director Herman Sillas said Tuesday the new policy was adopted in response to what he described as "the public's mounting concern over the misuse of information related to records maintained by the DMV."

Data is currently provided for a fee to firms which produce mass mailing lists, insurance companies, news agencies and the general public.

Death penalty

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A state Senate committee has begun consideration of a bill to restore California's death penalty, but there seems to be little doubt about what the panel will do. The Senate Judiciary Committee heard a day full of testimony Tuesday on capital punishment. An Associated Press survey taken last month indicates most committee members have already made up their minds to support a death penalty bill.

Hospital dinner

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A highlight of Elizabeth Mok's hospital stay was a gourmet candlelight dinner the hospital gave for her and her husband to help them celebrate the birth of their new child. It was great, Mrs. Mok says, even if they had to dine in a hospital corridor. The hospital has served an average of three or four dinners a day since late October to new parents, complete with enough champagne or punch to toast the special occasion. The dinners are so popular the hospital plans to continue to give them. "It's our way of saying, 'Congratulations, Mom and Dad'," a spokesman said.

Stock Exchange

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Pacific Stock Exchange, faced with losses that could approach $600,000 this year, may decide to consolidate its San Francisco and Los Angeles trading floors into one operation. "A one-floor operation would be less expensive because of the duplication now involved," says PSE President G. Robert Ackerman.

3 councilmen defended by S.D. residents

By BOB SWETNAM
PB Staff Writer

Joe Fulvio likes to speak his mind, and the long-time San Dimas resident had plenty to say on the way things are going in his town Tuesday night at the City Council meeting.

Fulvio, and several other residents, spoke in support of three City Council members recently criticized by some persons who accused them of working against the interests of the majority of citizens.

The defenders, with Fulvio at the helm, said recent criticisms of councilmen Phil Wax, Terry Dipple and Mayor Marvin Ersher were unfounded and the three should be commended for their efforts in opening up city government.

"I'm sick and tired of hearing about all of these 3 to 2 decisions at city hall," said Fulvio. He referred to controversial decisions made by the same three-member majority — Ersher, Dipple and Wax.

In criticizing the critics of the three, Fulvio said before their election San Dimas had a "rubber stamp council" for the special interests.

"People say this City Council doesn't listen to people," Fulvio exclaimed. "But when did previous councils ever listen to the people." He then cited several instances where petitions had been brought before prior city governments without success.

At a meeting two weeks ago, former San Dimas mayors Stanley Plummer and Buck Hooper had criticized Ersher, Dipple and Wax for ignoring a petition protesting the illegal firing of three planning commissioners last year. Fulvio's remarks Tuesday night appeared to be aimed at the critics.

He also criticized newspaper coverage in San Dimas. "To the newspapers I say start printing the news . . . all of it. For too long people have been ignoring what is really going on in this city." He did not elaborate.

Fulvio claimed that before the election of Ersher, Dipple and Wax the City of San Dimas was a town run by "politicians who were only interested in power."

He exclaimed, "Those days are over now."

Several other citizens echoed similar sentiments in what is beginning to look like a deep split between the San Dimas citizenry.

No councilman or member from the audience chose to respond to the comments by Fulvio and others.

Ersher, Dipple and Wax have come under increasing criticism in recent months over certain actions they have taken as a council.

The most notable was the firing of three planning commissioners, Gerald Klein, Robert Sturrock and Clyde Bartman, less than one year ago.

That decision, which was on a 3-2 vote, was later overturned by Los Angeles Superior Court Judge Norman Dowds. The three-man majority on the City Council later decided to appeal that ruling even though a 600-signature petition threatened a recall attempt if the three continued to pursue the matter.

Two weeks ago fired commissioner Gerald Klein, speaking for all three commissioners, announced the issue would be dropped by the planners in the interest of the citizens of San Dimas. He said that though he, Sturrock and Bartman still believed that they had been fired illegally, that pursuing the matter would result in "a waste of public funds."

Santa Barbara Drive

Claremont council will move barrier

By GEORGE MacLAREN
PB Staff Writer

The Claremont City Council has gone along with a Traffic Safety Commission recommendation to move the barrier across Santa Barbara Drive to a point just west of an alley until the council's next meeting March 22.

The council Tuesday night by a 4-1 vote approved the recommendation, with councilman Frank Hungerford dissenting.

Hungerford said he would like to see the street as a through street.

Mayor Bertye Smith said she understood that drivers were using the alley to get to Lafayette Road and then to Colby Circle to circumvent the barrier at Santa Barbara Drive and Colby Circle.

Councilwoman Eleanor Cohen called the recommendation a "good decision. It is worth a trial."

Hungerford said he had enough information to make a decision.

"The more people you ask the more you will find that people want Santa Barbara open," he said.

Mrs. Smith said it would be good to support the new recommendation because the survey taken after the street was first barricaded "was not extensive enough. Our first motion was taken without adequate study."

Councilman Richard Newton said that "We're really trying to work this out. We have received strongly-worded letters from both sides."

In other matters, the council approved the Nishiki Mt. Baldy Cycling Club's second annual Claremont bicycle race Sunday, Aug. 14 in the Village business district.

Mrs. Smith suggested that the club hold some races for Claremonters who are not members of the cycling club.

Bob Broadley of the cycling club agreed to the suggestion, and said the racing program would be coordinated through the city Parks and Recreation Department.

"Want rain insurance?" quipped Hungerford, referring to the rain which fell during the racing program last year.

City Manager Norman King said there were no problems with the racing program in 1976.

Chaffey

How state disburses school funds explained

By BOB SWETNAM
PB Staff Writer

Is the way the state of California decides how much money to give each school district fair? . . . Well, that's debatable.

Some Chaffey Joint Union High School District administrators, however, believe there might be an easier way.

In the second of a continuing series of school financing hearings held by the Chaffey school board Wednesday night, Assistant Supt. Russell Dickinson explained how the government determines who gets what and how much they get.

Dickinson disclosed the present method California uses in disbursing state money is based on a complicated formula that attempts to determine an average daily attendance in each school district. Those districts that have lower attendance rates in school get less money.

The inevitable result, however, is that the state is not required to reimburse schools for the number of students enrolled in classes, but only for those who attend class.

"It costs the state a lot less money to finance the schools this way," said Dickinson. "Whether children are absent or not, it doesn't change the cost of operating a classroom."

Dickinson explained schools are reimbursed for excused absences such as illness, doctors appointments and other reasons. But he said tremendous amounts of money are lost on unexplained absences.

"Every unexplained absence means less money from the state. Some 175 such absences would equal the total amount of money we get from the government to educate one student for a year," he revealed.

The big issue, however, is whether all of the paper work generated by keeping track of attendance records is really necessary. Dickinson said another system some school administrators are suggesting would be much easier for everyone.

Under that plan, school districts would be given state revenue based upon enrollment rather than attendance. It would cost the state more money, but eliminate considerable record keeping at the school level.

"Only one problem then," Dickinson joked. "How to keep all of those kids who'd rather be skiing or at the beach in school?"

Granted asylum

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Dumitru Udrescu, Romania's top television producer and the man who made the documentary "Nadia — From Romania With Love," has been granted asylum in the United States, the International Rescue Committee says.

The Los Angeles office of the committee said Tuesday that Udrescu was notified by letter of the decision by the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service.

Building atomic bombs

Within the next ten years it is possible that 40 countries will be able to build their own atomic bombs.

Amin launches tribal massacre

DAR ES SALAAM, Tanzania (AP) — President Idi Amin has launched a nationwide massacre of two predominantly Christian tribes in Uganda, a group of 22 refugees claimed today after arriving in neighboring Tanzania.

In Kampala, Uganda's capital, Amin told reporters he had put down a coup that was to include an airborne landing by paratroopers from the United States, Britain or Israel.

The refugees in Tanzania said students, police, soldiers and civil servants belonging to the northern Acholi and Langi tribes were being rounded up and "liquidated" to purge the government apparatus of members of the tribes.

Western diplomatic sources in Nairobi, Kenya, said shooting was heard for 30 minutes Tuesday evening in Kampala' Mugire prison, where the Langi and Acholi detainees were reportedly being held.

Some refugee reports put the number of persons killed in the East African country's latest bloodletting at more than 1,000.

Confirmation of the refugees' reports was not available. But Amnesty International estimates that Amin's forces have killed between 50,000 and 300,000 persons since he seized power six years ago.

The sources said Amin believes the two tribes, in a plot masterminded by former President Milton Obote, were out to overthrow him. Obote, whom Amin ousted from power in a coup and who now lives in Tanzania, is a member of the Langi tribe.

Anglican Archbishop Janani Luwum, who was killed a week ago after he was arrested for alleged complicity in the coup attempt, was an Acholi. Amin is a member of the minority Moslem Kakwa tribe.

In Kampala, Amin said the Obote-led plot was to have begun with the assassination of Ugandan leaders and followed by an airborne landing of paratroopers from the United States, Britain or Israel. He gave no further details.

He claimed that paratroopers from the United States, Britain or Israel were to fly in from an aircraft carrier and seize several towns in Uganda.

Amin did not give any other details and it was not clear whether he was accusing the U.S., British and Israeli governments of complicity in the alleged coup bid.

But he said he believed Britain, which ruled Uganda until Sept. 8, 1967, was involved in an abortive coup attempt Jan. 25, the sixth anniversary of his own seizure of power.

Amin also confirmed there had been shooting in Kampala on Tuesday, but he gave no details. He also denied reports that he personally killed Bishop Luwum. He said he only learned of the deaths while he was preparing plans for an African, Caribbean and Pacific Group conference which opened today in Kampala.

Britain, he said, wanted to see him removed from power and believed the only way to do that was to encourage religious rivalry inside Uganda. But, he stressed, the British would not succeed.

Reporters were later invited to talk to Maj. Moses, who was apparently injured in the crash in which Bishop Luwum and the two ministers allegedly died last week.

Moses, wearing a dressing gown and apparently unsteady on his feet, claimed Oryema, who was sitting beside him in the auto, and Ofumbe, sitting in the back, attacked him en route to the officers' mess.

The car went out of control and he was knocked unconscious. He said he knew nothing more until he woke up in hospital some days later. However, he said Bishop Luwum did not join in the attack on him.

Released from prison

Howard Hunt a free man

EGLIN AIR FORCE BASE, Fla. (AP) — E. Howard Hunt was released from federal prison today after serving 32 months for his role as a recruiter and lookout in the Watergate burglary. He slipped away without comment.

An official of the 475-inmate federal minimum security prison on this military base in the Florida panhandle emerged from the main gate at 6 a.m. to read a statement to reporters who had waited through the night.

"Mr. E. Howard Hunt was released from a federal prison camp at Eglin Air Force Base this morning," the official said. "Mr. Hunt, at all times, conducted himself as a gentleman. Mr. Hunt stated prior to his release he did not wish to be interviewed at this time and will advise the news media as to his availability at a later date."

Seconds after reading the statement, a laundry truck sped out the main gate and reporters gave chase in cars. However, they lost the truck about a mile from the prison gate. Hunt had worked in the prison laundry.

But Hunt was long gone.

Prison official Dave Swyhart said later, "Mr. Hunt left a little after 4 a.m. He left in a private staff vehicle."

No car was seen leaving the main gate at that time, so Hunt apparently used a side entrance.

Asked if the details of the release were a bit unusual, Swyhart said:

"Mr Hunt's situation is a little unusual, but he was not treated any different than any other inmate. We tried to see that inmates are released at a time favorable to them. Mr. Hunt had requested not to come in direct contact with the news media. We tried to comply with his request."

He was booked on a Southern Airlines flight leaving the local airport at 6:30 a.m. However, Hunt did not board the plane, which made connections to Washington.

His attorney, Ellis Rubin of Miami, said Hunt was headed for Boston, but he refused to detail the travel arrangements. Asked about reports that Hunt would be paid for an interview by a television network, Rubin said, "That will have to be announced by Howard."

Earlier, Rubin said Hunt would spend a few days on business in a Northern city, then return to his home in Miami. He said he planned a lecture tour and an exhibit of his paintings.

Hunt was sent to prison after pleading guilty to charges stemming from the June 1972 break-in at the Democratic national headquarters. He served as chief talent recruiter and lookout for the burglary.

Hunt, 58, had been sentenced to 30 months to eight years after pleading guilty to conspiracy, burglary and illegal wiretapping. The U.S. Parole Commission ordered his release last week after he paid a $10,000 fine.

Hunt, a former CIA agent who has written more than 40 mystery novels, also began writing again while in prison.

Rubin described his client's mood as: "Hallelujah, free at last."

"He's pretty happy, to say the least," Rubin said Tuesday.

That mood differed sharply from the way Hunt was described last year by his daughter Lisa. She said her father had become so despondent that he was reduced to a "babbling non-person."

Hunt was part of the White House plumbers' squad that sent burglars into the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist. He later worked with G. Gordon Liddy on the Watergate burglary.

Hunt's release leaves Liddy as the only original Watergate defendant still in prison. He is eligible for parole in 1981.

Rhodesia details plan for black majority changeover

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — Rhodesia formally announced a detailed plan today to dismantle some of its racial laws and absorb more blacks into the government as a prelude to Prime Minister Ian Smith's plan for black majority rule in two years.

The long-awaited announcement in Rhodesia's white-dominated legislature came as the government disclosed a major exodus of whites from the country last month in the face of an escalating four-year-old guerrilla war.

The deaths of 15 more black and white Rhodesians in the war were also announced by security chiefs while Smith was unveiling details of his plan to win the confidence of the nation's 6.4 million blacks.

Major reforms announced by the 57-year-old leader of the embattled former British colony — certain to be endorsed in parliament — will allow blacks to buy farms in a third of the territory that has long been exclusively white.

Blacks will also be able to set up or buy factories and businesses in commercial and industrial areas for the first time. And they will no longer be barred from segregated hotels, bars and restaurants, Smith told parliament.

Smith, who has clearly won over right-wing critics within his ruling all-white Rhodesian Front party, also spoke of measures to bring more blacks into all levels of the country's civil administration.

The government's aim, he told the 50 Rhodesian Front and 16 independent black representatives, was not merely to remove racial discrimination but "to work with our black people in order to produce the correct political solution for our future."

"If we are to succeed in this exercise it is necessary that black Rhodesians in turn accept the need to ensure a permanent future for our white community," he said.

Smith said that starting in June, blacks would for the first time be trained as officers in the army and air force. Those armed forces spearhead the war against two black nationalist guerrilla armies operating on four military fronts to topple his government.

Blacks also would be considered as judges in the judiciary and would be encouraged to play a role "in local, provincial and national government."

But state-run hospitals "and other medical institutions" would remain segregated and Smith made no mention of changes in racially divided schools.

Smith avoided committing himself to a policy on Rhodesia's segregated suburbs by calling on municipalities and town councils to decide which residential zones should or could be opened to nonwhites.

The reforms fall far short of those recommended by an independent commission set up last year to examine racism in Rhodesia, which has been under continuous white rule since it became a self-governing British colony in 1923.

Four black nationalist groups, including two guerrilla operations, have rejected Smith's approach to shifting power to the black majority. The reforms announced today are part of Smith's resultant attempt to work out a transition with more moderate black leaders.

U.S. coffee firm claims sales at loss

WASHINGTON (AP) — The leading U.S. coffee company said today it is selling its product at a loss and blamed skyrocketing prices to consumers on higher costs for imported coffee beans.

Bill Tower, president of the Maxwell House division of General Foods Corp., told a House hearing that its recent price increases "do not cover current cost of green beans plus other higher costs including energy, labor and packaging."

The wholesale price of Maxwell House has been increased twice in less than three weeks, by a total of 40 cents a pound.

Tower said the increases have been necessary because of "continually escalating green coffee costs in the past year and a half."

An executive of the Folger Coffee Co., the No. 2 coffee roaster in the United States, told of similar conditions in his company.

Members of two subcommittees holding joint hearings on spiraling coffee prices have blamed the threefold increases in the last two years on the government of Brazil, the leading coffee producing nation.

Brazil and the U.S. State Department have said a 1975 frost in Brazil is responsible.

$1 million taken in bank robbery

YONKERS, N.Y. (AP) — The two polite and highly professional robbers who invaded the Hudson Valley National Bank here Tuesday morning made off with more than $1 million, an FBI agent said today.

Robert Besley, agent in charge of the FBI office in nearby New Rochelle, said money deposited at the bank by Yonkers Raceway was taken in the robbery.

While bank officials would not give a precise figure, an accountant at the racetrack said more than $1 million was deposited in the bank after the Monday night racing program.

Besley said the track's deposit included receipts from its Friday, Saturday and Monday night races. The Yonkers accountant had said that $400,000 in receipts was deposited along with an estimated $700,000 in operating cash — money deposited and withdrawn each day by the track.

Bank officials said the thieves overlooked about $1 million in cash lying in trays in a vault.

Two robbers, wearing ski masks and carrying walkie-talkies, were waiting in the bank when two employes arrived for work about 7 a.m. Tuesday.

They handcuffed the workers, emptied trays of money into a bag and took some unopened money boxes, police said.

Police speculated the robbers entered the bank through a hole between the bank and a public lobby. The hole was hidden behind a vending machine.

A janitor told investigators he spotted the hole about three weeks ago and notified his superiors.

Rabin given edge in Israel election

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Political analysts gave Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin a slight edge over challenger Shimon Peres as Israel's ruling party prepared to vote tonight on which one would lead it into the May 17 general election.

The analysts said the secret ballot at the Labor party's congress could go either way, but Rabin appeared to be in the stronger position because many delegates were reluctant to oust the incumbent, and he also had the support of most of the party establishment.

Spotlight on area crime

7 Pomona holdups in 9 hours

The City of Pomona Tuesday experienced what must be a record number of robberies for a nine-hour period, police reported this morning.

Between 6:30 p.m. and 3 a.m., there were seven robberies — two of the strong-arm variety and the others cases of armed robbery. Police reported also that they booked four suspects, two of them women, in connection with the holdups. Arrest reports weren't complete this morning.

A Pomona youth was robbed on the parking lot of Pomona Valley Community Hospital just before 8 p.m. by a youth who put a gold-handled knife to his throat. The robber, who had a partner, took his wallet and then shoved him to the ground. The pair laughed at him, the victim said, before running northbound.

The armed youth was described as black, about 17, had a heavy build and wore blue jeans.

Shortly after 6 p.m., a youth ran up behind a Pomona woman as she was walking in the 500 block of E. Holt Avenue and grabbed her purse. In doing so, the youth knocked down the victim, injuring fingers on one hand.

A witness ran after the thief and pursued him behind a nearby drug store where the youth dropped the victim's purse and continued running. He was described as black, in his late teens, 6 feet tall weighing 175 pounds. He wore a dark coat and trousers.

Another pursesnatching occurred about an hour earlier in the 2100 block of N. Towne Ave. The victim said a youngster grabbed her purse and escaped into an alley. He was described as black, about 12, 5 feet 6 and heavy. He wore a tan leather hat and a three-quarter length coat.

Just before 2 a.m., an employe at the Thrifty service station at 797 E. Mission Blvd. was robbed by a young man armed with a .38-caliber revolver.

The victim said the robber caught him inside the station office, threatened him with the weapon and demanded money. After obtaining it, he ran northbound. He was described as black, about 19, with a large afro hairdo and wearing a white T-shirt and blue jeans.

An hour later two young men robbed the Shell service station at 2498 S. Garey Ave. The attendant said the two drove in, ordered gasoline and then robbed him of his watch, ring and cash before driving away. One of the two, who held a .22-caliber pistol, was described as black, about 21, 5 feet 8 weighing 135 pounds. He wore a corduroy jacket, knit cap and dark trousers.

Just before midnight three youths robbed the 7-Eleven Market at 803 E. Mission Blvd. The leader, armed with a revolver, was described as black, about 17, 5 feet 11 and slim. He wore dark clothing.

Tuesday evening the Broasted Chicken restaurant at 3280 N. Garey Ave. was robbed, but details of that holdup were unavailable this morning.

Girl saw trio stab man

A teen-age Pomona girl told police Tuesday morning that she saw a man stabbed and then placed in a car by three men.

The incident occurred in an alley west of Park Avenue and south of the 400 block of W. Center Street, the 16-year-old high school student said.

She told police that she was walking when she saw the four men standing beside the car. Suddenly, she said, and with no apparent provocation, one of the three stabbed the victim in the back. The man seemed to raise his hands in submission, and was put inside the car, the girl said. She screamed and ran to a nearby house for help.

Police said they were unable to find a victim of a stabbing in a check of area hospitals.

The teen-ager said that all four appeared to be black men between 20 and 30 years old. One wore a red head band, she said.

High school proctor jailed

A Claremont High School proctor was arrested at the school Tuesday afternoon by local police holding a warrant charging him with violation of probation, authorities said.

The man, Jose Maria Madrid Jr., 25, of 10320 Pradera St., Montclair, was turned over later to Los Angeles County sheriff's deputies for an appearance before the court in Long Beach which issued the warrant. No bail was allowed by the judge, Elsworth M. Beam.

Police said Madrid was charged with violating conditions of probation, after a 1975 burglary conviction, by not reporting to his probation officer. They said, however, that Madrid said his probation officer told him he did not have to report unless asked to do so by the officer.

$1,475,000 settlement for singer

NEW YORK (AP) — Singer Connie Francis will receive a record $1,475,000 from Howard Johnson's Motor Lodges as out-of-court settlement of the suit she brought after she was raped in one of the company's motels, published reports said today.

The settlement, which is tax free and the largest ever awarded an individual as a result of an assault, was reached on the eve of the company's appeal of a $2.5 million jury award, the New York Daily News said in today's editions.

Miss Francis, 37, was raped in the Howard Johnson's in Westbury, N.Y., on Nov. 8, 1974.

Her suit charged the motel with negligence for failing to provide her with a safe and secure room and claimed that the attack so upset her that she was unable to pursue her career for months.

Miss Francis, vacationing in Florida, could not be reached for comment.

Space shuttle flies again

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE (AP) — The space shuttle Enterprise, perched atop a modified Boeing 747 transport, has made its second successful flight at this desert testing ground.

The National Space and Aeronautics Adminsitration said Tuesday the craft tested out AOK on 20 objectives during its three-hour and 13-minute flight at 22,600 feet.

The shuttle's next test flight is scheduled for Friday.

Treasury chief's link to Bendix

SOUTHFIELD, Mich. (AP) — Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal got a four-year advance of $113,204 as a consultant to the Bendix Corp. before taking office but will not work for the industrial firm while on the public payroll, company records show.

After the four-year period covered by the advance, the records show, Blumenthal will receive $2,358 a month for the rest of his life under the consulting arrangement.

There was no immediate comment from Blumenthal on the financial arrangement with Bendix.

The consultant's fee was a portion of $2 million Blumenthal received from Bendix in the 16 months before he went to work as Treasury secretary, the records show. The payment to the former Bendix president and chief officer was in several forms, including salary, bonuses, stock options and consulting fees.

Although all the payments were made in the 16-month period, part was earned in previous years, the records show.

Blumenthal joined Bendix in 1967 and became president and chief officer in 1971. Bendix earnings have nearly doubled to $3 billion a year since then.

As President Carter's Treasury secretary, Blumenthal's salary is $63,000 a year.

A proxy statement prepared for Bendix's annual meeting Thursday shows Blumenthal got $578,438 in salary and bonuses during fiscal 1976 — Oct. 1, 1975-Sept. 30, 1976. He received additional salary of about $70,000 during fiscal 1977 for his 3½ months on the Bendix payroll, the statement showed.

Blumenthal showed a paper profit of more than $885,000 on stock options he exercised during that period, according to the proxy statement.

A company official said the firm paid Blumenthal an additional $240,000 when he resigned "in recognition of his contributions to Bendix over the years." The spokesman said that included bonuses for Blumenthal's performance during fiscal 1977 and compensated him for bonuses and stock options he would have received in the future if he had stayed at Bendix.

Blumenthal received additional stock, which the company valued at about $120,000, to compensate for income deferred in 1968 and 1969.

William Agee, Blumenthal's successor as Bendix chairman, said the consulting agreement must be considered in view of Blumenthal's total compensation package.

"His salary over these years would have been higher if there hadn't been such an agreement," Agee said.

The consulting fees are in addition to Blumenthal's pension benefits from Bendix. He will receive $53,976 a year beginning at age 65. Now 51, he could begin drawing the pension at a reduced rate at 55.

Ailing Hershey undergoes tests

WASHINGTON (AP) — Physicians at Walter Reed Army Hospital are performing tests on Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, who is "very seriously ill" after suffering a stroke three days ago, a hospital spokesman says.

Hershey, 83, who led the nation's military draft system for 30 years until 1970, was being tested for a possible cerebral hemorrhage, a hospital spokesman said Tuesday night.

The general's wife said Hershey awakened Sunday morning holding his head and complaining of not feeling well.

"He talked but you couldn't understand him. He was all garbled," said Ellen Hershey in a telephone interview from her Bethesda, Md. home.

However, Mrs. Hershey said she heard him say, "Get help," and summoned an ambulance. She said his speech still was unintelligible when she visited him in the hospital's intensive care ward Monday.

"He's 83, you know, and he's not young enough to recover quickly," added Mrs. Hershey, who is 84.

She said the general has been reading and writing since he retired from the military after 62 years in March 1973, and had complained lately of being tired.

"While he was working hard he seemed to be doing all right," she said. "It seems when they have to quit the things they have been doing for many years they just fold up."

The former selective service director, who served under six presidents, was promoted to the rank of four-star general in 1970. During that time he oversaw the drafting of 14.5 million Americans in three wars.

Pretzel sales tumble

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Reports that virtually all pretzels are coated with lye has given a downward twist to sales of the old favorite here.

"My pretzel business has fallen from about $30,000 a week to zero," Sam Rothberg of United Food Distributors said Tuesday. "Last year I did $150,000 worth of business in pretzels. In the last five days I haven't sold a one."

United is a major distributor for Billy's Pretzels, one of the brands recalled by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration last week.

Use of lye in pretzel-making was publicized when the FDA ordered Pepperidge Farms to recall 56,000 cases of pretzels manufactured under six brand names at its New Holland plant.

The FDA said sodium hydroxide, or lye, is routinely used to make pretzels look glazed. Mixed with water, the chemical is absorbed by the pretzel and when baked, converts to sodium carbonate, a harmless substance.

In the recalled pretzels, the solution evidently was not mixed properly and some lye got into the packages. The problem was discovered when people's mouths began to burn.

Only pretzels from Pepperidge Farms' now-closed New Holland plant were affected, but sales of all pretzels are suffering.

"We're hardly selling any pretzels at all," lamented Sam Ginzberg, a 77-year-old wholesaler. "I've been in this business since 1921 and I've never seen anything like it. People are just staying clear of pretzels — all kinds of pretzels."

Boy Scouts change name; girls upset

NORTH BRUNSWICK, N.J. (AP) — The Boy Scouts of America has changed its name to Scouting-USA, and the Girl Scouts don't like it.

The 67-year-old organization said the change was made because the word "boy" is objectionable to minorities and because young women are enrolled in the coed Exploring Program.

In a statement released here Tuesday, the organization's national office said the new name has been phased in gradually since last June on letterheads and other materials. The group's legal name will remain Boy Scouts of America.

A Scouting-USA spokesman said the Girl Scouts tried unsuccessfully to talk the Boy Scouts out of the name change after it was approved last year.

A Scouting-USA spokesman said the name change should also eliminate some confusion about the identity of the organization.

Cinco de Mayo group to meet

The Inland Empire Cinco de Mayo Committee will meet Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at the League of United Latin American Citizens (LULAC) office, 685 W. Mission Blvd., Pomona.

The purpose of the meeting is to organize activities for a May 2-8 Cinco de Mayo celebration to be held in Ontario. The meeting will be open to the public. A clergyman will speak.

Committee publicity chairman Danny Morales said the celebration will include a parade, queen contest, rodeo, carnival and an arts festival.

An attempt will be made to involve residents of all ages in the activities.

Morales said the purpose of this year's expanded celebration, and greatly expanded committee, is to attempt a unification of Chicanos in the area from San Bernardino to Pomona.

Planners are hopeful the resulting organization will become a medium through which mounting criminal problems in the area may be resolved.

Additional information regarding Thursday's meeting, or the Inland Empire Cinco de Mayo Committee's plans, may be obtained by calling the LULAC Center in Pomona at 623-0588.

City Council to tackle issue again

Bingo in Montclair to be reconsidered

By MAE TATE
PB Staff Writer

Obviously emotionally strained between his personal moral convictions and a desire to protect the general welfare of residents, Councilman Ernest Rowley re-opened the issue of bingo in Montclair Tuesday night.

Although he made it clear that re-opening the matter for reconsideration did not mean he approved of or would vote for bingo in Montclair, Rowley said the City Council had the responsibility of regulating legalized bingo. And that all indications point to a successful initiative by bingo supporters.

The second reading and adoption of an ordinance that would have legalized and strongly regulated bingo in the West End city was defeated at the Feb. 7 meeting. Councilmen Nelson Gentry and Paul Jones claimed they voted against the ordinance adoption for moral reasons while Mayor Harold Hayes and Councilman Tom McClure supported the ordinance. Rowley abstained and prompted an opinion from City Atty. Gene Demchuk that the ordinance failed according to provisions of the state government code which requires three affirmative votes.

Supporters called the council hypocritical for opposing bingo on moral grounds, yet allowing adult book stores, striptease clubs and "abortion mills" to operate in the city.

The Rev. Donald Bray of Bethany Baptist Church said the majority is not always right, and likened the situation to the majority in Jerusalem who called for the crucifixion of Jesus.

Bill Domas told the council it was "not under responsibility to decide the right or wrong of bingo. You have the responsibility of upholding the rights of citizens."

Rowley, well-known for his monthly announcement of the city's prayer breakfast and his quiet but consistent private and public adherence to moral and religious convictions, brought calm to the rising tempers of the audience.

Rowley pointed out the truth of McClure's statement that with an initiative of 15 per cent — only 986 voters — of the 6,517 registered voters in the city, bingo would become law regardless of any City Council sentiments on the matter.

"I feel that if we are ever going to have bingo in the City of Montclair, we need to have strong local options. We need to have control of it," Rowley said. "There is a strong possibility if the City Council refuses to reconsider, the initiative will go forward and the City Council will no longer have control of bingo in the city."

He noted that the initiative would create irrevocable language unless a second initiative altered that language or if it was phrased properly in the first instance. He added that steps have already begun in the state legislature to liberalize bingo ordinances.

"I think the city needs to be able to control whatever happens in the City of Montclair. I'm going to make the motion to reconsider . . . I'm not saying I approve of bingo. I will have no one point a finger at me and say I support bingo playing," Rowley said.

The councilman made it clear that his motion for re-opening the issue did not necessarily mean he would vote in favor of legalized bingo. His vote would be determined by legal advice from the city attorney on the long range possibilities of an initiative and further investigation by city staff of making the proposed ordinance an even tighter document.

The vote for reconsideration was 3-2 with Gentry and Jones opposing it. The matter was set for March 21 for discussion and reconsideration.

Claremont public hearing on salaries gets no response

By GEORGE MacLAREN
PB Staff Writer

The Claremont school board Tuesday night held two public hearings on salary proposals for teachers and classified employes, but no one spoke.

The Rodda Act requires that a school district hold a hearing to give the public an opportunity to comment on proposals.

Two weeks ago, the Claremont Faculty Association submitted to the board a salary proposal for the 1977-1978 school year, and the board publicized its counter-proposal to one submitted by Chapter 200 of the California School Employes Associaton.

The board will hold a special board meeting and sit in executive session to discuss with its representative the CFA's proposed master contract Feb. 28.

The district will begin negotiations with CSEA representatives on their contract proposal beginning March 1.

In other matters, the board approved field trips for the following: the Claremont High Mountaineering Club will go to Los Padres National Forest Feb. 25-27; the Claremont High Ski Club to Mammoth Mountain March 4-6; the Condit Service Club trip to Los Angeles March 10; and Claremont High Interdisciplinary Studies students to Joshua Tree National Monument and Anza-Borrego State Park Feb. 26-28.

MSAC candidates to attend forum

Eleven candidates for two positions on the Mt. San Antonio College board of trustees have been invited to participate in an open forum at the college Thursday at 7:30 p.m.

Co-sponsored by the MSAC Women's Caucus and the Associated Students, the forum will be held in the Social Science Auditorium. The board election will be held Tuesday, March 8.

Candidates are Jean Barnes, Clifton Booth, Michael Daniels, Alfred Diaz, Evelyn England, Bert Gray, Marion Hayhurst, Kenneth Hunt, Frances Maschio, Bernadine Miller and Alfred Sanchez.

The positions open are those of Booth, appointed by the board last year to fill the seat vacated by Robert Hickson, and of Robert Hutchinson, who will not seek re-election this year. Hutchinson has served on the board since March 1962.

EASY TO READ — Visualtek machine is demonstrated by Citrus College audiovisual technician Jim Pierce and Margaret Babcock, library staff member, to show how printed material can be magnified and made easier to read. The machine is available, free of charge, to area residents who are partially sighted.

Partially-sighted are invited to use new visual system

Partially-sighted persons in the Citrus College District are invited to use the college's Visualtek machine, a closed-circuit television system which magnifies printed or written material, to aid them in reading books, newspapers or letters. They may also use the machine to write personal letters and checks.

The Visualtek is located in the audiovisual department of the library and may be used during regular library hours. It is easy to operate. The material to be read, or written, is placed on a small table, and a camera then magnifies it and projects it, line by line, on a television screen. The size of the printing can be controlled. Also, the printing can be shown as black on white or white on black, whichever is easier for the person to read. The Visualtek is located in an enclosed booth to insure privacy.

Library hours are Monday through Thursday, 7:30 a.m. to 10 p.m.; Friday, 7:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.; and Sunday, 1:30 to 5:30 p.m.

Requested by Assemblyman McVittie

YRS audit to be conducted

A full evaluation of year-round school programs in California will be conducted by the state auditor general, thanks to a request by Assemblyman Bill McVittie, D-65th Dist.

McVittie has voiced particular concern over the year-round program in Chino. "The Chino school district currently provides both traditional and year-round school (YRS) programs," said the assemblyman. "There is uncertainty as to whether both programs should be continued."

McVittie pointed to the "great controversy" surrounding YRS in Chino and throughout the state.

The performance review of YRS had first been requested by McVittie through the legislature's joint audit committee. After approval by the committee, it was assigned to the auditor general's office.

The YRS audit is expected to cover statistical information on the program, costs of operation, compared to traditional programs, capital outlay costs, and overall impact of YRS on the costs of education.

That audit should be completed by Oct. 1, according to the assemblyman.

Citizens for Improved Education (CIE), an antiyear-round school group, had asked McVittie some time ago to push for a YRS audit.

Perez trial date scheduled

The trial of Miguel Angel Perez, 17-year-old youth accused of robbery, kidnaping and murder in the slaying of a Pomona grocer last summer, has been continued again to March 18 in Pomona Superior Court.

Perez, of Pomona, who earlier was declared unfit for consideration as a juvenile at a special hearing in Los Angeles Juvenile Court, is accused of the offenses in the slaying July 26 of Howard R. Reese, 65, of Anaheim. Reese was robbed in the Lucky Star Market, 1600 W. Mission Blvd., taken to an isolated area of southwest Pomona and shot in the head. His body was found the next day in a ravine.

Meanwhile, a second youth, 15 years old, already has pleaded guilty and has been committed to the custody of the California Youth Authority.

Investigators charged that the victim was killed so he could not identify the robbers.

Law center officials look forward to accreditation

By VONNE ROBERTSON
PB Staff Writer

If the Law Center at La Verne College is accredited by the American Bar Association this year, as anticipated by college officials, it will become the only nationally accredited law school between the Harbor Freeway and the California border.

A feasibility study recently completed by the Law Center shows that there are some 140,000 undergraduate college students in the area east of the freeway, of which six to eight per cent are pre-law majors, according to George McCormick, acting associate dean of the Law Center.

"This indicates we could anticipate some 1,145 applications for the center just from the region," he said. "And we are already drawing one-third of our students from outside of the local area, many from out of the state."

Because of its easy access to freeways and highways and the growth of the valley, law school officials say LVC is popular with the many night students and day students who live outside the area and commute to classes.

The law school, which currently has a total of 235 day and night students, does not plan to expand beyond 350 students in the near future, a spokesman said.

While applications for next year have already doubled over past years, the freshman class will be limited to about 130.

McCormick said that while several faculty members will be added, the law school will continue to keep its high faculty-student ratio.

A consultant from the University of Puget Sound in Washington is now at the center to review the feasibility study and plans for the conversion of the Hoover Library to a law school.

The consultant's recommendations will be incorporated with college officials' plans to be presented to representatives of the ABA accreditation team when they visit LVC in early March.

If the report of the ABA team is favorable, the Law Center will then formally apply for accreditation, according to Peggy Hedrick, admissions officer.

"The feasibility study completed by Dean Hall, a senior, has been well accepted by all groups who have seen it," says Mrs. Hedrick. "We are sure the accreditation team will be impressed."

The old Alpha Beta market near the campus is now being carpeted and renovated to become the new college library. Books are being packed in the Hoover Library for the shift which is expected by the end of this month.

Marlin Heckman, LVC librarian, said the library should be in full operation at the new location by the time students return from spring vacation.

"Students will be provided with all library services throughout the move," the librarian added.

The new library is capable of holding over 95,000 volumes, 60,000 of these will be on new shelving. An added advantage to the newlocation is 100 additional parking spaces which will help solve a growing problem at the college, Heckman said.

Once the library is relocated, the Law Center will move into the Hoover building which was constructed in 1951, McCormick reported. This remodeling and move is expected to be completed by late spring.

"We anticipate that the Hoover building will meet the requirements for provisional accreditation," McCormick added.

McCormick said that while the LVC has many classrooms, lecture halls and other facilities on the campus, ABA insists that the Law Center be housed in its own separate building, complete with classrooms and library.

"The association wants to see the actual facilities," said McCormick, "In the past, some colleges have promised to build the required facilities, but, once accredited, they failed to complete them.

"Some of these colleges are now being threatened with the loss of accreditation."

S.B. supervisors submit list of mandated programs

By JON MORRIS
PB Staff Writer

San Bernardino County supervisors have sent state officials a list of mandated programs which could save the county $22.8 million if removed.

The list of programs, most in health and welfare, represents the county's response to Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. who asked each county last year to supply a list of programs which could be shifted to the state or modified to reduce the burden on property taxpayers.

County supervisors have complained about programs required by the state for which the state provides no local funding.

They were angry last year when required to implement the new juvenile justice reform bill without state assistance.

But Gov. Brown apparently is now concerned over the property tax burden on homeowners. The county's list will be reviewed by Roy Bell, state finance director.

County officials have suggested that costs in some programs be shifted to the state, be reduced or eliminated in others, or shifted to users by levying fees.

They reported the bulk of the costs — $20.1 million — is in areas where the state could pick up the tab.

Health and welfare account for 31 programs with a potential $20.5 million savings. Others are general government programs, public protection programs and highway and transportation programs.

Under health and welfare, Medical, medical care for the poor, and aid for the old, blind and disabled are programs that could be financed by the state, said Earl Goodwin, county administrative officer.

Goodwin also suggested the state could take over all the welfare payments.

County officials have long argued that services not related to property such as health, education and welfare, should be financed from sources other than property taxes.

Pomona engineer honored

J. Carle Huisking, a Pomona consulting engineer, will be honored today at a California Society of Professional Engineers meeting for being named "engineer of the year."

The selection was based on his contributions to the profession. He is a past president and state director of the state society and has been active in the jointly sponsored engineering refresher courses offered at Cal Poly Pomona.

The program, a part of the "Salute to Engineers Week," will be held at the Holiday Inn in San Bernardino. John Latin, an engineer at Rockwell International, will be the speaker.

Pomona council okays $1.4 million spending plan

By ED PRATHER
PB Staff Writer

A spending plan for $1.4 million in federal grant funds was narrowly approved Tuesday night when Pomona City Councilmen divided over funding for street lights.

Although the plan contains $210,000 for street lighting purposes, Councilmen Charles Bader and Adrian Wright said the amount was insufficient and lobbied hard for a larger appropriation. They failed.

In a lengthy debate that took on the tone of campaign oratory, council members could find agreement only on the need for street lighting, but could reach no clear consensus on how to pay for major improvements.

When City Administrator Jerrold Gonce suggested the council declare the entire city a special street light assessment district, which would provide a taxing power to generate funds, and use $1 million of the federal funds for street lights the council backed off the subject and voted to stay with the spending plan as proposed.

That plan, third year funding of the Community Development Block Grant program, includes several other major projects besides money for street lights.

They include $260,000 for beautification projects, $225,000 for creation of a centrally located senior citizen's center, and $155,000 for residential property improvement projects (including the possibility of a rebate program for homeowners improving the appearance of their property).

Other allocations include $85,000 to upgrade substandard school crossing traffic signals, $75,000 to demolish some old buildings on the Pomona Mall, and $37,000 for a community center at Cherrieville Park.

Another $150,000 for acquisition of property near the city maintenance yards on Monterey Avenue and across Eighth Street from the city library was the only item criticized by council members, and that turned out to be due to a misunderstanding of the proposal.

Bader and Wright's push for more street lighting money appeared to lose steam when neither man, nor other council members, would propose which of the other projects should be sacrificed for the cause.

Gonce freely admitted that the plan, formulated after public hearings earlier this month and incorporating the expressed desires of citizens in previous years, was a "shotgun approach" with "something for all areas of the city."

No one appeared anxious to change that approach two weeks before municipal elections, although Bader and Wright carried their street light protest to the end and came up on the short end of a 3-2 vote approving the spending proposal.

The proposal will now go through the Southern California Association of Governments (SCAG), and the state and federal levels for review and approval.

Barring any review problems, implementation of the plan should begin in about four or five months.

Chino school board votes to continue present program

By JON MORRIS
PB Staff Writer

After another angry debate, Chino school trustees Tuesday night dropped plans to mandate year-round school for new students at the elementary and junior high levels.

On a 3-2 split vote, board members adopted trustee Lyle Briggs' proposal to retain the present optional year-round school (YRS) and traditional program for new students. Pupils now enrolled in the district also would continue to have a choice of programs.

Trustees Augustine Tapia and Paul Peterson joined Briggs in favoring the plan, while board president Al McCombs and Pete Vander Poel opposed it.

The board majority refused to approve a mandatory year-round plan, despite facing a packed audience which clearly favored it. The crowd loudly cheered those trustees who tended to support YRS over an optional schedule.

By approving Briggs' plan, which is effective on July 1, trustees rejected Supt. Royce Lapp's proposal to balance enrollments in YRS tracks by mandating YRS for new students. The move also was necessary to deal with the district's critical growth problems, Lapp noted.

Briggs' plan also would eliminate year-round or traditional tracks at various schools if enrollments were not up to par. If enrollments dropped way off, a YRS program could be dropped at a particular school.

Lapp warned that Briggs' policy will force cancellation of the YRS program at Gird and Los Serranos elementary schools; and dropping one track at Glenmeade School. He noted if tracks are dropped, it will damage YRS and negate the saving of building space.

Space problems that would result from the change in YRS may mean double sessions or other growth moves would be necessary, he added.

Peterson argued that with an effective date of July 1, YRS tracks could be brought up to par in enrollments so they wouldn't have to be dropped.

The policy states if less than 110 students are enrolled in a track, it would be dropped or combined with others.

Vander Poel, a strong supporter of YRS, engaged in another heated debate with Tapia, who now seems to favor the traditional program.

"You're nickeling and diming YRS out of existence," Vander Poel charged. "Why don't you just come out for the abolition of YRS?"

Tapia responded by saying, "If YRS initially had not been jammed down people's throats, we wouldn't be where we are tonight."

Vander Poel then called for a public vote on YRS, so the community could express itself. But Tapia, arguing the current state law does not allow a strict yes-no vote on the issue, said, "Your election is not a fair election because people wanting traditional are not given a choice."

McCombs said, "I feel like I'm a member of a crew riding into a storm and we're here admiring the sunset." He added the district has critical problems with its growth, and can't afford to drop YRS.

Several citizens spoke in favor of YRS during a brief public hearing. "I don't want to see my taxes go up," said Patrick Patterson. "We need a full load in each classroom."

Daniel Santo, a school board candidate, said Briggs' plan would be "unworkable. We can't drop YRS too quickly."

Earl Owens, another candidate, noted that a recent survey showed California parents like year-round school. "I hope the board will look favorably to YRS."

LOVELY PAIR

The flowering evergreen pear (Pyrus Kawakami) on Third Street in downtown Pomona caught the eye of Progress Bulletin typist Meri Jo Herschel. Although the parks department reports the trees are not blooming ahead of season, their blossoms, along with the warm daytime temperatures, make it difficult to realize that it really is wintertime here.

Conserving water nothing new to her

For a La Verne woman, there's nothing new in the idea of conserving water.

"I've been conserving water for a number of years. I put a kettle or pan in the sink and run water from the heater until it is hot enough to wash dishes," wrote Anna C. Overholtzer.

"With that water, I wash vegetables. Then I pour it on my patio plants and roses.

"I live alone and only wash dishes once a day. This also conserves water, and gas in the heater."

Mrs. Overholtzer said she even turns the water off while she brushes her teeth. "I was surprised when I put the stopper in the bowl and it filled with water," she wrote.

Base slaying reward now at $2,500

There is now $2,500 available in the James Base Reward Fund for information leading to the arrest and conviction of person or persons responsible for the slaying of James Base in Pomona last Jan. 3.

The reward fund was created by donations made by members of the Base family and friends. Additional contributions to the fund may be made in care of the First National Bank and Trust Co., 5343 Riverside Drive., Chino.

Anyone having information concerning the slaying of the Base youth is urged to contact the Pomona Police Department.

Upland hearing on bingo slated

By VONNE ROBERTSON
PB Staff Writer

A public hearing on allowing bingo in Upland has been set for April 4 by the Upland City Council.

Council members Monday said the city's Recreation Department has received a number of inquiries concerning the possibility of games in the city under recently adopted state legislation.

Council members will follow the recommendations of Paul Rogers of Los Angeles, a cement construction expert, and seal the cracks which are in the roof of the newly completed 17th Street Reservoir.

Rogers was requested to study the design and construction of the reservoir to attempt to determine the cause of undue cracking in the roof and to recommend procedures to repair the roof.

The city has never accepted the reservoir from the contractor, J. Putnam Henck, and, therefore, has held some $95,000 due the firm.

At the Monday meeting, Councilman Hal Bailin recommended that the city release $60,000 to Henck and retain $35,000 of the fund until it is determined who is responsible for the cost of sealing the top of the reservoir.

The city will now consult with several firms to determine which method will best seal the cement cracks.

The reservoir was designed by Engineering-Science and constructed by Henck and each firm has denied responsibility for excessive cracking of the top.

Still to be answered is the cost of the repairs, how long they can be expected to last and who finally pays the bill.

Several residents of Euclid Avenue and First and Second avenues south of Foothill Boulevard disagreed on the closing of two alleys in the area.

Increased traffic in the alleys is blamed by the residents in the area on cars leaving McDonald's on Foothill Boulevard and making an illegal turn to exit through the alley.

Instead of closing the alleys, as proposed by the planning department, Planning Department, council members voted to close the exit from the restaurant to see if this eliminates the problem.

Council members accepted a Ninth Street residential density study for the area between Euclid and San Antonio avenues and adopted two zone changes which would control density of future construction in the area.

A conditional use permit was granted for the construction of a Coco's restaurant in the existing shopping center at the southwest corner of Euclid Avenue and Foothill Boulevard.

Supervisors attack insurance redlining

By BOB NAGEY
PB Staff Writer

The Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors has made a demand on the insurance industry to abandon "redlining practices" or face legal action.

Supervisor Kenneth Hahn contends the practice is unfair because it raises the cost of insurance in areas of the county which the companies deem "high risk" and lowers the cost for those who live in the outlying districts.

The supervisor contends that most of the Los Angeles metropolitan area falls within the highest paying district in the state.

He said that although the Pomona area is in the lowest rated district in the county, its residents still pay considerably more than other counties in California.

He wants the insurance industry to readjust its rates so that residents of California with similar driving records would pay the same rates regardless of where they lived.

Since most of California now pays less than the Pomona Valley, Hahn contended that if the rates were made uniform, residents of the valley would get a reduction, even though they already pay less than the rest of the county.

But Hahn's main thrust was aimed against the rates levied at residents of Los Angeles who pay more because there are more accidents in their districts.

County Counsel John Larson told the supervisors that before the matter can be taken to court, the board must exhaust other remedies.

He said the first step was a formal demand on the insurance companies to abandon "redlining practices" whereby the companies pick desirable and unwanted districts.

If the companies fail to remedy that situation within 30 days, then the dispute can be turned over to the California Insurance Commissioner Wesley J. Kinder.

If the commissioner fails to resolve the dispute, then a class action lawsuit can be filed in Superior Court.

The board agreed to take those steps as provided by law.

Meanwhile, the American Insurance Association, a spokesman for the insurancy industry, disputed Hahn's claim that most of the state — that even some parts of the county — would benefit from the abolishment of territorial rating.

W. Victor Slevin, vice president of the group, claimed rates would go up 48 per cent for some of the state drivers to offset reductions given to motorists who live in high risk areas, including Hahn's district.

Slevin said that in Los Angeles County about 173,000 drivers would pay less and 187,00 policy holders would pay more.

In neighboring San Bernardino and Riverside counties premiums would have to be raised 27 per cent to offset the cost reductions to drivers in central Los Angeles, he said.

Water conservation guidelines adopted by La Verne City Council

Water conservation guidelines were adopted by La Verne city councilmen Tuesday night, but several councilmen cited federal and state water standards as contributing to the current drought problems locally.

La Verne now is limited in the amount of its own well water it can pump into the municipal system because of high nitrate content. Federal health experts believe this could contribute toward the birth of "blue babies."

However, Mayor Mike Morales and Councilman Robert Neher said there never has been a documented case nationwide of the birth of a blue baby directly attributed to high nitrate water.

"It's been shown," Neher said, "that we get more nitrates in the food we eat than from our water."

La Verne now mixes its well water with either Colorado or Feather river water to meet water standards.

In adopting the conservation resolution which would go into effect if the current drought reaches the crisis stage, councilmen urged a new look at nitrate standards so that more local well water could be used rather than relying on imported water.

In other action, the council agreed to allow sale of fireworks within the city this year but promised a close look at the situation in the future.

Fire Chief Robert Lapp in pleading to outlaw fireworks, said La Verne averages five fires each July directly attributable to fireworks. Losses last year totalled $19,500 as a result of careless fireworks use within the city, he said.

But councilmen said it is too late this year to cancel fireworks sales. Sales made from portable booths throughout La Verne are handled by charitable groups which use funds to promote their civic ventures.

Lapp said all cities bordering La Verne now ban such sales.

Councilmen, in defeating Chief Lapp's request, indicated such a ban could become a reality next year.

Sale of mailing lists of state drivers license holders' names was protested strongly in a resolution passed unanimously by the council. The Pomona City Council initiated the move three months ago when that council requested that such sales stop.

La Verne's similar resolution will be forwarded to Gov. Gerald Brown Jr., the Department of Motor Vehicles, and the legislature.

Compliance up to states

As Congress wrestles with the decision to grant the automakers a postponement of stringent new pollution standards — scheduled to go into effect on 1978 model cars — it is important to keep one thing in mind.

It is not, as some people have irresponsibly claimed, a matter of permitting the industry "to go on building dirty cars." The industry has been building progressively cleaner cars since the mid-1960s, when the first emission-control devices began to be installed, and especially since passage of the Clear Air Act in 1970.

Even if the 1978 requirements were postponed indefinitely — which they won't be — the average level of automobile-generated pollutants would continue to decline as older cars were retired to the scrapyard.

Rather, it is becoming a question of just how much we may realistically expect from automotive technology in refining the conventional internal-combustion engine, and whether we may be reaching the point where the costs of doing so begin to outweigh the benefits.

The 1978 standards, if achieved, would bring us close to the level of zero emissions. This is a goal devoutly to be wished, but the closer we get to it — with automobiles or anything else — the more elusive it becomes.

The first 90 percent of the job of cleaning up any kind of pollution is relatively easy. The next five per cent is tough, but still possible. It's the last few percentage points where things begin to get sticky and where we have to start thinking about other priorities — the need to keep factories, mills and mines operating, to keep people working, the urgent need to conserve energy and natural resources.

By all means, Congress should continue to sit on the auto companies until the 1978 statutory standards are achieved, or until it is proved conclusively that they are not feasible. It is clear that we would not have come as far as we have had it not been for the law's force-feeding of pollution-control technology.

Yet there is something Congress could do right now that would bring far greater and more immediate benefits for the public health: It could require that all states conduct periodic inspections of every vehicle on the road to insure that they are in compliance with the emission standards of their particular model year.

It is one thing to crank out cars meeting certain emission specifications on the assembly line. But if there is no follow-up, if nothing is done to see that people maintain their cars to these specifications, not a great deal has really been accomplished.

Pornography isn't greatest threat

If there is anything that brings the law into greater disrepute than the lenient treatment of serious offenders, it is the harsh treatment of someone whose crime has not demonstrably harmed anyone else.

However much one may be offended by or concerned about pornography, the "pandering of obscenity" would seem to pose a lesser threat to the safety and good order of society than any number of other activities one could name.

But it was his conviction on this charge by a Cincinnati jury, along with the charge of engaging in organized crime, that earned Hustler magazine publisher Larry Flynt no less a sentence than seven to 25 years in the pen and a fine of $11,000. Not only that, but so dangerous a character did the judge consider him to be that he was denied release on bail pending appeal.

Your average mugger of little old ladies gets off easier than that.

Strange, indeed, are the workings of the law when it comes to obscenity. Any sledgehammer will do.

Consider Flynt's "organized crime" rap. While it only takes two to tango, in Ohio the law says it takes five or more people to constitute an organized crime ring.

Yet only four persons are indicted on this charge in the Hustler case, and three of them were acquitted. The fifth defendant was Flynt's corporation. Which leaves Flynt guilty of engaging in organized crime with himself.

On this basis alone, the chances are good that his conviction will be thrown out by a higher court. And if so, what will have been accomplished by the zealous prosecutors in Cincinnati except to have made the law look ridiculous and make it even more difficult in the future to put some controls on pornography?

By all rights, Flynt's sentence ought to be cut in half simply on the grounds that even if he did pander obscenity, he only pandered it to half the population. After all, it is men, not women, who keep the pornographers in business.

Opposes new Canal treaty

Dear Editor:

When Time magazine asked Jimmy Carter what he hoped to achieve first, Mr. Carter replied, "I think the Panama treaty ought to be resolved quite rapidly."

Just before inauguration, Mr. Carter had a conference with 50 congressional leaders to discuss his plans for foreign policy. He said negotiations with Panama would resume immediately and that a complete new Panama treaty would be ready by June. When congressmen mentioned that opposition to such a giveaway of American sovereignty would first have to be softened, the President suggested that a fireside chat could mollify the many.

The Canal Zone, including the canal, is sovereign territory of the United States of America. The Hay-Bunau-Varilla Treaty of 1903 makes this perfectly clear. So, too, does the 1907 Supreme Court Wilson v. Shaw decision and the statement of Teddy Roosevelt during his visit to Panama, Nov. 16, 1910: " . . . you have given us the necessary sovereignty and jurisdiction over the part of your country occupied by the canal . . ." All pertinent documents prove that America bought and paid for that Zone "in perpetuity," built the canal, and have more than kept our treaty obligations.

The man who would demand our Zone and our canal is Marxist dictator Omar Torrijos, the man who seized power from Panama's legally elected government in 1968. He's a friend of Fidel Castro. Our Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs has named the Torrijos government as part of an international heroin smuggling ring whose target is American youth.

Every ounce of compromise with a Communist dictator would be used to destroy America. Communists have never kept a treaty that would be good for America. Failure to fully oppose the new Panama Canal treaty or any "compromise" would result in the greatest jump in inflation the world has ever seen. "Pie crust promises" won't prevent raising shipping rates and/or blocking our shipping altogether. Senators and congressmen must be told to oppose the new Panama Canal treaty."

Bleak prison lacks decency

WASHINGTON — For the prisoners of Parchman, slavery was abolished a century late. Not until the early 1970s were they freed from the work gangs that toiled from sunrise to sunset, without pay, in the Mississippi cotton fields. Gun-toting overseers supervised the work and did not hesitate to shoot a man dead if he tried to flee.

Parchman Prison consists of some old plantation camps, which rise out of the cotton fields and quickly slump back into them. The prisoners no longer are forced to work but they are still housed in bleak barracks not much better than the bygone slave quarters. Indeed, a federal court has found the living conditions "unfit for human habitation by any standard of decency."

We sent our roving reporter, Hal Bernton, to this forgotten corner of America to investigate the conditions. He spent nearly two weeks inside the prison. He was processed through the reception center, assigned a number and issued a set of prison clothes.

The arrangements were made by Dr. Allen Ault, who took charge of the Mississippi prison system two months ago. Previously, he brought reforms to Georgia's tension-ridden prisons while Jimmy Carter was the governor. Now Ault is introducing similar reforms in Mississippi.

In the past, Parchman was run by the "good ol' boys," a term of affection and respect applied to the men who used to dominate Southern politics. They used the prison labor force to raise cotton for the state and to grow the prison's food supply. Women inmates canned the food, and the meat was prepared at a nearby slaughterhouse. But the best cuts never made it to the prisoners' table; they wound up mysteriously in the homes of favored Mississippi politicians.

Now the processing plants have fallen into disrepair, the barracks have been condemned and a new day is dawning. But for the next few months, the prisoners are still shoehorned into the rundown barracks.

Bernton felt a pervasive, suffocating feeling of claustrophobia as he entered the crowded quarters. The prisoners bunk together in two large "cages" on opposite sides of the barracks. Each cramped cage holds over 80 prisoners. A court order is supposed to guarantee each prisoner 50 square feet of living space. But Bernton and his cellmates had closer to 22 square feet apiece.

Occasionally, rats scurried across the floor. Electrical wires lay exposed. Sinks and toilets regularly overflowed because of faulty plumbing, causing a horrible stench.

As Bernton bedded down for the night, he watched a black inmate in a bright red shirt straightening his hair with a hot comb. A barechested man wearing a gold cross around his neck was ironing his pants; he explained that the prison laundry never returned some of his clothes. A huddle of men around a television set watched an old Bing Crosby movie. Another grim group played poker.

It's the lack of work that has now become the curse of Parchman. Most of them want to work, because they can reduce their sentence by a day for every day they work. But there isn't enough work to go around. Two-thirds also lack the education to qualify for high school or vocational training programs. So throughout the long winter months, they just lounge around.

One poured out his frustration to Bernton. "It gets hard lazing around the cage with all the tension and all the noises of the radio, televisions and card games. There's little ventilation. With the windows closed, it's like a smoke-filled barroom. You go through that for several months, and finally you wake up one day on the wrong side of the bed. Someone slaps you, and a fight breaks out."

When a scuffle erupts, the hall guards dare not intervene until security reinforcements arrive. By that time, a man may be killed or raped. It has happened.

In this dehumanizing atmosphere, each prisoner tried to add some small personal touch to his tiny living space. The Black Muslims took over a corner of the cage and taped to the wall a faded photo of their sad-faced prophet, Elijah. Despite the constant, mind-dulling blare of radio, television and poker, they quietly bowed down every morning to pray.

One Muslim minister, a firm believer in physical exercise, did sit-ups and push-ups on his bed. In the afternoon, when the inmates were let out of the cage, he took Bernton jogging around the fenced-in grounds. They had to dodge pools of sewage. Other inmates played basketball on a muddy, makeshift court.

Bernton found a thriving black market of goods and services inside Parchman. Sugar from the camp kitchens is siphoned off by inmate cooks into secret caches, which are later sold. Some is mixed with peaches, yeast or fruit cocktail to form a crude, bottleg brew called "buck." To prevent the brewing of buck, prison officials actually chopped down a peach orchard.

Bernton paid 50 cents to have his convict stripes sewed on his pants by a camp tailor. He was offered a marijuana cigarette for 75 cents.

Paul Harvey

We're learning, all the time

We are learning all the time.

American college-agers after testing the "do your own thing" concept are discarding it, reverting to doing "the established thing."

Their preoccupation now is with vocational education.

Seventy-four percent now agree that busing is a mistake.

Sixty percent now favor capital punishment.

We are learning all the time.

Indeed, there is evidence that the objective of peace, which men have sought for 6,000 years, is within reach; war has gone out of style.

Big wars are too devastating to contemplate, small wars too debilitating to tolerate; now we are going to have to resolve inter-nation differences by more civilized means.

If we have indeed learned that — perhaps we are now capable of learning the economic facts of life.

Recent contracts negotiated by the United Auto Workers will increase the prices of new cars a hundred dollars each year for the next three. This is not corporate propaganda. This is the projection of our government's Council on Wage and Price Stability.

The council has added wage increases in the new contracts and subtracted extra vacation time in the new contracts, so that each car must cost an average hundred dollars more each year of the new three-year contracts.

Labor costs are roughly one-third of the total cost of producing most things.

Last year the United States imported from abroad twice as many color TV sets as in the previous year. One-third of all U.S. color TV sets are now manufactured outside the United States because of the higher wages U.S. manufacturers must pay.

At Zenith alone this has cost 60,000 jobs since 1971.

Historically, most Americans have not recognized the negative aspects of a pay raise. Each of us has been inclined to demand more income to keep up with the rising cost of living — unaware that these increases push the cost of living higher. Also, each increase puts the American worker in a higher tax bracket.

Thus in higher prices and in higher taxes the worker is forced to pay his own wage increase!

Department of Labor statistics indicate that workers' wages have been keeping frantically ahead of inflation when the fact is — after you compute the larger tax bite — the average American worker, in terms of what the money he has left will buy, has less than he had five years ago!

We scream about high prices, yet we demand from government and from employers the increased spending which inevitably pushes prices higher.

Britain's prime minister — a Labor prime minister — blames his country's travail on British workers demanding more without producing more.

If we are capable of unlearning war, perhaps we are capable of relearning that!

Doc Peirsol

Just in jest

One interesting thing about democracy in action is that our duly elected government representatives seldom if ever make a decision without first ordering a costly "in-depth study," at taxpayers expense, of whatever legislation it is they are considering enacting.

One government agency, for instance, spent $45,000 on a study to determine how long it takes to break an egg.—Not that study isn't worthwhile where legislation is involved; but it does seem as though our government representatives should be bright enough to do some of that studying themselves instead of relegating it (and, I repeat, at taxpayers expense) to high-priced, self-styled expert consultants. If all the money spent at the local, state and national levels for the thousands of such "in-depth studies" made over the past five years had been invested in 6 per cent interest-bearing bonds, we would probably now have enough money on hand to save New York City from bankruptcy.

There might even be something left over to start paying off the national debt. — And consider how few opportunities our government representatives would have for dilly-dallying and extra curricular activities if they had to spend their time doing their own thinking.

Public pay is excessive

By EARL G. WATERS

If the legislators didn't recognize the need for action to place ceilings on public salaries when the California Taxpayers Association reported recently that 895 state employes were drawing pay greater than the $49,100 allotted the governor, perhaps a further disclosure by Cal-Tax will awaken them.

In its latest survey the tax organization reveals that more than 200 local government officials also have annual salaries exceeding the governor's.

The highest in the state, at the moment, is the $81,500 paid water lawyer Ralph M. Brody to manage the Westlands Water District in the Fresno area. This government entity is one of more than 6,000 special districts within the state.

Governed by elective boards which enjoy low public visibility, the districts not only pay salaries which are often questionable but many of the districts get into trouble because of sloppy financial and purchasing practices due chiefly to the absence of public spotlights on their operations.

Excessive salaries are not, however, confined to special districts. There are dozens of local school officials drawing pay greater than that of State Supt. of Public Instruction Wilson C. Riles and at least two dozen of them getting more than the governor. The highest presently is the Los Angeles school superintendent at $56,963 along with at least a half dozen assistants also getting more than the governor.

City and county managers in more than a dozen jurisdictions also seem to have convinced their appointing powers that their jobs are more important than that of the governor's with the Los Angeles city administrator bagging $60,928. He is just a few bucks higher than the city engineer and fire chief but is outdistanced by Los Angeles Police Chief Ed Davis who is paid $66,085.

Of course, the Cal-Tax survey, limited to those whose salaries exceeded the governor, doesn't come close to telling the whole story. The numbers of public "servants" being paid $35,000 and over are legion.

Perhaps the irony of such salaries in a state where more than a million are idled by unemployment and half of those employed report taxable earnings under $10,000 hasn't fully struck the lawmakers. But Sen. John Holmdahl became so incensed at the though of BART, the Bay Area's financially plagued rapid transit, paying its manager $68,500 that he has authored legislation to reduce that to no more than the governor's salary.

"It seems absurd that 895 state employes are paid more than the governor. But it's even more absurd to pay $68,500 for someone to manage a transit system which loses $40 million a year," he complained. Senators Al Alquist, Nick Petris, Peter Behr and John Nejedly, along with Assemblymen Dan Boatwright, Alister McAlister and Floyd Mori, have joined on Holmdahl's bill.

The idea of pegging the salary to a ceiling set for the governor is sound. It should be something below that of the governor's and should apply to every state and local official. BART may be losing taxpayers' money but they are all spending it.

Even in the field of doctors, which Cal-Tax said accounted for half of the top paid local government salaries exceeding $50,000, it would seem hard to justify such pay. True, many doctors, maybe all of them, in private practice have gross earnings greater than those paid public doctors. But they don't get paid vacations, free automobiles and the many other fringe benefits given those on public payrolls. And, they have to pay office rent, nurse and other staff salaries including bookkeepers and tax accountants out of those earnings. Besides many have to earn $20,000 or more just to pay for their malpractice insurance. If they get sick, unlike those on public payrolls, they earn nothing.

'Baldy' replies to critic

Dear Ann Landers: I am writing to protest about the lady whose letter appeared recently criticizing us baldies for trying to spread our few remaining strands of hair across an open expanse of bare head.

Is that lady ready to file an affidavit that she is not disguising a flat bosom with a padded bra, that she is not holding in flabby hips with a tight girdle, that she isn't putting black pencil on a mole and trying to pass it off as a "beauty mark" or that she doesn't have a number of other physical imperfections which she tries to minimize somewhat?

We skinheads have a right to pretend that our few remaining strands of hair make us look less bald, if properly fluffed and distributed. It is difficult enough to live such a charade without being constantly reminded that we are not fooling anyone but ourselves.

When the critics stop trying to hide their liabilities or disguise them as assets, I'll cut off my silly flap of hair. — Bald Is Beautiful Or A.S.F. In Chicago

Hello, Beautiful: You just hang on to that silly flap of hair and drape it any way you please. It's your head. The same goes for women who "stuff with cotton what God's forgotten." I'm in favor of people dealing with their "inadequacies" in any manner that makes them feel better. But men who "drape" their hair should be aware of bending, excessive activity or getting caught in a high wind could easily blow their cover.

Dear Ann Landers: Why don't the anti-abortion people accept the fact that the best way to reduce the number of abortions in this country is by educating teenage girls so they won't get pregnant?

I just read a report called "11 Million Teenagers" by the Alan Guttmacher Institute in New York. The report said there are at least 11 million sexually active teenagers in the United States and pregnancies among this group are "epidemic." Will you please put these facts before the American people:

Babies born to teen mothers are two to three times more likely to die in their first year than babies born to mothers in their 20s.

The death risk for teen mothers is 60 per cent higher than that for mature women.

Pregnancy is the common cause of young women dropping out of school.

Teenage mothers face a much greater risk of unemployment, poverty, welfare dependency than mature mothers.

Teenage marriages are two to three times more likely to fail than those contracted by couples in their 20s.

Teen mothers are likely to have larger families than mature mothers and are less able to cope with their children.

Thank you for your cooperation, Miss Landers. — A Concerned Citizen In Corpus Christi

Dear Concerned: At the risk of boring my readers to death I will say it again. Information is good. Ignorance is bad. To assume that giving teenagers "the facts" Will encourage experimentation is nonsense. They are experimenting WITHOUT facts — and THAT'S dangerous.

A report on elderly love

Those snoopy surveytakers inquired into the private lives of married couples beyond the age of retirement. Among those husbands and wives who'd given up the romantic activity they'd enjoyed in bygone years, it was the men, not the women, who proved to be responsible. As for those couples who'd not given up, half of them revealed to the pollsters that they'd become even more amorous from year to year beyond the age of 65.

To the Australian Aborigine, a stick that is held in the right hand is a male stick while a stick that's held in the left hand is a female stick.

Takes a sloth two weeks to digest what it eats, remember.

COLOR MINDED

Q. "What's 'chromrsthesia'?"

A. An oddball condition in relatively few people. Reportedly, certain colors spring to their minds when they hear certain sounds or see certain objects or touch certain textures or taste certain substances. The noise of a chain saw might make them think red, for instance. Or a picture of a horse and buggy might make them think green, no matter what the real color. So on.

Maybe you've seen pictures of erupting volcanoes that seem to be spewing out flames. But in fact, volcanoes don't do that. If there's fiery color, it's no doubt the reflection of molten lava on vapor clouds.

How many musical instruments can you identify that were named after the men who invented them? Sousaphone. Saxophone. Any others?

Twice as many college students as citizens in general commit suicide.

CUSTOMS

Customs officials draw a simple distinction between "chiselers" and "smugglers." Chiselers try to sneak into the country undeclared items for their personal use. Smugglers bring stuff in for profit, if they can. Chiselers are fined. Smugglers are jailed.

You possibly knew that 97 per cent of the teenage girls in this country use deodarants, but were you aware of how frequently? An average of 10 times a week each.

Was socially acceptable 100 years ago for a man to dye his mustache, curl his hair and wear sachet under his lapels, but any woman then who used rouge or French perfume was considered fast, if not trashy. Wasn't fair.

Dr. Miller

Bee sting could be storm-related

DEAR DR. MILLER: Twice last fall, Skid Row (my hound) was stung by bees. Both times, it was just before a storm. Could the storms have had anything to do with it, or was Skid Row just unlucky? — B.N.

DEAR B.N.: There are many reasons why a dog might be stung by a bee — like finding and attacking one. Skid Row was definitely unlucky — though the storms may have had some bearing. Bees do become more irascible just prior to a storm. This is related to the changes in their individual electric field, which is altered by the approaching storm.

DEAR DR. MILLER: I have a lot of trouble with sick tropical fish, even though I try to keep water conditions just right. I find that a lot of my fish, a lot of new ones especially, get sick, and then I end up with nothing but sickies, which I lose. What does a person like me do about this? I know I'm not the only one. — W.C.

DEAR W.C.: The risk of introducing new or old disease problems along with any new fish is always present. New fish invariably have been subjected to stresses and conditions making them susceptible to invasion, primarily by parasitic, viral, fungal, or bacterial invaders. Even those who seem perfectly healthy initially should be placed in a holding tank and kept separated from your established aquariums for a comparatively short quarantine period, of, say, about two weeks. The water conditions and care given these new fish should be at least as good as your standard tanks to give them every chance for survival.

Should these new fish begin to show signs of illness, you will not have introduced new problems into your old tanks.

The quarantine tank setup should be as close as possible to the conditions in your other tanks so those new fish passing the initial waiting period with flying fins won't have heavy additional stresses when it's finally safe to transfer them from the holding to your permanent tanks.

DEAR DR. MILLER: I've heard cheap white vinegar is as good as anything in the final cleanup of accidental piddling puddles? — L.V.

DEAR L.V.: Agreed. As a pooch piddle puddle neutralizer, white vinegar is better than many and cheaper than most.

Pocketing pocket computer

Among a number of vital devices in our culture that I have not yet caught up with is something called the pocket computer, an ominous little gadget that adds, subtracts and multiplies in your pocket, so be careful. Since I still have a tendency to count on my fingers, I find the clicking electronic brain far too complicated for my humdrum existence.

I occasionally play bridge with a mathematical genius who can add volumns of overtricks, small slams and down-two-doubled at a glance, but he loves to drag out his little computer and tick it off. Ticks me off, too. He only uses it when he knows he has won the evening. If he observes that my partner and I have triumphed, he glances casually over the score sheet, mutters, "Well, pretty close, I guess," then crumples the paper and hurls it into the fire.

My hate, if I owned one, would be off to the scientists who devised the pocket computer, but since the biggest mathematical problems I encounter in my workday world are adding up my golf score or figuring the tip on a restaurant tab, I am in no great rush to get a computer. (Several suspicious golf opponents have offered to chip in and buy one for me.)

The electronic brain — a rather revolting expression — can give instant square roots. Grand. I mean, I need to figure so many square roots. People are constantly saying to me, "What's the square root of 13?" Total strangers approach me on the street to ask, "What is 118 the square root of?" I suppose square roots might provide entertaining cocktail party chitchat for mathematicians, but I can think of a lot more exciting overtures to that cute blonde in the peek-a-boo blouse than marching up to her, computer in hand, and asking, "Want to know the square root of 578, honey?"

A pocket computer will figure discounts, tax nets, expense proration and allocation, compounded interest and currency conversion in foreign countries. All extremely useful to some people, I'm sure, but not really relevant to my life style — if you can call it style. After figuring Reggie Jackson's batting average, the calculator would be just something to bulge in my jacket pocket like a .45 automatic. As for converting foreign currency, as long as Tijuana bartenders still convert the Yankee dollar into a couple of tequilla sunrises, I have no international problems.

One sophisticated talent of the calculating calculator that intrigues me is its tiny memory bank where you store facts and figures for future recall. This I could use. My memory for numbers is not outstanding — I frequently have to look up my zip code. With an electronic memory bank, I would be able to conjure up all the important figures instantly — my age, my golf score, Liv Ullmann's measurements, my telephone number.

Having concluded that the memory bank was worth the price of the investment, I sat down to write a check for one to be ordered through the mail. The instructions were a morass of finance charges, annual percentages and periodic rates — N.Y. and VT. 0.62% (7.5%), Md. Minn. and W. Va., O .66% (8%) and Mo., 0.75% (9%) on amounts over $500 — until my mind whirled.

Not having a pocket calculator to solve the dilemna, I decided not to buy a pocket calculator.

Dr. Lamb

What causes bad breath?

DEAR DR. LAMB—My daughter is 24 and has had bad breath for several years. None of the products on the market seem to help for very long.

When she had a check-up with her doctor she asked him about this but he couldn't seem to find out what is causing this.

She has a bit of a weight problem so she watches her diet but she says she has no problem with her bowels, which sometimes happens when people don't eat the right food. I am wondering if you have any solution to this problem?

DEAR READER — Bad breath is a symptom, not a diagnosis. It is also very common. Unfortunately some people have it and are unaware they are offensive to others.

Your daughter was correct in asking her doctor about it and I am sorry she didn't get more help. It is also true that the available mouthwashes and breath sweeteners are of limited help. They just mask the odor temporarily and do not do anything to correct the cause.

The cause can be from the teeth. This may be from infected pockets around the roots that a person cannot clean out himself. A low grade infection is present along with decaying material. This is pyorrhea and it needs to be treated by a dentist. So, one thing a person with bad breath should do is see the dentist to correct any existing dental problems.

Beyond that the problem may be a low grade infection in the sinuses. As the air flows through the nose or back of the throat it may pick up unpleasant odors from such infections.

Mouth breathing may cause bad breath. The normal secretions in the back of the throat may dry up and this may allow bacteria to grow there that create an odor.

Chronically infected tonsils may be a source of bad breath. Any significant infection can release unpleasant odors. However, if the tonsils are not infected, taking them out will not help a bad breath problem.

Beyond the teeth, throat, nose and sinuses there are possible problems with the lungs. Any infection of the lungs, such as chronic lung disease, can cause bad odors that pass out of the lung with each breath.

The lungs are a major source of odors. Remember that the odor of alcohol on a person's breath comes from the alcohol vapors being released from the blood going into the lungs and into the air that the person exhales. This is the basis for the breath test for alcohol consumption.

You can breathe out the odor of any chemical from the body. A person with diabetic acidosis will have an odor to the breath similar to alcohol because chemcials of incomplete metabolism (ketones) are relased from the blood into the air. Similarly chemicals from liver disease may cause the breath to have a particular "fruity" odor.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 9-4, Halitosis, to give you more complete information. Others who want this information or want it sent to someone who needs it can send 50 cents for it with a long, stamped, addressed envelope for mailing to whoever you want to have it. Just send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 326, San Antonio, TX 78292.

My advice to everyone who has a breath problem is to have a medical and dental evaluation. The causes of this social problem are many and some are mor important than just having a socially embarrasing problem.

Astrographs

By Bernice Bede Osol
For Thursday, Feb. 24, 1977

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Unless they are financial experts, don't let anyone advise you on investments or disbursing funds today. This includes friends and family.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) The intentions of new acquaintances today may not be as honorable as yours. Try to analyze their motives.

GEMINI (May 2June 20) Actions taken in anger or out of spite will almost certainly boomerang. Your secret today is to be forgiving and understanding.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Be realistic regarding your aspirations today. Things may not happen as quickly or be as rewarding as you anticipated.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) In an important career matter today the odds are likely to be stacked against you. Take care how you handle the situation.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You're a little harsh today on subordinates and co-workers. You may come down on them too heavily and later be sorry.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Neither a borrower nor a lender be today. The former category may put your reputation in jeopardy and the latter brings only headaches.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) It doesn't necessarily follow that your opinions reflect those of the majority today. You could find this definitely isn't the case.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) If using new tools or materials today, be especially safety-conscious. Something serious could happen if your work habits are shoddy.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Departing from your usually prudent financial practices today could prove disastrous. Hew to the safe and conservative line.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) If you have anything important to do today, go it alone as much as possible. Assistants would only hamper your productivity.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Rivet your attention on what you're doing, afoot or in a car. It's the kind of day you could absentmindedly walk into a door.

Your Birthday, Feb. 24, 1977

This year, someone who is well-established may approach you with an interesting proposition. On the other hand, avoid Johnny-come-latelys or fly-by-nights.

South should have raised two notrump to three instead of bidding three diamonds. He had honors in all suits and no singleton. His three-diamond bid got him to four spades and gave Alan Sontag and Peter Weichsel a chance for some successful razzle-dazzle defense.

It started with trick one. Peter opened the deuce of hearts. The five was played from dummy and Alan falsecarded with the queen. The play couldn't fool his partner and did fool declarer who took the trick with the ace and led the five of clubs. Peter hopped right up with the ace and led the deuce of diamonds.

Peter knew South would go right up with dummy's ace. South did just that and proceeded to cash dummy's top clubs in order to discard that same queen of diamonds. Then South led a trump from dummy.

Alan ducked and South was in with the king. He led a heart with every intention of finessing dummy's 10. After all he was sure that Peter's original heart lead had been from the jack.

At this point the hand collapsed. Peter ruffed and led a fourth club. Alan ruffed with the ace of trumps while poor South discarded a heart. Not that it did him any good. Alan led back a heart and Peter was sure to score the setting trick with his jack.

Ask the Jacobys

A New Jersey reader wants to know why a bid of three notrump that counts 100 doesn't outrank a bid of four clubs that counts 80.

The answer is that since the invention of contract in 1925 the bid for the greater number of tricks has always been the winning bid. Between bids for the same number the rank is notrump, spades, hearts, diamonds and clubs.

AZUSA PACIFIC COLLEGE has eight new members named to the college board of trustees, including the first women to be selected in the college's 78-year history.

Assuming immediate responsibilities on the 54-member board are Mrs. Faye Bert, Upland, Mrs. Betty Jo Botzbach, San Marino, The Rev. Paul Bullman, Pacoima, Richard Capid, Greenwood, Ind., the Rev. Arthur Carl, Dublin, Mrs. Emma Haggard, Azusa, Mrs. Joyce Landorf, Hacienda Heights, and Augie Sodero, Claremont.

The Azusa Pacific College board of trustees, headed by John Morse of Ventura, is composed of individuals who are business, professional and church leaders from California, Oregon and Indiana. In addition, a representative from each of the college's supporting denominations, Brethren in Christ Church, Church of God, Evangelical Methodist Church, Free Methodist Church, Missionary Church, Salvation Army, and the Wesleyan Church are represented.

Eleven new members have joined the board of trustees at the SCHOOL OF THEOLOGY at Claremont in a major reorganization which includes a change in chairmanship.

Marion R. Walker, Ventura rancher, is the new chairman, following the mandatory retirement of Lawrence T. Cooper of San Marino.

A new rotation plan for board membership turned up the vacancies filled last month.

The new trustees under the board's rotation system, named in January are:

Elizabeth Hay Bechtel, Santa Barbara, active in Biblical archeology and the Dead Sea Scrolls project at Claremont; Peter Chen, board of global ministries, United Methodist Church, New York; William M. Croxton, trustee, Jameson Trust, Pasadena; Orrin K. Earl Jr., general contractor, O.K. Earl Corp., Pasadena; William M. Laub, president, Southwest Gas Corp., Las Vegas; George Messler, medical director. U.S. Life Insurance Co., Pasadena; Howard E. Nevonen, president, H.E. Nevonen Insurance Co., Los Angeles; John J. Stanford, president, John J. Stanford Ltd., Honolulu; Franklin C. Stark, Oakland attorney; and Lawrence Wilson, vice president and director of urban affairs, United California Bank, Los Angeles.

Walter Howell, a LA VERNE COLLEGE student, is a semifinalist for the Harry S. Truman Memorial Scholarship.

This is a permanent education scholarship designed to provide opportunities for outstanding students who are preparing for careers in public service.

One scholarship is awarded to a resident applicant in each state. Each scholarship will cover tuition, fees, books, and room and board up to a maximum of $5,000 per year.

The 15 Independent Colleges of Southern California will share in a Union Oil Co. of California Foundation grant totalling $25,000.

CLAREMONT MEN'S COLLEGE, Occidental College, POMONA COLLEGE and University of Redlands will receive designated assistance for science, engineering and business career areas. Chapman College is included for an undergraduate research program in chemistry.

These colleges will also share in the foundation's unrestricted general support to all 15 ICSC colleges which also include: CLAREMONT GRADUATE SCHOOL, Immaculate Heart College, LA VERNE COLLEGE, Loyola Marymount University, Mount St. Mary's College, Pepperdine University, PITZER COLLEGE, SCRIPPS COLLEGE, Westmont College and Whittier College.

Economic consultant Patrick M. Boarman, will join the political studies and economics field group at PITZER COLLEGE for the spring semester.

Now president of Patrick M. Boarman Associates, international business consultants, he previously served as director of research and senior economist of the Center for International Business, Pepperdine University and was professor of economics on the faculties of the University of Wisconsin, Long Island University, Bucknell University and the University of Geneva (Switzerland).

Montclair group to discuss Expo 81

The Montclair Community Action Committee will hold a public forum March 3 to discuss the proposed international exposition at the Ontario Motor Speedway.

The 7:30 p.m. meeting in the council chambers on Expo 81 was called at the request of the City Council. A representative of the Expo 81 Committee will attend to make a brief presentation and answer questions.

The committee is interested in soliciting community participation in this public forum. Following the meeting the committee will analyze the positive and negative effects of Expo 81 and, in light of community opinion, make a recommendation to the City Council to support or oppose the event.

Members of the council have said that Expo 81 will have a substantial impact on Montclair and surrounding communities. They have indicated that the City of Montclair will soon leave its perch of no position and take a definite stand on the proposed class one fair that is consistent with the feelings of Montclair residents.

Interested citizens are encouraged to attend the meeting, ask questions and express opinions about the fair.

Only human to err...?

NEW YORK (AP) — Widely available sophisticated calculators can make mistakes, warns Electronics magazine.

Discussing hand-held calculators, the publication quotes William Kahan, professor of mathematics and computer science at the University of California, Berkeley, who says these calculators "produce surprisingly wrong answers surprisingly often in the process of performing basic calculations."

These errors, he notes, are most prevalent in the more complex mathematical, engineering, scientific, and financial functions.

Library holds annual Gingerbread Sociable

One of Pomona Public Library's most popular annual events for young people, the Laura Ingalls Wilder Gingerbread Sociable, will be held Saturday from 2 to 4 p.m.

"We plan an old-fashioned county fair type atmosphere this year, with something of interest for everyone who comes," said Frances Dailey, children's librarian.

Author Richard Chase will be telling stories as one of the activities scheduled.

Also planned are performances by square dancers and two movies, entitled "Bridge of Adam Rush" and "Johnny Appleseed."

Craft demonstrations will be held, including quilting and making dolls from apples and corn husks.

Free gingerbread and apple cider will be served courtesy of the Pomona Friends of the Library, sponsors of the event since its inception 11 years ago.

The event, and the library's children's department, are named for Laura Ingalls Wilder, the late author of the "Little House" books, which also inspired the popular television series "Little House on the Prairie."

For information about Saturday's event, persons may call 620-2017.

Walnut board candidates' forum slated

The 10 persons seeking election to three seats on the Walnut school board have been invited to attend a candidates' forum Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in room 7-8 at Walnut High School.

Sponsored by the Walnut Valley Women's Club, the forum will also include a presentation by Walnut Schools Supt. David Brown on the district's revenue limit increase election.

Each candidate will be given five minutes to present his or her campaign platform. Questions will be received from the audience.

LEPIRE for Mayor Mar. 8

There are times when care means everything

One visit convenience is a part of caring at a difficult time.
That's why Rose Hills Memorial Park offers beautiful chapels, a modern mortuary and crematory, dignified mausoleums and flower shops, all in one peaceful and quiet setting.
Dignity, understanding, consideration and care . . .
A Rose Hills tradition for more than half a century.

No discounts on oil—Iran

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — The National Iranian Oil Co. said Tuesday it will give no discounts on oil exports to spur lagging sales and will go ahead with the oil cartel's second-stage price increase of 5 per cent in July.

Iran and most other members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries — OPEC — decided in December to boost their prices 10.4 per cent as of Jan. 1 and by 5 per cent more in July.

But Saudi Arabia, the biggest exporter, and the United Arab Emirates refused to go along and limited their increases to a total of 5 per cent.

Apparently because of the split, Iranian oil production dropped sharply in early January. Parviz Mina, vice chairman of the national oil company, said production was increasing again but was still at least 500,000 million barrels short of the goal of 5.5 million barrels a day.

Mina said that according to the OPEC decision Iranian light crude increased in January from $11.62 a barrel to $12.81, and would increase further in July to $13.41 a barrel.

According to U.S. experts, an 8 per cent increase in OPEC prices translates into a penny-a-gallon increase in the price of gasoline in the United States. A 15 per cent rise would bring a two-cent increase, and other fuel costs would rise proportionately.

High court to review retirement ruling

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today agreed to review a lower court's ruling that virtually all retirement plans forcing employes to quit working before age 65 are unlawful.

The high court voted to hear an appeal by United Air Lines from a decision by the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals that its plan providing for retirement of some employes at age 60 is invalid.

The Labor Department has estimated that more than 11 million workers are covered by retirement plans requiring retirement before age 65. "Until the court resolves the question, numerous employers face uncertainty as to the validity of their retirement plans."

The airline said the 4th Circuit's decision conflicts with decisions reached by other circuit courts.

Harris S. McMann of Alexandria, Va., a United employe from 1944 until he turned 60 in 1973, sued the airline. He charged that his forced retirement under a plan he joined in 1964 violated the Age Discrimination in Employment Act of 1967.

McMann sued for reinstatement and back pay.

The company, which won its case in a federal trial court only to have the appeals court reverse in favor of McMann, argued that its plan was a good-faith retirement program which had been in effect some 25 years before the antidiscrimination law was passed.

In essence, the 4th Circuit ruled that all plans requiring retirement before age 65 are suspect unless employers can prove the plans are grounded in reasons other than age.

Nixon fund to pay Watergate four $200,000

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lawyers for former President Richard M. Nixon's 1972 campaign fund have agreed to pay $200,000 in an out-of-court legal settlement to four men recruited for the original Watergate burglary.

"This settlement provides what we have been saying all along, that the Cubans were tricked into participating in the Watergate entries," their lawyer, Daniel Schultze, said Tuesday.

The civil case had been scheduled to go on trial Thursday before U.S. District Judge Charles Richey.

The original lawsuit filed by Bernard L. Barker, Eugenio Martinez Virgilio Gonzalez and Frank Sturgis asked $2 million dollars in damages, mainly from former officials of the 1972 Committee to Re-elect the President.

The list of defendants in the case read like a Who's Who of the Watergate scandals which drove Nixon from office. They included former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, former Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans, retired CIA official E. Howard Hunt, G. Gordon Liddy and Jeb Stuart Magruder.

All served as officials of the Committee to Re-elect the President, now known as the 1972 Campaign Liquidation Trust

In their suit, the four Miami men, often referred to as the foot soldiers of Watergate, alleged that they believed they were working for the National Security Agency or the CIA when recruited for the June 17, 1972, break-in at Democratic National Committee headquarters.

All four said they had participated in CIA operations against the Castro government in Cuba, including the 1961 Bay of Pigs invasion. All served more than a year in prison after pleading guilty to charges stemming from their part in the burglary.

Schultze said the size of the settlement shows "we could have proved our case in court."

Executions possible in California—Brown

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. said today it is possible there will be executions in California while he is governor despite his personal objection to capital punishment.

In an interview on the NBC "Today" show, the Democratic governor said he will enforce the death penalty with compassion if capital punishment is reinstated in California.

"I'll carry out the law. I will give no blanket pardons," he said in the interview recorded in his Capitol office.

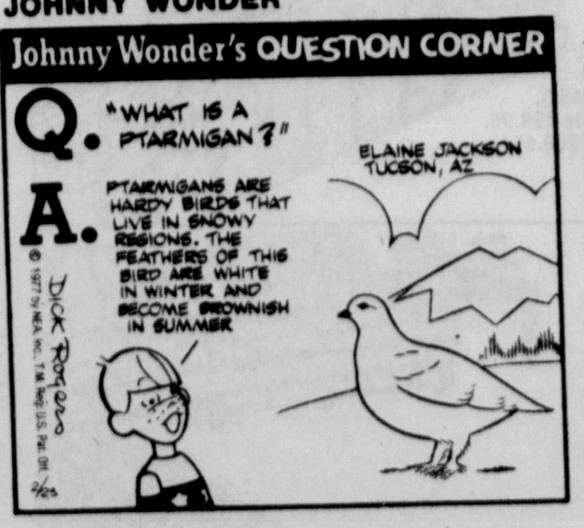
JOHNNY WONDER



A ptarmigan (pronounced TAR muh gan) is an unusual bird closely related to the grouse.

You probably thought it a resident of the barren tundra of the far North. But one of the three North American kinds, the white-tailed ptarmigan, is often found in the high mountain ranges of our western states.

In the winter the feathers of this hardy, 10-inch-long bird are white like the snow. Feathered even to its toes, the ptarmigan is protected from the freezing temperatures of its mountain home.

The stiff feathers on its toes act like snowshoes, allowing the ptarmigan to walk on top of the soft snow in search of leaves and buds to eat. Its winter coat blends with the snowy background and protects the ptarmigan from such keen-eyed enemies as the fox and hawk.

In spring, the ptarmigan loses white feathers and grows new brown ones, providing it with a year-round camouflage.

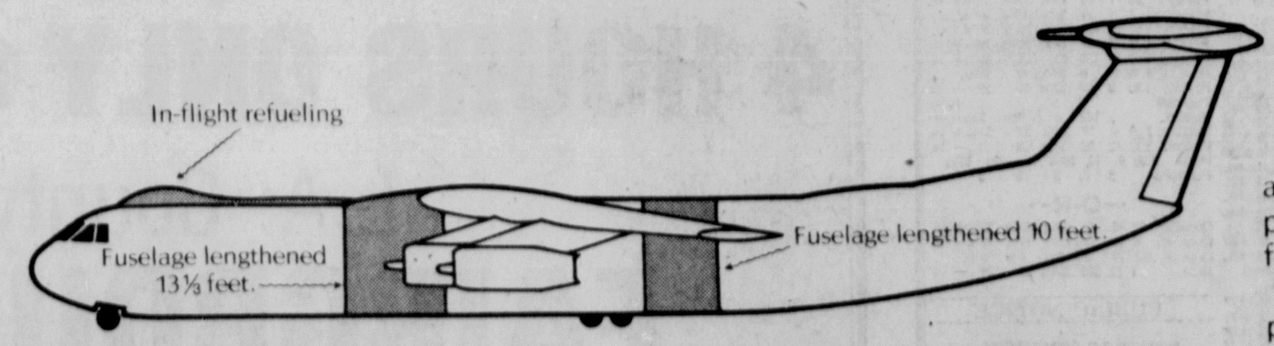
The StarLifter Stretch.

Ahead of schedule and under budget.



America's first fanjet airlifter now can carry a lot more a lot farther.

The airlift experts at the Lockheed-Georgia Company, working with the U.S. Air Force Logistics Command, have taken a C-141 StarLifter out of the Air Force fleet and stretched its fuselage 23⅓ feet.

This adds more than 2100 cubic feet inside the cargo compartment, an increase of 33%. Now StarLifter can carry bulkier cargo and three more cargo pallets for a total of 13.

The Lockheed airlift experts also have fitted the StarLifter with in-flight refueling. This means StarLifter can reach almost any destination nonstop. And with maximum payloads. The prototype StarLifter with these improvements rolled out in January—two months ahead of schedule and $3.5 million under budget.

Stretching the present Air Force fleet of StarLifters would add the carrying capacity of 90 more C-141 StarLifters to this country's airlift capability at a fraction of the cost of building new planes—and without added costs for training, crews and maintenance.

Lockheed's ability to "stretch" the performance of proven aircraft has saved millions and millions of dollars for nations and airlines. It costs far less in money and time to make new models out of an existing plane than to start from ground zero. The StarLifter stretch is but the latest Lockheed proof of this money-saving, time-saving idea.

Making great airlifters even greater.

One of the technological achievements of the 55,000 workers at Lockheed.

Vachon enjoys shutout streak

LOS ANGELES (AP) — When one goaltender praises his opposite number, it's time to sit up and take notice, especially when the goalie with the fancy words is on a hot streak himself.

Following his last two games, St. Louis goalie Eddie Johnston had been the talk of the National Hockey League, but Tuesday night he was beaten 4-0 by Los Angeles' Rogie Vachon, and Johnston began passing out compliments.

"I thought I was hot," said Johnston, who had a string of 115 consecutive scoreless minutes snapped, "but Rogie has been playing tremendous hockey. When he's hot like that I don't think there's anybody better in the league.

"I saw him in the Canada Cup series when he was named most valuable player, and he deserved that."

Although the Montreal Canadiens have lost only seven of their 61 games this season — and are working on a 15-game unbeaten streak — Johnston says that "anything can happen in the playoffs, especially if Rogie is hot like that."

Vachon posted his third shutout in his last four games, his second in a row and fifth in his last 11 games in beating the Blues for the second time this season.

Four second period goals were all he needed, including Marcel Dionne's 37th of the season.

Vachon now has six blanks this sesaon, one shy of his own club record. The 5-foot-7, 166-pounder has allowed just 19 goals in his last 11 games.

"I had a lot of help tonight," said Vachon modestly. "When things go well, they go well, huh? They had some great chances in the first 30 minutes, but the puck just didn't go in. It's nice to see our defensemen taking their men out at the blue line and the forwards coming back on defense."

The Kings improved their season record to 22-27-11 for 55 points and enabled them to move within eight points of second-place Pittsburgh in the Norris Division.

The Kings took a 1-0 lead eight minutes into the second period when Vic Venasky's 25-footer snapped Johnston's scoreless string at 115 minutes. Then, in a 2:48 span, Glen Goldup, Dionne and Gene Carr all scored.

Vachon's goals-against average dropped to 2.76 as he got back-to-back shutouts for the second time in his career. Last Saturday night he beat Boston 2-0.

St. Louis, leader in the Smythe Divison, is 27-28-6 for 60 points. Blues' Coach Emile Francis also praised Vachon: "He's quick, he has a lot of experience and he's got good reflexes. He didn't lose his cool in the second period, when we had some chances to score."

King's Coach Bob Pulford said, "We won the game as a team defensively. But Rogie played a hell of a game. Rogie has been incredible since he came to the Kings."

That was back in 1971-72 from Montreal in a trade for four players, none of whom are in the league any more.

Turner moved here for sports

Few players in the history of CIF basketball have had the kind of season statistically that Robert Turner has just completed.

Only a sophomore, the 6-foot-2 center at Calvary Baptist High in La Verne averaged averaged 35 points and 28 rebounds per game for the Cougars, who compete in the Christian League.

Turner set a CIF single-game rebound record when he snared 47 against Victor Valley Christian, and scored a season-high 59 points against Hesperia Christian. He also scored 51 points in a game against Woodcrest Christian.

Turner's appearance on the local scene was actually brought about by a municipal election held last August in his home town of Rockford, Ill.

The Rockford Board of Education was forced to eliminate all interscholastic sports and other extracurricular activities when a referendum failed and the schools found themselves $7 million short of budgeted needs.

Turner was then attending Jefferson High in Rockford but in November he moved to Pomona to live with his father (his parents are divorced).

He was one of many athletes in Rockford schools who moved to other areas to be able to participate in interscholastic sports.

"Lots of people moved then," said Turner. "Good athletes moved out of state or to Freeport," a city about 25 miles from Rockford.

"My father has a niece who was already going to Calvary Baptist and liked it, so I wound up here too," Turner said.

Turner's athletic talents don't end with basketball. He started attending Calvary Baptist in time to play just one football game, but gained 143 yards on seven carries as a fullback. He is also an outfielder on the Cougar baseball team.

He keeps busy

Besides all his sports activities, Turner holds a parttime job working with his father at Robco Auto Repair in Pomona.

"I work there after practice until closing time," said Turner. "I'm usually there from about 5 to 8. It's all right — sometimes I get to work on the cars."

Between school work, sports and work, Turner has little spare time. "The only friends I have are at the school," he said. "I don't have much time to go out."

Robert said he likes his school and prefers California to Illinois. Would he want to go back if Rockford had sports again?

"No, I'd want to stay here," he said. "I was glad to get out of the snow, and I think my chances are better here to get a college scholarship.

"My father wants me to go to UCLA," said Turner. "I'd like that."

HL makes change

Speaking of basketball, that sport will have a slightly different look next year in the Hacienda League. The league's principals have approved a schedule that gives each school two league basketball games before Christmas (Dec. 14 and Dec. 16).

Because the CIF moved the final date for basketball games forward one week, the alternative was either to have three league games instead of two during two of the weeks in January or February or to schedule two league games in December.

The administrators chose the latter route, though most coaches and athletic directors favored the former.

"That's going to knock a lot of tournaments in the head," said Alta Loma head coach Jeff McCall. "We played in the Cabrillo Classic that week this season.

"It sure won't give us much time to get ready for the first league games," McCall continued. "And if your football team goes a week or two in the playoffs, you'd only have the football players a couple of weeks before the first league basketball game."

The San Dimas Tournament of champions may be affected if other leagues also schedule league games for the week of the tourney. The seeded portion of the T of C is scheduled for Dec. 10, 12 and 13 and the open portion will run Dec. 14-17.

"Most leagues (including the San Antonio) will set their schedules at league meetings next week," said San Dimas athletic director Bob Baiz, T of C director, "so we'll find out then if anyone has to pull out."

If no one has to withdraw from the tourney, the open field will consist of Ganesha, Pasadena, Verbum Dei, Long Beach Poly, Compton, Downey, El Modena and Roosevelt of Fresno.

Set for the seeded portion are Damien, San Dimas, Rowland, South Hills, Lynwood, El Monte and North of Riverside. El Dorado was the eighth team in the seeded field, but had to pull out because of league conflicts. No replacement has been found.

Hot Spurs too much for Lakers

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — "It's the best game any team has played against us all year," Los Angeles Coach Jerry West said.

He was referring to the Lakers' 135-103 National Basketball Association loss to the San Antonio Spurs Tuesday night before a standing room only crowd of 10,966.

The Spurs saddled the Lakers with their largest losing margin this season. The previous worst deficit was 23 points.

"We were never in this game," West added. "The Spurs have as much talent as any team in this league. And tonight they didn't take any prisoners."

San Antonio killed Los Angeles in the third period by shooting an overwhelming 64 per cent.

"We were unbelievable, just incredible," San Antonio Coach Doug Moe said. "It was the best effort we've had all year."

The Spurs held a 62-49 halftime advantage that was constructed from 56 per cent shooting.

San Antonio put the Lakers away at the outset of the third period by hitting eight of its first nine shots. The Spurs outscored the Lakers 16-4 and held a 78-53 lead after four minutes of that quarter.

San Antonio was sparked by George Gervin with 25 points and Larry Kenon and Coby Dietrick with 17 and 16, respectively.

Los Angeles was paced by Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, who scored 29 points in 29 minutes and added 15 rebounds. He was supported by guard Bo Lamar, who finished with 20.

The victory was San Antonio's first ever against the Lakers after two previous setbacks.

Garvey stays in Dodger blue

Progress Bulletin
Sports
Pomona, California ■ Wednesday, February 23, 1977

By The Associated Press

Steve Garvey, Dave LaRoche and Paul Lindblad all have signed baseball contracts, but they seem to be headed in different directions.

Garvey has found a home in Los Angeles, LaRoche expects to be traded from the Cleveland Indians and Lindblad is up in the air at Texas.

"I feel a part of the family, and it's great to know I have the opportunity to finish my career with the Dodgers," the 28-year-old Garvey said after signing a six-year contract Tuesday.

The feeling was mutual at the management level.

"Steve, in my opinion, is Mr. Consistency," said Dodgers Vice President Al Campanis. "He always gives 100 per cent."

Although terms were not disclosed, Garvey's agent, Jerry Kapstein, said that negotiations were conducted on the "highest level," adding that it was a pleasure to negotiate with the Dodgers.

Garvey, a one-time Most Valuable Player in the National League, appeared in all 162 games last year for Los Angeles and hit .317, drove in 80 runs and rapped 13 homers.

LaRoche was hardly as happy as Garvey, signing a one-year contract with the Indians under protest. The left-handed reliever said he signed the one-year contract originally offered by Cleveland "so I can become a free agent at the end of this year and not have to take a 20 per cent pay cut for playing out my option."

Under the new baseball contract, there will be no option year in contracts signed now and in the future.

Lindblad said he had agreed to terms with the Texas Rangers, but the 12-year veteran relief pitcher added that the agreement "cannot become official until Bowie Kuhn has okayed this."

And, that lodges the script for a possible repeat confrontation between Oakland owner Charles O. Finley and baseball Commissioner Kuhn. Finley sold Lindblad to Texas last weekend for $400,000 and is threatening to take Kuhn to court, again, if the commissioner voids the sale in the "best interest of baseball" as he did in another Finley deal last summer.

The A's owner said Tuesday night that Lindblad has come to terms with the Rangers, and that their owner has refused Kuhn's request to discuss the deal. Kuhn has said he plans a hearing on the sale, and a spokesman for the commissioner said approval of the sale would be withheld until afterward.

While all this action was going on off the field, the California Angels were among three teams opening spring training Tuesday. And Manager Norm Sherry promised his players that it would not be easy.

"Our goal is to come out of here in the best shape possible," Sherry said Tuesday as he welcomed his players to their first day in camp.

The manager advised his team to come out running.

"Some clubs say, 'If we don't get them in April, we'll get them later," said Sherry. "I don't want that attitude on this team. I want to take advantage of the schedule."

The Angels, the first American team to open spring drills this year, face Seattle, Oakland, and the two last-place teams in 1976, Chicago and Milwaukee, in their first 21 games.

Along with a promise of hard work, Sherry also laid down some tough rules in the area of dress. He said that long hair was okay as long as it was not bushy and players could wear mustaches, but not beards.

Six California players remained unsigned as the American League team opened spring training in Holtville, Calif.— pitcher Sid Monge, infielders Dave Chalk and Mario Guerrero and outfielders Bruce Bochte, Danny Briggs and Gil Flores.

All except Guerrero and Flores, who played winter ball and were given permission to report later in the week, took part in the first workout under Manager Norm Sherry.

The thirty-eight players who took part in the opening drills had to battle 30 mile-per-hour winds. Only outfielder Joe Rudi and pitcher Dick Drago were missing from the list of 40 players invited to camp.

Rudi is in Oregon for a speaking engagement and is expected Friday when the balance of the squad reports. Drago was expected to report today.

Ganesha cagers play at MSAC

Ganesha High's CIF basketball playoff game against Brea-Olinda will be held in the Mt. San Antonio College gymnasium Friday at 8 p.m.

Tickets are on sale at Ganesha High. Prices are $2 for adults and $1 for students with activity cards.

Attorney warns players

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Washington attorney who successfully challenged the National Football League's college draft has cautioned members of the players' union that they may be forfeiting their right to sue the owners if the proposed new contract is approved.

In a four-page statement released Tuesday, Stuart Johnson Jr., attorney for Jim "Yazoo" Smith, said players drafted within the four-year statute of limitations provided under the antitrust laws would do well to consider whether the agreement could affect their existing right to sue the NFL and the club which drafted them for treble damages.

"If the proposed collective bargaining agreement purports to waive or limit such players individual rights of action under the antitrust laws, such players may wish to take a long hard look," he said. "This is particularly true of players who are trying to renegotiate long-term contracts after an outstanding season."

The last contract between the NFL and the Players Association expired Jan. 31, 1974. Players drafted since then, Johnson suggested, might be able to file suits much as Smith did for treble the difference between what they received and what they could have bargained for as a free agents in a free market.

Smith, a Washington Redskins' cornerback until he was injured in the final game of his rookie season in 1969, was awarded $276,000 in damages in U.S. District Court here last September, basically because the NFL draft prevented him from bargaining for his services. The case still is under appeal.

Ace punter signs Rams' contract

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Only 11 of Glen Walker's 57 punts this past college football season were returned, for a net of only five yards, so the University of Southern California punter would have been a prize draft choice for a National Football League team.

However, under a complicated series of rules, Walker wouldn't have been available for the NFL draft this year, yet he was a free agent, so the Los Angeles Rams signed the 25-year-old combination kicker to a contract Tuesday.

The Rams simply got to Walker before other NFL teams. Walker entered college in 1970, and would have been eligible for the NFL draft four years later, when his college class graduated. However, at that time, Walker was completing a three-year military hitch.

Then, one year ago, Walker was sought by the Rams, but the kicker decided to stay at USC for his senior year.

Walker is a placekicker, too. He hit 10 of 19 last season, four of them for 40 yards or more. And that could become an asset to the Rams because their regular placekicker, Tom Dempsey, has played out his option.

Dempsey makes his offseason home in New Orleans and would like to play in that city. If he leaves the Rams, Los Angeles could use a reliable placekicker.

In addition, punting has been a major weakness on an otherwise potent Ram squad the past few seasons. Two blocked punts in Dallas in the first playoff game last season made things tough for Los Angeles, although the Rams won 14-12. The following week, a blocked punt, a missed field goal and missed extra point spelled defeat in Minnesota.

Walker averaged just under 40 yards per kick in 1975 and 37.5 per boot in 1976, but USC Coach John Robinson said, "Walker's awesome the way he gets that ball up there so high and so long so consistently."

The high parabola the ball takes off Walker's foot means it stays in the air a longer amount of time, meaning excellent downfield coverage.

The Rams also announced the signing of Ian Sunter, a former punter from the Canadian Football League, and onetime Atlanta running back Brad Davis of Louisiana State.

Terms of the contracts were not revealed.

Taylor joins Rams' staff

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Rams have hired Lionel Taylor, a Pittsburgh Steelers assistant the past seven years, to coach the Rams' receiver corps.

Taylor replaces Leeman Bennett, who recently left the Rams to become head coach of the Atlanta Falcons.

"Lionel was a real asset to the Steelers offense," said Rams Coach Chuck Knox Tuesday. "He was a winner as a player, and he's a winner as a coach."

The 40-year-old Taylor played his college football at New Mexico Highlands, then began his 11-year professional career in 1959 with the Chicago Bears. After a year in the NFL, Taylor went to the rival AFL and became one of the new league's top receivers.

His 567 career receptions still ranks as the fourth best mark in pro football history.

Taylor finished his career with Houston of the AFL, then joined Chuck Noll's staff in Pittsburgh in 1970.

Thomas rates as top choice

Claremont's Ron Thomas was the first choice in the American Soccer League draft Tuesday in New York when he was selected by the expansion California Sunshine, the new Orange County entry.

Thomas, a senior at Pomona-Pitzer, was a four-year star for the Sagehens. Prior to that he was a prep standout at Claremont High.

He has also been drafted by the Los Angeles Aztecs of the North American Soccer League.

The Sunshine also selected Claremont-Mudd's David Goldstein as its third selection. Goldstein, who also coaches at Pomona High, was also drafted by the Aztecs.

Sports briefs

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Funeral services are scheduled Friday for Jack Banta, former University of Southern California and Ram halfback, who has died after a long illness. He was 59.

The flashy Banta, who died Tuesday, was one of the West Coast's top running backs in 1938-39-40, also was a punter.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The University of San Francisco's Bill Cartwright has been named Northern California Player of the Year and two of his teammates on college basketball's top-ranked team joined him on the all-district squad.

The Dons' Bob Gaillard was voted Coach of the Year as USF dominated awards announced today by Northern California basketball writers. USF is 27-0 with three regular season games remaining.

CLEVELAND — The Cleveland Barons declared themselves free agents and HNL Players Association director Alan Eagleson said 17 players had agreed not to play tonight's scheduled game against the Buffalo Sabres while the National Hockey League continued to meet in an attempt to head off the dissolution of the franchise.

NEW YORK — Sixteen-year-old apprentice jockey Steve Cauthen raised his 1977 winning total to 120 with two victories, including one on Root Cause, $3, in the $25,000 Donor Purse feature, at Aqueduct.

WASHINGTON — The convictions of two jockeys and three other men involved in fixing a February, 1975 race at Bowie Race Course were upheld by the U.S. Supreme Court.

AMARILLO, Tex. — District Court Judge George Dowlen overruled a defense motion to quash the cocaine possession indictment against Pittsburgh Steelers' defensive tackle Ernie Holmes.

PROVIDENCE, R.I. — Marvin Barnes agreed to surrender in Providence Superior Court on May 16 and start a one-year prison term.

Trojans go to daytime

LOS ANGELES — USC's defending Rose Bowl champions will play five of six home games in the afternoon in 1977 and aim at all day home games in the future, athletic director Richard Perry announced today.

"We made a thorough analysis of day versus night games," said Dr. Perry, "and we've concluded afternoon games are best for college football.

"We made the change for several reasons, but primarily to accommodate our fans who can now picnic before the game, have a relaxed dinner afterwards, and, in general, take part in more social activities.

"We also were concerned about making travel easier for our opponents. Iowa's team for example, didn't arrive home after a night game last fall until 6 Sunday morning.

"In addition, we wanted to accommodate the media, both locally and nationally, who run into strict deadline problems at night games."

The only home game at night this fall will be against Washington State on a weekend when UCLA is also playing in the Coliseum. Except for these rare conflicts when the Trojans and Bruins are both at home, or a possible switch for television, USC will play all day games in the future.

In recent years the Trojans had played their first two or three games at night, before switching to the afternoon later in the season.

Dr. Perry said he and his staff made a thorough study of the weather during the fall months before reaching the decision.

"Hot weather was our only concern," he said. "So we made a five-year analysis of temperatures. We found no major temperature difference between the average Saturday in September and the average Saturday in October or November.

"In fact, you're just as likely to get a hot day in late October as you are in early September."

Top intersectional visitor for USC this fall will be Alabama, the defending Liberty Bowl champion. Other visitors are Stanford, TCU, Washington State and Oregon. The USC-UCLA game is also a Trojan home game.

USC will run into a very difficult road schedule, starting with Missouri, only team to beat the second-ranked Trojans in 1976. Other road opponents are Gator Bowl champion Notre Dame, California, Washington, and Oregon State.

Poly uses revised lineup

By DON BRADLEY
PB Staff Writer

The same improvised lineup that netted Cal Poly two big victories last week will get the call Friday and Saturday night at Bakersfield and SLO in the games that decide the CCAA Championship.

Bronco coach Don Hogan made the announcement Tuesday at the weekly basketball luncheon at the Castaway Restaurant.

That means Charles Johnson and Dennis Weisse will be at the forward positions normally held down by Jack Gamulin and Henry Randolph.

Johnson usually starts at guard and Weisse has been a swingman for the Broncos. Paten Calloway has taken over Johnson's spot at guard.

Gamulin (flu), Randolph (ankle) and Broderick Hunter (bruised thigh) saw little or no action last week. Hogan said "all three probably will play this week" although he doesn't know how much.

Randolph, a premier rebounder, had eight boards and scored six points in 19 minutes Friday in the 53-50 win over Northridge but aggravated his injured ankle again.

"Injuries force us to go with the small lineup," commented Hogan. "But it's turned out to be a break so far. All year long we've been looking for the right chemistry.

"Unlikely as it seems, this group has it. They play good defense and they have tremendous speed. We had (fast) break after break against Northridge and Biola.

"It's just like going with three guards. And these guys can go for 40 minutes, too."

Johnny Daniels, Claremont-Mudd's little (5-7) senior guard, won Player of the Week acclamation. Daniels had 28 points and 16 assists in two games last week and grabbed nine rebounds in one.

Quoting the coaches:

DAVE WELLS, C-M — "Johnny (Daniels) has done a super job for us. Asking someone who has started most of the time to come off the bench is very difficult. But he's done everything we've asked.

"We lost our center, Ron Kasdorf, with an ankle injury in the La Verne game last week. We didn't know how bad it was because he played the whole game. But his foot is in a cast for four to six weeks.

"IN the next game, we ended up losing to Redlands by two points. It probably was one of our toughest losses. We set two goals at the beginning of the season. We wanted to have a winning season and end up at least 7-5 in the conference.

"We lose three (Kasdorf, Daniels and guard Bob Smith) of our top seven players through graduation. But we have a good looking, though small, frosh group."

LES NAGLER, POMONA-PITZER — "We all thought we should have done batter this year. But this has been a great group to work with, one of the best I've had. They're still working as hard at the end as they were at the beginning.

Center Ed McFadden has really turned it on the last four games averaging 15-20 points a game and has upped his average in the conference to 12 points a game.

McFadden and Tom Fink will be back next year and our jayvee team was stronger this year."

GENE VICTOR, MSAC — "This has been a very painful year with lots of injuries. Robert Vigil, who was hurt in the Grossmont game, won't be able to play in either of our final games this week.

"Our games with Orange Coast (tonight) and San Diego Mesa (Sat.) will determine whether we finish fourth, fifth or sixth. We can't finish below .500, but we're very disappointed.

"Dick Rockwood and Earner Mays have also been hurt a lot. We'll be starting four freshman this week the same as we did last week. I don't think we've ever finished under .500 in my 18 years here."

HOGAN, CAL POLY — "At least this year we'll be able to determine the championship ourselves and not have to depend on someone else to help us.

"We've got to win two games in order to tie for the title. But since we will have beaten SLO twice, we'll go to the playoffs.

"We have quite a crew ready to go to Bakersfield. This is the 'year of the payback.' (They beat us here) The guys are really up. This gang has turned itself around. We have the concentration that was missing before."

Yarborough builds lead

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Cale Yarborough's victory in the Daytona 500 has given him a commanding lead in the 1977 Grand National driving title chase of the National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing.

Yarborough, in a Chevrolet, held off Benny Parsons at Daytona International Speedway Sunday in winning the second of 30 races this year.

Yarborough, winner of his first Grand National driving title last year, also won the 1968 Daytona 500

Prep baseball season is here

The prep baseball season started in earnest Tuesday afternoon, as no less than five diamond contests were played locally.

In those games, Ontario bested Chino 6-2, Pomona downed San Dimas 5-3, Walnut waxed Hacienda Heights Wilson 13-5, Los Altos nipped Bonita 2-0 and Hacienda Heights Christian beat Calvary Baptist 11-4.

CHAFFEY DISTRICT TOURNEY
Thursday's pairings
Opening round
Pomona at Ontario, 3:15 p.m.
Claremont at Chaffey, 3:15 p.m.
Montclair vs. Alta Loma at John Galvin, 3:15 p.m.
Chino vs. Upland at Upland Memorial, 3:15 p.m.

Ontario and Chino each opened their baseball seasons Tuesday, and it was the Jaguars prevailing behind the sharp pitching of senior Mike Breslin.

Breslin limited the Cowboy attack to only six hits in posting the win, and also smacked a triple in one of his plate appearances.

Sean Severns cracked a home run for the Jags, while Roy Gomez had three hits, including a double. Gene St. Esteban led the Chino offense with a pair of doubles.

Both Ontario and Chino will return to action on Thursday in the Chaffey District Tourney.

Pomona rallied from a 3-0 deficit vs. San Dimas to even its season mark at 1-1. The Devils had lost to Fontana, 7-5, in their season opener last week.

A clutch two-run single by Joey Chapa in the last of the fifth gave Pomona a 4-3 lead. San Dimas pitchers set up that winning rally by walking four Devil batters.

Pomona hurlers Mike Keegan and Tim Lambert limited S.D. to seven hits. Lambert was especially sharp in a two-inning relief stint.

Lone extra-base hit in the contest was a triple by the Saints' Kevin Burke. San Dimas is now 0-2 on the year.

Pomona will be in action in the Chaffey Tourney on Thursday, San Dimas will be at home Friday vs. Schurr.

Walnut racked up 13 hits vs. Wilson to win easily in its season debut. Four Mustangs, Tony Rossi, Creg Fenwick, Lou Noble and Andy Crowe, had two hits apiece.

Fenwick was very sharp on the hill, hurling the first five innings and allowing only one hit. Walnut will resume baseball action on Saturday morning (11 a.m.) vs. Nogales.

Bonita could manage only three hits off Los Altos pitcher Jeff Gould as the Bearcats saw their season mark drop to 0-2.

Ralph Ortega slugged a double for the 'Cats, the lone extra-base knock in the game.

Bonita will continue its horsehide season on Friday at Edgewood (3:15 p.m.).

Calvary opened its season on a down note Tuesday, as the Cougars committed 11 errors in the loss at Hacienda Heights. Calvary's Ed Martinez led his squad offensively with three hits.

Other prep games Friday afternoon have Ganesha opening its season at home vs. Royal Oak, Garey debuting at home vs. Rowland and Damien (now 1-1 on the year) entertaining Cathedral. All those games will start at 3:15 p.m.

Boyd breaks record as 'Hen cagers win

Pomona-Pitzer's Brandon Boyd set an all-time career scoring mark as the Sagehen cagers finished the 1976-77 cage season with an easy 80-57 win over Caltech Tuesday night.

In other SCIAC action, Occidental routed Claremont-Mudd 93-67 and conference champ Whittier bounced Redlands 93-66.

Boyd pumped through 24 points vs. Caltech to become the all-time leading 'Hen scorer.

The senior forward finished his career with 1,289 points in 88 games, breaking Lamotta Jackson's old mark by one. Boyd receipted for his 24th point with 8:12 left in the contest, at which point the game was stopped and he was awarded the game ball.

The 'Hens, who finished at 8-16 for the year and tied for fourth in the SCIAC with Redlands, had 10 men make the scorebook. In addition to Boyd, center Ed McFadden was also in double figures with 10 points, on five of six shots from the floor.

Boyd, Steve Pinkston and Scott Pease all finished their four-year 'Hen careers in the contest.

Occidental ended Claremont-Mudd's slim NAIA playoff hopes with a convincing win on the Tigers' home court.

C-M finished the year at 12-13 and 6-6 in league, good enough for third place. The Stags were 5-21 last year.

Bob Smith led the Stags with 20 points Tuesday, while teammate John Spinoza added 18 and Don Butterfield 14. Butterfield led the Stags with eight rebounds.

C-M's Johnny Daniels had eight assists in the contest, giving him 113 for the year and tieing his C-M season assist mark.

Steve Snodgrass led Oxy with 18 points.

Chaffey now 6-3

SANTA ANA — Chaffey College defeated Santa Santa Ana, 6-3, Tuesday afternoon as the Panthers broke a 3-3 tie with a two-run eighth inning.

With the victory over the Dons, Chaffey improved its seasonal record to 6-3.

Orange Coast vs. East L.A. at varsity field, 10 a.m.
San Bernardino vs. Cypress at frosh field, 10 a.m.
MSAC vs. El Camino at varsity field, 2 p.m.
Chaffey vs. Pasadena at frosh field, 2 p.m.

Greg Walton led off the eighth with a double for the Panthers. After Joe Pollance walked, Jim Padula bounced into a force play which cut down Walton at third. Bob Branchetti hit a routine doubleplay ball to the Santa Ana shortstop. But the Dons' second baseman could not hold the shortstop's throw and the ball rolled out into rightfield. Pollance scored and Padula scored moments later on a grounder by Neal Weeks.

Chaffey's seven hit attack was paced by Rick Munoz (two-for-three) and Padula (two-for-five) with two doubles.

Mike Walters went the distance for the Panthers as he limited Santa Ana to six hits. Walters fanned eight and walked three.

Santa Santa Ana's Greg Barrington (two-for-four) and Gilbert Ramirez with a homerun were the only Dons to hammer Walters.

Chaffey returns to action in the MSAC Arrambide Tournament against Pasadena.

Tennis play hit by winds

RANCHO MIRAGE, Calif. (AP) — The wind was more the topic of conversaton than was the tennis after the first round of singles play was finished in the $250,000 Tennis Games.

Raul Ramirez, the top-seeded player in this event, braved 40-mile-per-hour winds Tuesday in this Palm Springs suburb as he scored a 6-4, 6-2 victory over Butch Walts.

"It was really a challenge," said Ramirez, formerly of the University of Southern California and captain of the Mexican Davis Cup team.

"I had to fight the wind at first, but then I started to get the hang of it, and I was able to use the wind."

Ramirez broke Walts' serve early, took a 3-0 lead and was never in trouble.

The original No. 1 seed in this tourney was Bjorn Borg, but he withdrew.

As in Monday's play, Tuesday's matches were delayed by high winds. In one match which started Monday, Peter Fleming of UCLA came from behind to beat Lito Alvarez of Argentina, 6-7, 7-5, 6-3. Alvarez had led 2-1 in the second set Monday when the wind stopped the match.

There were two minor upsets Tuesday. Eighth-seeded Wojtek Fibak of Poland was upset by Frew McMillan of South Africa, 6-4, 6-4, and 10th-seeded Mark Cox of Great Britain lost to Phil Dent 6-1, 6-0.

Earlier in the day, unseeded Billy Martin of UCLA upset No. 13 seed Cliff Drysdale of South Africa 6-4, 6-1. And in a match between two Australians, unseeded Ray Ruffels stopped 15th-seeded John Alexander 6-3, 3-6, 7-6.

Third-seeded Guillermo Villas of Argentina survived, however, sweeping past Marty Reissen of Evanston, Ill., 6-4, 6-2, and No. 4 Roscoe Tanner of Lookout Mountain, Tenn., took Brazil's Tomaz Koch 6-3, 6-4.

The No. 11 seed Bob Lutz defeated David Schneider of South Africa 6-3, 7-5.

Bonita girl cagers sharp

The Bonita High girls' basketball team improved its season record to 7-1 Tuesday afternoon with a lopsided victory over Glendora, 58-16.

Bonita dominated the contest as four players scored eight or more points. Nancy Matza was the top scorer with 13, followed by Marsha Huss with 11, Tricia Gough with eight and Mary Boyd with eight.

Glendora won the J.V. contest over Bonita, 43-38.

Bonita will host Chino on Thursday afternoon.

Fullerton beats Bronco women

By MARK GRIP
PB Correspondent

FULLERTON — The Cal Poly women's basketball team was in its non-conference game with Cal State Fullerton for the first 18 minutes Tuesday night.

A late first-half surge and an excellant second half enabled the powerfull Titans to rout the visiting Broncos, 81-56 in the Titan gymnasium.

Cal Poly was still in the game with two minutes to play in the half, trailing by only five points (31-26) when Fullerton poured in 10 straight points and go into the lockerroom on top 41-28.

The Broncos cut the deficit to nine (48-39) with 14 minutes left in the game. The Titans kept right on building their lead to 30 points (77-47) with 3:30 remaining. Fullerton outscored the visitors 14-2 during part of that stretch.

Poly coach Darlene May revealed part of her game plan before the game. "We're going to run straight at them. We like to come out of the gate fast, where as they're rather slow.

"We want to control the tempo", continued May. "We're going to run by them, not from them."

Cal Poly started the game right in stride with Fullerton and twice held leads of four points. The Broncos stayed within eight points until the two-minute spurt.

Titan Nancy Dunkle scored 11 in the first half and Brenda Martin added nine to lead their team. Robbie Beyer popped in 10 points to pace Poly.

In the second half, reserve Titan center Jean Kinn scored nine and Dunkle scored eight, along with Jan Evans' eight points.

The six-foot-two Dunkle took scoring honors with 19 points. Dunkle, a former Olympic player, also grabbed a game-high 10 rebounds.

Martin, Kinn, and Evans all scored 14 to balance the Titan scoring. Kinn took down seven boards and Martin five.

Beyer led Bronco scorers with 14 points, followed by Joan Uhl's 11 points.

The Cal Poly loss comes after three straight wins, including a one-point decision over Long Beach St. CP drops to 19-4 overall and is a perfect 8-0 in conference. The Broncos will have conference games this weekend when they travel to UC Santa Barbara Friday night and Cal Poly SLO Saturday night.

Fullerton bounced back after a 73-48 drubbing by UCLA last Thursday. CSUF is now 13-2 overall and 5-2 in its conference.

Cal State Fullerton will host the NCAA Regional playoffs March 10-12. The pairings will consist of eight large college teams and six small college teams. The 14 teams will be chosen out of region No. eight (California, Nevada, and Hawaii).

Chaffey swimmers make presence felt

Led by Mike Grabowski, swimmers from Chaffey Aquatics have served notice that they are ready to make their presence felt in the forthcoming Southern Pacific Association AAU, AAA and Junior Olympic meets.

At the AA meet held at Fulerton last weekend, Grabowski clearly established himself as one of the top swimmers in the 13-14 age group in Southern California. Grabowski of Upland captured first places in the 100 yard backstroke in 1:01.3 and the 200 back in 2:12.38. He also took second in the 400 yard Individual Medley in 4:41.58 as well as two fifth places and two sixth places in the other events.

David Neault, 13, captured the fourth place and the fifth in the 100 yard backstroke in 1:03.54 and the 200 yard backstroke in 2:19.02 respectively.

Several other Chaffey swimmers were also placed in the two-day meet: Seven-year-old Sheila Bellomo took fourth in the 50 yard freestyle in 33.2; 11-year-old Jeff Kostoff third in the 11-12 age group 500 freestyle in 5:34.0; Mary Pattison fifth in the 15-18 age group girls' 1650 freestyle in 18:58.8; Laura Ford sixth in the 15-18 girls' 200 backstroke in 2:26.57; Steve Mohnike seventh in the 15-18 boys' 200 freestyle in 1:51.92; and Steve Rimmer eighth in the 13-14 boys' 200 butterfly in 2:19.3.

Other Chaffey swimmers improving their personal bests at this meet were Susie Williams, who did a 5:42.6 in the 13-14 girls' 500 freestyle and 19:10.9 in the 1650 freestyle; Melina Mohnike, 5:40.18 in the 13-14 girls' 500 freestyle and 19:28.8 in the 1650 freestyle; Todd Majors, 5:32.38 in the 13-14 boys' 500 and 5:07.5 in the 400 IM; Curtis Jang, 5:47.6 in the 11-12 boys' 500 freestyle and Patty Belomo did 34.9 in the 11-12 girls' 50 backstroke.

Coach John Ries' novice swimmers have been trying to keep pace with his AAU members.

At the City of Commerce Valentine/Washington Invitational Meet, the Ahn sisters of Upland stole the show.

Alicia Ahn, 6, set a pool record when she left her opponents far behind in the 6-under girls' 25 yard breaststroke with a time of 24.5 seconds. Alicia also took three second places: the 25 freestyle, 25 butterfly and the 25 backstroke.

Carla Ahn, 13, broke the Commerce 13-14 girls' record in the 50 yard breaststroke with a time of 36.3 seconds.

The Keough family of Alta Loma also enjoyed a good day at Commerce as Susie captured the fifth place in the 9-10 girls' 50 breaststroke with a 42.8 time while brother Steve took several seconds off his 50 butterfly with a time of 33.1

Ram cagers visit valley

The Los Angeles Rams' basketball team will be playing the Montclair Eastern Little League managers and coaches on March 3, at the Montclair High main gymnasium.

Ron Jessie, John Capelletti, Cody Jones, Jim Youngeblood, Monte Jackson, Jac Reynolds, Fred Dryer, Greg Horton, and possibly James Harris will be among the Rams present to help raise funds for the Montclair Eastern Little League.

As an added feature autographs will be signed by the Rams' players at halftime.

The contest is scheduled for a 7 p.m. tip-off but the doors of the gym will open at 6 p.m. The cost of admission will range from $1.25 for those under 12 and under to $2 for those fans over 12.

Harness racing kicks off

LOS ALAMITOS — For the first time in six years, the Southern California Racing Assn. kicks off a season of harness racing tonight at Los Alamitos with a distinct possibility of a two-minute mile on the first program of the 58-night meeting.

Returning to California's only five-eights mile oval, the standardbreds will be taking dead aim on the single-season record of 18 magic miles and the full field of eight pacers that have accepted the conditions of the inaugural pace could easily produce the first two-minute mark of the season.

Topping the list for the inaugural pace, which has drawn a total of six pacers that have stopped the clock in two minutes or better, is Flying Tufts, a winner of five of his last seven starts. Others in the eight-horse field are Bret Power, Bligh Street, Fulla Spark, My Direct Knight, Oak Chip, Nechako Tar and Running Rein.

Flying Tufts, a seven-year-old son of Tuft, managed just one win in 12 starts last year but came into his own last December and has been one of the most consistent pacers on the West Coast thus far this year.

Flying Tufts has not been worse than second in his last eight races dating back to Dec. 13 and included in that period was a five-race winning streak that was just recently broken.

The Brian Pelling-driven sidewheeler began his winning streak on Dec. 29 at Bay Meadows with a 2.04 2/5 triumph and continued on through Feb. 2 — finally winning his fifth straight event at that northern California track with a 1.59 3/5 mark.

Although favoritism in the eight-horse field figures to fall to Flying Tufts, Blight Street also is expected to receive plenty of support.

Fulla Spark, a highly-regarded three-year-old last year, will make his third start of the year for Rick Kuebler and could very well set the pace. He turned in a 1.58 3/5 time last year but has finished a disappointing sixth and fifth in his two 1977 Bay Meadows appearances.

Vicki Easton paces Mt. Baldy Novice

Vicki Easton paced the Mt. Baldy Aquatics Novice Team by taking four first place awards in the six and under age group in a meet with the Bellflower Aquatics Club.

She won the 25 backstroke (38.6), fly (44.2), freestyle (33.3) and 100 individual medley (3:06.7).

Kathie Haase won three first place honors in the 7-8 group by winning the fly (17.1), freestyle (16.6) and individual medley (1:35.3). Other first place awards went to Shane Brooks in the freestyle (21.7) and individual medley (1:43.5) plus Brit Wheeler in the breast (25.3).

Jacki Easton and Terry Jackson took home top honors in the 9-10 group by winning the backstrokes in respective times of 40.2 and 49.3.

Marriane Telles won the back in the 11-12 group with a clocking of 38.9.

The team also competed in the Arcadia Turkey Invitational.

Patsy Haase took second place in the 50 breast (41.7) and sixth in the 100 freestyle (1:13.1) and her sister, Kathie, earned a second in the 100 free (1:17.0), second in the 25 fly (16.5) and third in the 25 free (15.2).

Jacki Easton took fifth in the 50 back (40.0) and Terrill Jones earned a sixth in the breast (32.6).

Local youngsters interested in joining the Mt. Baldy swimmers can obtain information by contacting Carolyn Easton (987-2886), Delores Weck (982-3430) or Coach Gary Troyer (626-8511, ext. 2206).

Cobras take six events

The Quad City Cobras took six first place trophies at an all-comers track meet held at UC Santa Barbara.

Michelle Cortez (12-13) and Donna Hollingworth (14-15) each won two events to set the pace. Cortez took top honors in the 100 (14.8) and discus (67-2) while Hollingworth won the discus (108-4) and javelin (102-4).

Other first place honors went to Janeene Vicker in the 440 (77.0) in the nine and under group while Kim Christianson won the 440 (70.4) in the 10-11 group.

Second place honors went to Vicker (200 meters, nine and under, 34.0), Betsy Barger (mile, 12-13, 5:39.8) and Cindy Vasquez (discus, 12-13, 65-4).

HERE COMES THE CHEVY NOVA 500 500 EXTRA NOVAS AND WE'VE GOT TO MOVE THEM OUT.

Your Chevy dealers are bringing in 500 extra Novas every week during February, and you'd better believe that to move them out, they're offering the kind of values you've been waiting for.

Nova is one of the best-selling Chevrolets in California, made for our kind of tough driving. Novas are so tough in fact, the Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department bought 222 of them last year for use as patrol cars.

With 500 extra Novas coming in every week to California, it stands to reason that your Chevy dealer is doing everything in his power to get you into a Nova.

He has Novas in the colors you want. Novas with the kind of equipment you want. Novas with the kind of deals you want.

Hurry. See your Chevrolet dealer now during the Chevy Nova 500 and see how much you can save on a new Chevy Nova. It's another way your Southern California Chevrolet Dealers are proving they want you for keeps.

A. J. TO RACE AT OMS MARCH 6 — Racing great A. J. Foyt, shown here at last fall's California 500, will be one of the drivers in the Datsun Twin 200 at OMS Sunday, March 6. The event consists of two 200-mile races, one for Indy cars and one for stock cars.

Big event set at OMS

Auto racing

The state flag of California will be waving over the Ontario Motor Speedway when the 1977 United States Auto Club Championship season begins March 6 — but a man from Texas will be very much in the limelight.

Anthony Joseph Foyt, seeking a seventh National Championship, should make his 250th Championship race start in the Datsun Twin 200's at OMS, first event on the 1977 Citicorp Cup Series.

No one in the history of USAC has ever started more Championship Series races than the man they call A.J. Texas — and no one has come close to matching his 56 Championship victories.

Foyt and his Gilmore Coyote should be among the 26 starters for the nationally-televised race over the 2½-mile OMS track in the curtain-raiser to what promises to be a super season for the USAC Champ cars.

The man from Houston also is expected to be one of several drivers to try double-duty in both ends of the Datsun program, chauffering his Gilmore Chevrolet in the 200-mile USAC Stock car race that will precede the open-wheel show.

Foyt isn't the only USAC front-runner taking dead aim at a 200 mile-an-hour qualifying lap at OMS. Almost all of the Champ car set are expected to be on hand for the first of four races before the Indianapolis 500.

Gordon Johncock, who outdueled Johnny Rutherford for the 1976 Citicorp Cup in the final race of the fall season, will be driving a new Patrick machine in the OMS show and Rutherford will be making his debut in a First National City Travelers Checks McLaren powered by a Cosworth engine.

There should be four Cosworth-powered cars making qualifying runs March 5. Al Unser, who campaigned the American Racing Wheels Parnelli with a Cosworth all last season, will have a new chassis to try out at Ontario — and is expected to have Danny Ongais as a driving partner. And Tom Sneva will unveil the Norton Spirit McLaren with a Cosworth in this show, too.

Janet Guthrie also will make her 1977 USAC debut in the Day Night/Payne Lightning that Roger McCluskey campaigned last season.

Bobby Unser will also be on hand in one of the new Lightnings purchased by the Fletcher Racing Team and Wally Dallenbach, a Patrick Racing teammate to Johncock who finished third in last year's Citicorp standings, also will be entered for the Ontario race — along with McClusky, who set fast time in tire tests at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway last fall.

Al Unser, who won at Phoenix last Nov. in the final '76 race, currently ranks third on the Championship victory standings with 31, only one behind Mario Andretti.

"We're expecting a pair of super races at Ontario," says Dick King, USAC president and director of competition. "Everyone is excited about the start of a new season and with the pressure relief valve limit raised from 75 to 80 inches, the qualifying speeds should go up.

"This also will be the first appearance of our Stock car division in California and Billie Saxon, our new Stock car supervisor, has had a good response not only from USAC drivers but from the West Coast Stock car drivers which should help increase the competition in this race."

The Championship race at Ontario also will mark the first race since 1975 that no pressure release valves will be used in the race itself — although a fuel restriction of 116 gallons will be effect.

Following the Datsun Twin 200's, the Championship cars next appearance will be March 27 at Phoenix International Raceway and the USAC Stockers won't make their second appearance until a 500-miler June 5 at Texas World Speedway.

B. Unser enters OMS event

Bobby Unser, who holds the all-time performance record as well as the one and four-lap speed marks at Ontario Motor Speedway is among the latest drivers to file an entry for the Datsun Twin 200 which is scheduled for Sunday, March 6 at the Big O.

The two-time Indy 500 winner, and only driver ever to win the California 500 twice, will have a brand new Lightning from the Fletcher Racing Team for the 200-mile championship car portion of the twin bill, and is expected to also compete in the 200-mile stock car race that will lead off the unique racing program on March 6.

Unser became the leading Indy car performer at Ontario following his 1974 California 500 victory and a second place finish in 1975 which he capped last September with an unprecedented second win. In 1972, driving a Dan Gurney-prepared Eagle, the 43-year-old veteran set the track's one and four-lap records of 201.965 and 201.374 mph respectively.

Only A.J. Foyt, who won two NASCAR Grand National stock car races and the California 500 for Indy cars has a better overall record at Ontario. However, Unser could match Foyt's achievement by winning both ends of the Datsun Twin 200.

Unser's new Lightning, which will be powered by an Offy engine, is one of seven new cars of its kind which are being built in the Southern California shops of Don Edmunds. It is patterned after the Hopkins Special introduced last season by Roger McCluskey.

Tickets for the Datsun Twin 200 are on sale now at the OMS Ticket Office and all Ticketron and Liberty outlets including Sears and Wallich Music City stores and by Dial-A-Ticket telephone, (213) 466-3553.

Montclair Central sets signup dates

The Montclair Central Little League will hold its signup sessions on Saturday, and again on March 5, for the 1977 season. Signups can be done between 10 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. at the Montclair High Cafeteria.

All youths between the ages of 8 to 15 are eligible to register. Those who played Little League last year are also required to register.

To complete the registration, players must be accompanied by a parent and present an offical county or state birth certificate. Hospital certificates will not be acctable.

The Montclair Central area is bounded by Huntington Dr. on the north, State Street on the south, Monte Vista Ave. on the eastand Mills Ave. on the west.

The league also needs Senior Division managers. Those interested or having questions about it may call Les Allen (624-7730), Larry Rhinehart (626-0948), Nick Calhoun (624-6165) or Paul Dayton (626-8964).

Poly to offer 'Greater Causes'

The drama department of Cal Poly will present the premiere performance of Steve Morris' one-act play, "Greater Causes," in the Studio Theater at 11 a.m. Thursday. Admission is free.

Morris, a Cal Poly graduate, appears in the production with Lucinda Burghess who recently appeared in another Morris play written expressly for her, "Confessions of Martha Rae," which Cal Poly presented last year. This is the first of his own plays in which Morris also performs.

"Greater Causes" is a gentle parody on activism, revolution in general and the IRA conflict in particular. The play tells of the challenge of a man and a woman who, for the time being, lay aside their armor to acknowledge retreat from rebellion.

Morris is the author of "Flight of the Eagle" which was an entry in the American College Theater Festival and for which he received a Meritorious Award in directing. The Cal Poly date for "Greater Causes" is in preparation for a tour of colleges and theaters where Burghess and Morris will perform this play and others.

Bernstein is honored

NEW YORK (AP) — Conductor Leonard Bernstein received the first annual Arnold Gingrich Memorial Award at the recent "Encore Awards" Luncheon of the Arts and Business Council of New York.

The award, a tribute to the late founding editor of Esquire Magazine, was given to Bernstein in recognition of "his exceptional contributions to the furthering of international understanding through music."

Record makes No. 1

Thelma Houston's "Don't Leave Me This Way" is the nation's number one rhythm and blues record according to Billboard Magazine.

Taken from the Motown album "Any Way You Like It," the single got a hot head start in the disco market and reached number one after a 15-week climb.

Miss Houston begins recording sessions this week for her next solo album and a duo album with Jerry Butler. She will also be putting together a stage show with the assistance of choreographer-dancer-actor Lester Wilson.

Miss Houston previously had hits "Save the Country" and "You've Been Doing Wrong For So Long" which earned her a Grammy nomination for best R&B female vocalist. She has also sung over the credits of the films "Norman, Is That You?" and "Bingo Long Traveling All-Stars and Motor Kings."

Flying low

Most birds fly below 3,000 feet when migrating, although ducks and some small perching birds have been sighted above 20,000 feet, says National Geographic.

Local singer plays in 'Gypsy'

Lori Annette Blackwell of La Verne is currently appearing as Dainty June in the San Bernardino Civic Light Opera production of "Gypsy." The musical hit plays at the California Theater of Perfoming Arts, San Bernardino, at 8:15 tonight through Saturday and at 2:15 p.m. Saturday.

Miss Blackwell has performed in previous CLO presentations, "Applause" and "Sugar" and in "Oliver," "Cinderella" and "Inherit the Wind" for Valley Community Theater. Her next appearance will be in the ballet troupe of the West End Opera presentation of "Aida."

Miss Blackwell is a member of the Young Americans and last summer toured the Far East with the group. She is a song leader at Bonita High School, a senior and a straight-A student. She plans to attend college after graduation, but has not yet chosen one. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don Blackwell.

Plummer set for mystery

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Christopher Plummer will join the cast of "The Disappearance," which is now being filmed in Montreal, Canada.

Others in the film include Donald Sutherland, David Hemings, David Warner, John Hurt and Barbara Parkins.

SPEBSQSA

Salute to Berlin

By JOSEPH H. FIRMAN

A near-capacity crowd in Spring Auditorium in Ontario Friday night applauded a merry, melodic and sometimes moving salute to composer Irving Berlin offered as the 24th annual show of the Pomona Valley chapter of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America. The show was repeated Saturday.

Buttressed by the colorful, well-disciplined Carousel Chorus, conducted with verve by Carl Walters, the show was a review of Berlin's life and times, well narrated by Jack Barton. It was also a rich survey of his memorable songs — "White Christmas," "Easter Parade," "Remember," "All by Myself," "Alexander's Ragtime Band," "A Pretty Girl Is Like a Melody," "Always," "The Girl on the Police Gazette" and other timeless Tin Pan Alley triumphs.

The chorus has grown and improved steadily over the years, and the performance displayed polished attack and release, nice modulation and fine balance. The spritely choreography by Pat Pilkington added zest and humor.

The local SPEBSQSA chapter paraded five excellent quartets — The Lapp-Landers (Papa Leroy Lapp and his three sons, Rich, Brian and Greg); The City Limits (Ken Tillmanns, Bob Hagelbarger, Dave Barry and Jack Barton); The Retreads (Jack Overin, John Broekhuizen, Dan Haines and Roland Richards); The Gallery of Sound (Don German, Bill Woolsey, Norris Felt and Terry Engels), and The Hilltoppers (Gene Thompson, George McConnell, Marv Green and Bill Fifer).

The two visiting quartets were outstanding — The Manhatters, dressed like hobos, who "never won a contest but never lost an audience," and The 139th Street Quartet, current Far Western District champions, a stylish and ebullient group that left little doubt about its claim to the title.

The Manhatters had the audience howling with "Sheik of Araby," "Bumpety Bump," "Bubbles" and "Never Wash Your Eye with an Eyecup." The champs tore things up with "The Bowery Boys," "Money Makes the World Go Round," "Take Her to Coney Isle and Give Her the Air," and the riotous and irreverent parody of the famous quartet from Verdi's "Rigoletto." The group concluded by bringing their kids on stage, a half-dozen moppet melody makers, and romping through a couple of numbers in which the youngsters acquitted themselves with strident honors.

Walters led the chorus through a hilarious presentation of "Rosie," and the program ended with all quartets joining the chorus in a stirring rendition of "God Bless America."

Latin America

Latin America is the term used for the twenty American countries which speak Romance languages. All these nations speak Spanish, except Brazil, which speaks Portuguese.

Alternative governing forms panel topic at League meet

"L.A. County: Love It or Leave It (or Change It)" will be the subject of a panel discussion and a luncheon talk Friday when the Los Angeles County League of Women Voters holds its 15th annual convention at Griswold's at Claremont.

The county convention will be combined with a League Day devoted to a county study item on Alternative forms of government.

A panel composed of Pat Russell, Los Angeles City Councilwoman; Robert G. White, mayor of Pasadena; and Harry Hufford, county chief administrative officer; will discuss the county form of government at 11:15 a.m. in the Hacienda-Siesta Rooms.

Assemblyman John Knox, author of the Knox Bill, which would make secession from a county more easily attainable, will be the luncheon speaker at 1:30 p.m.

The public is invited to attend by reservation — $1.75 for reservation only or $6 for luncheon, tax, tip, registration and convention kit. Reservations may be made by phoning convention chairman Linda Wolfe at 624-9145.

The meeting will begin with registrations starting at 9:30 a.m. and the call to order at 10 a.m.

Claremont Mayor Bertye Smith will welcome members and guests to the first league convention held in Claremont.

Judy Wright, Lissa Petersen, Joy Compton, and Liz Allen will serve as delegates from the Claremont League.

Luncheon will be served at 12:30 p.m. The program will be scheduled to end by 2:30 p.m.

COMPLETING PLANS — Coordinating plans for the first Los Angeles County League of Women Voters convention at Claremont Friday morning are, from left, Anne Calhoun, banquet director for Griswold's; Mrs. Judy Wright, president of the Claremont League; and Mrs. Marguerite Ernstene, president of the county League. A panel discussion and luncheon talk will center around a theme of reforming county government.

Bosses night dinner slated Thursday eve

Auxiliary sets two activities

A fund-raising party will be given by the members of the Doctors Hospital Auxilary, including a bake sale, Thursday in dining room of the hospital between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m.

Mrs. Paul Jones, ways and means chairman, will be in charge of the project, assisted by members of the auxiliary. Proceeds will go to the auxiliary Philanthropy Fund for future hospital gifts.

Mrs. Betty Wicker, president, and Mrs. Kathryn R. Wilson attended the California Hospital Association Volunteer Services Convention earlier this week at the Del Coronado Hotel in San Diego. Reports of the convention findings will be given to the auxiliary members at the meeting at 7:30 p.m. tonight.

If you're all wound up after a party, give yourself a chance to unwind in a warm tub for 15 minutes.

Wedding vows said in home

Newly wed Mr. and Mrs. Orion Blackwell have established a home in San Luis Obispo following their marriage in the home of the bride's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. J. Tour of Alta Loma.

The former Miss Rozann McConnell is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David B. McConnell of Montclair. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Erno of San Luis Obispo.

The couple spent two weeks in Hawaii.

Chapter meeting scheduled

Mrs. Janet Null of Garden Grove will demonstrate arts and crafts to be made for fund-raising projects when Claremont-Montclair Chapter of City of Hope meets Thursday.

The meeting will be held at 8 p.m., Thursday, at the Pines clubhouse, 9550 Fremont Ave., Montclair.

People in the area interested in the City of Hope are invited to attend the meeting.

Quadrettini casserole gets name from its ingredients

Progress Bulletin
Food
Pomona, California ■ Wednesday, February 23, 1977

Quadrettini is an intriguing Italian recipe that gets its name from use of four basic ingredients: meat, tomatoes, spinach and pasta. An exceptionally hearty and delicious dish, Quadrettini Casserole is a fine example of mixing regional Italian cuisines, including the butter favored by the northern Milanese cooks and the tomatoes used so frequently in southern Italian dishes.

This version of Quadrettini is outstanding not only for its superb flavor but for its economy. Made with ground beef, noodles, frozen chopped spinach and fresh or canned tomatoes, it provides generous portions for up to six persons at a reasonable cost.

Quadrettini is an impressive dish that's easy to do. And while it has a substantial list of ingredients, most are items we generally have on hand so there's no added expense or shopping chores. Service this saucy main dish with a green salad and crusty bread.

Hamburgers Parmigiana teams an American favorite with the Sicilian style of cooking or baking with Parmesan cheese, alla parmigiana. Easy on the budget, these ground beef patties made with ordinary ingredients like onion, bread crumbs, parsley, milk and cheeses, are livened by the addition of Tabasco pepper sauce. Service on spaghetti and top with a tomato sauce for a main dish with family appeal.

QUADRETTINI CASSEROLE

- ¼ cup butter or margarine
- ¼ cup salad or olive oil
- ½ cup finely chopped carrot
- ½ cup finely chopped onion
- 1 cup finely chopped celery
- 2 cloves garlic, crushed
- 1 pound ground beef chuck
- 1 can (6 ounces) tomato paste
- 3 cups chopped peeled fresh tomatoes, or canned tomatoes in puree
- 2 teaspoons salt
- 1½ teaspoons dried leaf oregano
- 1 teaspoon dried leaf basil
- ½ teaspoon dried leaf thyme
- ½ teaspoon Tabasco pepper sauce
- 2 cups uncooked regular or spinach noodles
- 1 package (10 ounces) frozen chopped spinach
- ½ cup grated Parmesan cheese

In a large saucepan melt butter and add oil. Add carrot, onion, celery and garlic; cook until tender. Add ground beef and cook, stirring with fork, until browned. Add tomato paste, tomatoes, salt, oregano, basil, thyme and Tabasco. Simmer uncovered for 1½ hours.

Cook noodles according to package directions; drain and rinse with cold water. Cook spinach and drain well. Add noodles and spinach to sauce. Turn into a 2-quart casserole, sprinkle with cheese and bake in a 350 degree oven for 20 minutes or until heated through.

YIELD: 4 to 6 servings.

HAMBURGERS PARMIGIANA

- 1½ pounds ground beef
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 2 tablespoons finely chopped onion
- 2 tablespoons finely chopped parsley
- ½ teaspoon Tabasco pepper sauce, divided
- ¼ cup milk
- ½ cup soft bread crumbs
- Flour
- 2 tablespoons salad oil
- 1 can (1 pound) meatless spaghetti sauce
- 8 slices Mozzarella cheese
- 8 ounces spaghetti, cooked according to package directions
- Grated Parmesan cheese

Break up meat with fork in mixing bowl. Sprinkle with salt, onion and parsley. Stir ¼ teaspoon of the Tabasco into milk; pour over bread crumbs and mash. Add to meat mixture; mix well. Shape into 8 patties; dust with flour. Heat oil in skillet. Add remaining teaspoon Tabsco to spaghetti sauce; pour into skillet. Simmer 15 minutes longer. Top each pattie with a thin slice of Mozzarella cheese. Cover; simmer 5 minutes longer. To serve, place spaghetti on serving platter; put meat patties on spaghetti and pour sauce over all. Serve with Parmesan cheese.

Yield: 4 servings.

Festive fare for St. Patrick's Day

Donegal dinner—emeralds and oranges toss slated

For sure St. Patrick's Day was meant for honoring a man of God, but leave it to the fun loving Irish to include a whole lot of merrymaking in the day. Plenty of open houses, parades, parties, flashy foil top hats and those funny looking green shilleleghs abound. But there's no wonder this is a holiday for hoopla. There are a staggering amount of Irish descendents in this nation — over 25 million, and on March 17 everyone's out for the celebration.

With so many Irish living in America the cuisine of the Emerald Isle has become part of the American tradition. Mention Irish cookery and corned beef and cabbage comes to mind. We've done this classic combination in a new and imaginative way, in a skillet, for speed and convenience, and added fresh grapefruit sections for a very different and exciting taste sensation.

The cabbage is shredded and stir-fried until crisp and tender along with cooked cubed potatoes, chopped onion, strips of cooked corned beef and other seasonings and liquid. Fresh grapefruit sections are added just before serving and heated through. The freshly sectioned grapefruit delivers a light, lively, citrusy lift to the quick, classy style recipe called Donegal Dinner.

St. Patrick's Day is not only for the wearin' of the green but for the eatin' too. For some healthful indulgence try a crispy green salad. We suggest Emeralds and Oranges Toss, brimming with sunshiny vitamin C from fresh citrus.

Again, freshly sectioned, sweet and juicy citrus, here oranges, improved a classic combination. The citrus, spinach, and sliced mushrooms are tossed with crumbled bacon and a snappy, well seasoned oil and vinegar dressing. Diced water chestnuts are added for their marvelous crunchy texture and clean, refreshing taste.

DONEGAL DINNER

2 tablespoons butter or margarine
½ cup chopped onion
½ cup beef bouillon
1 tablespoon prepared horseradish
1 teaspoon sugar
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
3 whole cloves
2 cooked potatoes, peeled and cubed
4 cups shredded cabbage
2 cups cooked corned beef, cut in strips
2 cups grapefruit sections

In large skillet melt butter over medium heat; add onion and cook until tender. Stir in beef bouillon, horseradish, sugar, salt, pepper and cloves. Bring to a boil, add potatoes, cabbage and corned beef. Cook 10 minutes, or until cabbage is crisp-tender. Remove whole cloves. Stir in grapefruit sections, and heat.

YIELD: Four servings.

EMERALDS AND ORANGES TOSS

1 package (10 oz.) fresh spinach, washed and drained
1 can (4 oz.) sliced mushrooms, drained
1 can (5 oz.) water chestnuts, drained and diced
4 oranges, sectioned
¼ cup salad oil
2 tablespoons vinegar
2 tablespoons orange juice
1 tablespoon soy sauce
¼ teaspoon Tabasco pepper sauce
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon dry mustard
¼ cup crumbled cooked bacon

Coarsely tear spinach into large salad bowl. Add drained mushrooms, diced water chestnuts and orange sections. Mix oil, vinegar, orange juice, soy sauce, Tabasco pepper sauce, salt and dry mustard. Toss with spinach mixture. Sprinkle crumbled bacon over salad.

YIELD: Six to eight servings.

QUICK LAMB CURRY

1 tablespoon butter or margarine
Medium onion, finely chopped
Small green apple, pared and cored and finely chopped
Large clove garlic, minced
¼ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons curry powder
⅛ teaspoon paprika
¼ teaspoon ground allspice
2 tablespoons flour
1 tablespoon tomato paste
1 can (10¾-oz.) condensed chicken broth, undiluted
2 cups cubed ½-inch cooked lamb, packed down

In a medium saucepan in the hot butter gently cook the onion and apple until softened. Stir in the garlic, salt, curry powder, paprika, allspice, flour and tomato paste. Gradually stir in the broth. Cook, stirring constantly, until thickened. Add the lamb and slowly heat. This is a rather thick mixture; it may be thinned with a little broth or water. Serve with roasted peanuts and chutney. Makes 4 generous servings.

ORANGE GOUDA

An improvisation of ours that was well-received!

10-ounce Gouda cheese, at room temperature
2 tablespoons orange-flavor liqueur
Grated orange rind

Cut a 3-inch round on top of the cheese; use a 3-inch cookie cutter if you like. Remove red covering only on top. Scoop out cheese into a medium bowl leaving about a ½-inch shell. With a sturdy fork, mash the cheese fine with the liqueur. Pack back into shell, leveling top; turn remaining cheese mixture into a small jar to use as a refill in the shell. Refrigerate overnight to allow flavors to blend, but bring to room temperature before serving and sprinkle top with grated orange rind.

Hawaiian chicken bake idea for heart month

February is "Heart Month," always a useful reminder that it's a good idea to build more meals around pultry and fish, two forms of protein that are low in cholesterol.

Poultry and fish offer an abundance of good eating.

Hawaiian Chicken Bake is a glamorous dish with a sweet and sour pineapple flavor and just a hint of sherry. The sauce is no problem, relying on honey and prepared yellow mustard.

Baked Stuffed Fish is prepared on a bed of fluffy mashed potatoes combined with broccoli, creating a nutritious and eye-appealing maindish. Preparation is simple using a package of chopped frozen broccoli and an envelope of Idaho mashed potato granules.

Serve either of these recipes with a tossed salad, peas, bread, a fruited gelatin, skim milk or coffee.

HAWAIIAN CHICKEN BAKE

1 frying chicken, cut up
2 tablespoons margarine
1 can (8-pz.) crushed pineapple, drained
¼ cup yellow mustard
¼ cup honey
¼ cup sherry
Paprika

Arrange chicken, skin side up, in shallow pan which has been greased with margarine or oil. Melt margarine; stir in pineapple, mustard, honey, and sherry. Spoon pineapple mixture over chicken and sprinkle with paprika. Bake at 400 degrees for 45 to 60 minutes, until tender. Makes 4 to 5 servings.

BAKED STUFFED FISH

1 envelope (5 servings) mashed potato granules
1 package (10oz.) frozen chopped broccoli, thawed
1½ pounds fillet of sole or flounder
Salt and pepper
2 tablespoons margarine
1 tablespoon lemon juice
Paprika

Prepare mashed potatoes following directions on package, except reduce water to 1¼ cups and increase salt to 1 teaspoon. Stir in broccoli. Spread in oiled 9-inch square pan. Season fish with salt and pepper; roll up, pinwheel style, and arrange on top of potatoes. Melt margarine; stir in lemon juice. Spoon over fish. Sprinkle with paprika. Bake at 350 degrees for about 20 minutes, until fish flakes easily when pierced with a fork. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

HAWAIIAN CHICKEN

For dessert

Savarin alla soronno set

"Come on over for dessert!" This hospitable invitation is being extended with greater frequency these days as spiraling food costs put the lavish dinner parties of years past on the shelf for the time being.

A gracious way to entertain, the dessert invitation allows a hostess to put her most creative spoon forward since she has only one course to concern her. When it comes to concoctions, it's hard to top Ital's "dolci".

This Savarin alla Soronno is a toothsome sweet to set before friends and family. It begins with a hot roll mix and goes on to become a fabulous dessert that's hard to resist. While the cake is still hot from the oven, it's saturated with Amaretto di Soronno, Italy's legendary liqueur. At serving time, the center is filled with whipped cream and strawberries. The result is mouthwatering and memorable.

If your dessert guests are partial to parfaits, they'll love the fabulous flavor combination of coffee, chocolate and Amaretto di Saronno in Harlequin Parfaits.

SAVARIN ALLA SARONNO

1 package (13¾ ounces) hot roll mix
½ cup lukewarm water
4 eggs
2 tablespoons sugar
Grated rind of 1 lemon
½ cup (1 stick) margarine or butter, softened
1¾ cups Amaretto di Saronno
1 cup (½ pint) heavy cream, whipped
1 pint strawberries, hulled and halved
1 navel orange, peeled and cut into thin slices

Remove yeast from hot roll mix and pour into a bowl. Stir in lukewarm water, until yeast is dissolved. Stir in eggs, sugar, lemon rind, butter or margarine, and flour in mix. Beat until mixture is very smooth and thick. Pour batter into a greased 9-inch bundt pan. Spread batter evenly in pan. Cover and let stand in a warm place until batter has raised to within 1 inch of the top of pan. Bake in a preheated moderate oven (350 degrees) for 30 to 35 minutes, or until richly browned. Unmold onto a large plate. Spoon Amaretto di Saronno over cake slowly, allowing it to be absorbed into the hot cake. Cool. When ready to serve, fill center with whipped cream and some of the strawberries. Garnish edge of cake with orange slices and remaining strawberries. Makes 1 9-inch ring.

HARLEQUIN PARFAITS

1 pint chocolate ice cream
Amaretto di Saronno
Toasted slivered almonds

In 4-6 parfait glasses, alternate spoonfuls of coffee ice cream and chocolate ice cream. Pour 2 tablespoons of Amaretto di Saronno in each parfait glass. Sprinkle with toasted slivered almonds. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Easy curried chicken rated 'superior' by culinary aces

Almost everybody in the world loves chicken and almost every country has a favorite way to prepare it.

Among the earliest of the "international recipes" to become a part of American cuisine were the curried dishes of India. British soldiers serving in India brought the exotic taste back to England. Early homemakers in New England and the South found it easy to serve curried foods in the New World as trading vessels frequently brought spices to the seaports of the east coast.

Spices have been a part of Indian cooking for several thousand years and chicken has been and continues to be a cherished meat. Curry seasoning adds a new interest to the natural flavor of chicken.

However, Indian cooking, like American, varies from region to region so there is no one "authentic" way to prepare it. And modern American cooks, like their forebears, are inclined to improvise — using ingredients at hand and often improving on the original recipe.

Today's nutrition-conscious homemakers, who know the value of chicken's high protein low-calorie content and are adventurous in planning their families' menus, will appreciate the two recipes below created by the National Broiler Council. They have all the excitement of international dining but are easily prepared with readily-available ingredients.

"Do-Ahead Chicken Curry" is so simple you can make it a family regular yet it is special enough for a buffet supper (just double the recipe). And because so much of the preparation is done the night before, there's little left to do at serving time but to heat and enjoy.

"Easy Curried Chicken Breasts" has all the essentials of true Indian curry — spices, yogurt, almonds and thickening without the use of flour or starch — yet it, too, is prepared with American ease. In the unlikely event that there are leftovers, it's just as good when re-heated and served another day.

Traditionally, chicken curried dishes are served with rice and chutney. An assortment of side dishes such as chopped nuts, raisins, coconut, bacon bits, crushed pineapple and slivers of lemon peel also enhance the flavor and add to the fun of trying a new dish that originated in a far-away land.

EASY CURRIED CHICKEN

1 broiler-fryer chicken cut in parts
4 tablespoons butter
2 cans (4 oz.) mushrooms, drained
¼ cup chopped onion
4 teaspoons curry powder
¼ teaspoon powdered ginger
2 cans (10½ oz.) cream of chicken soup
1 cup unflavored yogurt
½ cup toasted whole almonds

Melt butter in large skillet over medium-high heat. Brown chicken parts about 15 minutes. Remove and arrange in casserole dish. Add onions and mushrooms to remaining butter in skillet. Saute only until onions are clear, not brown. Remove excess fat. Add curry powder, ginger and cream of chicken soup to onions and mushrooms. Mix well and pour over chicken parts in casserole. Bake uncovered in preheated 350 degree F. for 1 hour. Remove chicken parts and mix in yogurt. Replace chicken and sprinkle with toasted almonds. Serve immediately on fluffy saffron or white rice. Side dishes of chutney, crystallized ginger, coconut, fried raisins and chopped green pepper may be served with this curry for added interest.

Makes: 4 to 6 servings.

DO-AHEAD CHICKEN CURRY

1 large broiler-fryer chicken
2 cups water
1 rib celery
1 teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons butter
½ cup chopped onion
½ cup chopped celery
½ cup grated or flaked coconut
1 apple, chopped (1¼ cups)
1 tablespoon curry powder
1 cup tomato juice
1 teaspoon Worchestershire sauce
2 tablespoons lime juice

In kettle or pressure cooker, cook chicken with water, celery rib and salt until done. Reserve 2 cups broth. Remove bones from chicken and dice chicken into bite-size pieces. In large skillet, melt butter over medium heat. Saute onion, chopped celery, coconut and apple until onion is clear. Add the 2 cups chicken broth and curry powder. Boil and stir until thick, about 5-7 minutes. Add tomato juice and chopped chicken. Pour into refrigerator container and chill overnight to allow blending of flavors. At serving time, return to skillet and add lime juice. Heat thoroughly and serve on hot fluffy rice with an assortment of any of the following condiments: chutney, crushed pineapple, bacon bits, minced meat, flaked coconut, sliced bananas, chopped peanuts.

Makes: 6 servings.

EASY CURRIED CHICKEN

'Skinny cheesecake' fresh diet approach

If your New Year's Resolution to lose a few pounds has already fallen through perhaps what you need is a "fresh" approach to that diet.

Most people will agree dieting isn't any fun, and the worst part of all is trying to give up all those foods you simply can't live without.

However, instead of giving up your favorite foods, why not try "de-calorizing" them instead. Often, it's not the food itself, but the way it's prepared that adds the unwanted calories.

For example, here's a "cheesecake" that has all the creamy rich flavor of the traditional, high-calorie version. But our recipe uses Neufchatel cheese which provided the same flavor and smoothness as cream cheese, but at one-third less calories. The usual sugar amount has been reduced and partially replaced with naturally sweet ruby red grapefruit. The calories add up to only 187 calories per serving as compared to about 450 calories for the traditional cheesecake.

Each 7-ounce grapefruit half contains only about 50 calories. But that's not all. A medium-sized ruby red grapefruit half provides about 70 per cent of the vitamin C recommended daily, and unlike white grapefruit, also contributes 10 per cent of the vitamin A needed each day.

SKINNY CHEESECAKE

4 ruby red grapefruit
1 envelope unflavored gelatin
¼ cup cold water
1 package (8 ounces) Neufchatel cheese, softened
1/3 cup sugar

Halve and juice 3 of the grapefruit to make 1¾ cups juice. Set aside. With spoon, scrape membrane out of shells; reserve shells. Peel and remove sections from remaining grapefruit. Reserve for garnish. In small saucepan, soften gelatin in cold water; then dissolve over low heat. Set aside. Put cheese, sugar and grapefruit juice in blender container. Whirl smooth. With motor on low, add dissolved gelatin. Blend 5 seconds. Pour mixture into reserved grapefruit shells. Chill until firm. Before serving, garnish with reserved grapefruit sections.

Makes 6 servings.

Good breakfast rated important for children

Do your children leave their lunches half eaten? Or pick at the food on their dinner plates? Or both? Maybe it's because they're not getting a good breakfast.

According to the California School Food Service Association, children who eat breakfast are more likely to have appetites for other meals as well. They also participate more readily in class and play and get sick less often than children who go without breakfast.

More than 200 schools and school districts in California participate in the National School Breakfast Program, a voluntary program available to all public and private nonprofit schools of high school level or under.

Under the program, schools are offered technical and financial assistance from the federal and state governments and, in turn, serve nourishing breakfasts based on nutrition standards established by the U.S. Department of Agriculture. And what is a nourishing breakfast? To qualify for the School Breakfast Program, it must include foods from three of the Four Food Groups — milk from the milk group, vegetable or fruit from the vegetable-fruit group and bread or cereal from the bread-cereal group.

Schools also are encouraged to serve foods from the protein-rich meat group such as eggs, meat, fish, poultry and peanut butter, as often as possible.

The meal pattern allows for maximum flexibility. Even a school that has limited, or no, facilities for food preparation and storage can serve good breakfasts. A menu of orange juice, cereal and milk in self-service cartons does not require much preparation. Nor does a breakfast of apple juice, a bran muffin and milk.

Schools without refrigeration can consider the possibilities of scheduling daily deliveries of milk and juice.

Schools with adequate facilities can provide even more variety in their breakfast menus. Grape juice, peanutbutter on toast and milk is a sure child-pleaser. Tomato juice, a biscuit with a sausage tucked inside and milk is another favorite. Any number of food combinations can provide a varied and nutritious breakfast.

School Breakfast Program meals are offered to all children at a reasonable price. Children from families with incomes at or below the local eligibility criteria pay reduced rates or none at all.

If your school is not a participant, discuss the School Breakfast Program with the principal, food service manager, teachers and district administrators. Enlist the aide of your PTA and community organizations to stimulate interest in the program.

And once the program is a reality in your school, give it your support by getting your own children involved and volunteering to assist where parental time might be needed.

Orange nut swirls add morning flair

Take the hum-drum out of your meals.

Orange Nut Swirls star as a beautiful way to excite sluggish morning appretites. Biscuits sparkling with the natural sweetness of orange juice, topped with a few crunch nuts — what could be more appealing?

Add a soft cooked or scrambled egg, milk and coffee or tea — and your morning menu is one that will give you a big jump on tasks ahead.

Breakfast ranks as a very important meal. Your body hasn't received any nourishment for perhaps ten hours. It needs a fresh supply to start all your daytime activity. When you don't eat breakfast it is harder to complete your morning work or even win that important game.

Break your night-long fasting (that's exactly what breakfast means) with breads and cereals. They supply carbohydrates that give you the energy you need for work, thought or play. Orange Nut Swirls make your bread and breakfast extraordinary.

ORANGE NUT SWIRLS
(10 to 11 rolls)

- ¾ cup sugar
- 1 tablespoon grated orange peel
- 1/3 cup orange juice
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 2 cups enriched flour
- 1 tablespoon baking powder
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ¼ cup shortening
- ½ to ¾ cup milk
- 1 tablespoon butter, melted
- ¼ cup chopped nuts

Thoroughly blend sugar and orange peel. Combine ½ cup orange, sugar, orange juice and butter in small saucepan. Bring to boil. Reduce heat and continue to cook 5 minutes; stirring occasionally. Pour into 9-inch round cake pan. Stir together flour, baking powder, salt and 2 tablespoons orange sugar. Cut in shortening until mixutre resembles coarse crumbs. Stir in enough milk to make soft dough. Turn on to lightly floured surface and knead gently 30 seconds. Roll out to 10x12-inch rectangle. Brush with melted butter. Combine remaining orange sugar and nuts; sprinkle over dough. Roll up, beginning with 10-inch side jelly-roll fashion. Cut into slices about 1-inch thick. Place cut side down in syrup, with sides just touching. Bake in preheated 400 degree oven 20 to 25 minutes. Invert and unmold immediately.

Crepes Ventura listed

Whether you call them crepes, palacsintas (Hungarian), blinis (Russian), or good old thin American pancakes, these simple but super, cooked circles-of-batter are all the rage in the United States. Crepes have reached this pinnacle for a good reason.

Preparation is quick and easy in your new electric crepe maker or your well used eight-inch skillet. Crepes freeze and thaw repidly, so for drop-in guests, a freezer full of crepes is a real boon to entertaining. Keep your canned goods cupboard and freezer well stocked with convenience foods; pull out a few frozen crepes and whip up a delicious entree. To freeze crepes: stack crepes (about a dozen to a stack) on heavy duty plastic wrap or aluminun foil, seal tightly and freeze. To thaw: keep in sealed package in refrigerator and thaw completely for easy separation.

Whichever meal of the day is your favorite, it's guaranteed there's a specail crepe that will be appropriate for one — breakfast, lunch or dinner. Crepes Ventura is one of the any-meal varieties. Serve them for brunch, lunch or a midnight supper. Add a salad, beverage and dessert and you have an easy complete menu. Crepes are easily adaptable to any favorite egg filling, but the delicate orange and avacado flavors in the filling of Crepes Ventura makes it extra special.

Reasonably priced are the key words for the bountiful crop of avacados and fresh California-Arizona oranges. These factors of low price and plentiful fruit make Crepes Ventura economical as well as attractive. Put it to the taste test soon!!

CREPES VENTURA

- ¾ cup sour cream
- 1 tablespoon fresh grated orange peel
- ¼ teaspoon seasoned salt
- 6 eggs, slightly beaten
- 2 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese
- 2 tablespoons milk
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 8 crepes (6 inch)
- 1 avacado, cut in 16 slices
- 2 to 3 California-Arizona oranges, peeled, sectioned or cut into half-cartwheels

To prepare topping, in small bowl, combine sour cream, orange peel and seasoned salt; set aside. Combine eggs, cheese, milk and pepper. In skillet, melt butter; add egg mixture. Cook over medium-low heat until eggs are set but still moist. Spoon cooked eggs down center of crepes. Top eggs on each crepe with one avocado slice and one or two orange sections. Roll up crepes; arrange seam-side-down on baking sheet. Bake at 400 degrees F. for 7 to 9 minutes until heated through. To serve, spoon topping over crepes. Garnish with remaining avocado slices and orange sections. Makes 4 servings.

Pineapple yogurt parfait

Sometimes the most elaborate looking dessert can be the easiest to do. An excellent recipe to illustrate this is to be found in these long stemmed parfait beauties. The crumbly mixture separating the layers of the elegant pineapple custard is melted butter mixed with vacuum packed wheat germ and chopped almonds. The pudding layer is based on a small can of crushed pineapple and tangy yogurt. This exceptionally fine dairy product is indeed a magnificent one. It comes in assorted flavors and colors to suit the whim of every palate.

PINEAPPLE YOGURT PARFAIT

- ½ cup sugar
- 1 teaspoon plain gelatin
- 1 can (8 oz.) crushed pineapple in juice
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- 2 eggs, separated
- ½ cup plain yogurt
- Crumb mixture

Combine ¼ cup sugar and gelatin. Add crushed pineapple, lemon juice and egg yolks. Cook, stirring over medium heat until mixture comes to boil. Remove from heat. Stir in yogurt. Chill until it begins to thicken. Whip egg whites until stiff, gradually beating in remaining ¼ cup sugar. Fold into cooled pineapple mixture. Spoon half the Crumb Mixture into 5 or 6 (6 oz.) parfait glasses. Spoon in half the pineapple layer. Repeat layers. Chill until set.

MAKES: 5 or 6 servings.

CRUMB MIXTURE: Combine 1/3 cup vacuum packed regular wheat germ with 2 tablespoons chopped roasted almonds and 2 tablespoons melted butter.

Culinary champ

Cooking ace does encore

When a man does a job well, he can expect to be asked to do it again . . . and again. For Chef Casey Sinkeldam, the once-every-four years trip to Frankfurt, Germany for the International Culinary Competition is becoming as much a part of his routine as taste-testing the daily pastry output at Kitchens of Sara Lee where he is product applications manager.

Sinkeldam is coach of the Kraft-sponsored 1976 United States Culinary Team, a job he also handled in 1972. His award record may have helped earn him the position, since he was a gold medal winner at the two previous competitions in 1968 and 1964.

In addition to providing moral support and experienced personal advice ("It is important to remember that a good chef is a leader, but he must not dictate."), Sinkeldam has assisted in recipe development and critiqueing of Competition entries and coordinated arrangements for getting the Team equipment and supplies to Chicago and loading them on the American Culinary Federation charter carrying the chefs to Frankfurt. The importance of his job is indicated by the size of the Team cargo — more than 16,000 pounds of food, utensils and culinary art pieces.

Sinkeldam began his training as a pastry chef in his native Holland, and came to the United States in 1957 to become a citizen and further his career. He worked as pastry chef for the Carillon Hotel, Miami, and moved into managing his own bakery. Later he accepted a position as pastry chef of the Four Seasons Restaurant in New York, then joined Sara Lee in Deerfield, Ill. His most recent accomplishment was the construction of a record-setting five-story Bicentennial cake unveiled in Philadelphia the Fourth of July.

Summarizing the philosophy behind his success, Sinkeldam says, "The best is not good enough. When a person is satisfied, he is finished."

Soft cookies should be stored in containers into which you place a quarter of an apple. Change the apple every other day or so to keep the cookies moist. For crisp cookies, a cookie tin with a tightly fitting cover is best.

Prune coconut drops full of texture, taste

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor

Those who enjoy a moist cookie full of texture and taste will take to prune coconut drops. These are easy to put together and gain an essential amount of moistness from the sweet flavored prunes. Grated lemon peel adds just the right balance of tartness for cookies that will please people of all ages.

PRUNE COCONUT DROPS

- ¾ cup sun sweetened pitted prunes
- 1 cup sifted all-purpose flour
- 1 teaspoon baking powder
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 1/3 cup shortening
- ¾ cup granulated sugar
- 1 large egg
- 2 teaspoons grated lemon peel
- 2 tablespoons milk
- ½ cup uncooked quick cooking oats
- ½ cup flaked coconut

Snip prunes into small pieces. Resift flour with baking powder and salt. Cream shortening, sugar, egg and lemon peel together well. Blend in flour mixture, mixing well. Add milk, then oats, coconut and prunes. Drop by slightly rounded tablespoonfuls onto greased baking sheets, allowing room for spreading. Bake above oven center at 350-degrees for about 15 minutes, until lightly browned. Remove to wire racks to cool, using a broad spatula. Makes 2 dozen cookies about two and three-four-inches diameter.

PRUNE COCONUT DROPS

Glazed beef short ribs

Begin with a hearty cut of beef like short ribs. Then dress it up with sauce, seasonings and a good looking garnish. You'll have an entree to satisfy big appetites, discriminating tastes and balanced budgets. The meaty short ribs featured here are cut from the ends of the ribs closest to the chuck section. For the valencia treatment, cook them in a tomato sauce freshened with orange juice. It gives the beef a slightly sweet and sour quality — juicy, succulent and full of flavor. Garnish with fresh orange wedges and accompany the ribs with crisp bread sticks and a spinach and bean sprout salad. This menu is as colorful as it is delicious and nourishing.

There are a number of extra flavorful bone in beef cuts that do so nicely with moist heat cooking advise the consumer information specialists from the California Beef Council. Besides short ribs, you'll find barbecue ribs (the long meaty rib bones), bone in chuck cuts, shank and oxtails. Experienced cooks will attest to the fact that during cooking the bone gives an extra measure of good beefy flavor. With today's top quality beef, you needn't cook these cuts for hours and hours either. Just pot roast or bake until they're tender and juicy — over cooking will only result in dry stringy meat. And, as with all kinds of beef, the larger, thicker pieces require longer cooking time than small thin cuts.

All fresh beef is inspected by Federal or State inspectors. Processing plants as well must meet rigid sanitary standards and are supervised to assure proper operating procedures. For the shoppers' convenience, many supermarkets sell fresh beef 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

GLAZED BEEF SHORT RIBS

- 8 (3 inch) lean beef short ribs, about 3 pounds
- 1½ cups tomato juice
- ¼ cup brown sugar, packed
- ¼ cup cider vinegar
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon celery seed
- 1 teaspoon worcestershire sauce
- ½ medium onion chopped
- 1 orange
- 2 tablespoons flour
- 3 tablespoons water

Trim excess fat from ribs. Make two vertical deep cuts into meat on each rib. Combine ribs with tomato juice, sugar, vinegar, salt, celery seed, worcestershire sauce and onion. Grate 2 teaspoons peel from orange. Squeeze to get juice. Add peel and juice to beef. Mix well. Cover and bring to boil. Reduce heat. Simmer 1 hour and 20 minutes or until beef is tender. Transfer ribs to platter. Cover to keep warm. Spoon off surface fat from sauce. Mix flour with water. Stir into sauce. Cook, stirring until it thickens. Pour over beef. Makes 4 servings.

Music, banking careers

Japanese song writer 'juggles'

TOKYO (AP) — At the headquarters of Japan's largest bank, in an office filled with 150 gray desks, sits a 32-year-old man who need not dream a Walter Mitty life. He leads one.

The securities department of the bank, located in the heart of Tokyo's bustling Otemachi financial district, might seem an unlikely place to find one of Japan's most successful singersong writers, studiously hunched over a sheath of company reports.

But Koji Kanda, better known by his show-business name of Kei Ogura, doesn't think so. Sipping coffee and wearing a conservative pin-stripe suit, Kanda said he didn't let his "musical hobby" interfere with his banking career.

This hobby, although he claims to spend only a few hours a month at it, has earned him considerably more than his regular salary at the bank, he said. Just how much more he declined to say.

What is known is that all of his nine record albums have been money makers. His latest LP release, "Roadside Grass," has already sold more than 310,000 albums at the equivalent of U.S. $8.50 each. A Tokyo record company executive said an average Japanese hit album sells about 100,000.

A song Kanda composed last year, recorded by another singer, swept major Japanese music awards and the single sold in the millions. Named after the Eurasian flower cyclamen, it greatly increased his following and established Kanda as a leading song writer here.

Despite numerous demands from his record company and his fans, Kanda refused to give a concert on stage or on television until last November. The publicly-owned NHK television network received 130,000 requests for the 3,500 seats, setting a new record.

Kanda is also publicity shy, he emphasized in his first interview in four years.

"Needless to say, no one recognizes me on the street," he noted.

Conservative banker that he is, Kanda prefers it this way.

His fulltime occupation, his plain looks, his wife and two children, prevented him from breaking into the music industry earlier, he said. After recording his first album, the record company refused to release his loyal-company - employe - with - family image would have proved highly unpopular with the young album-buying public, Kanda said.

Kanda received the news at the Northwestern University Business School, then located in Chicago, where his bank had sent him for a post graduate course. But just before leaving the United States in 1970, his producer wrote to say a movie company was using the songs for a new film and the record company changed its mind shortly thereafter.

Ever since, it's been easy riding for Kanda's two careers. As a graduate of Tokyo University, the Harvard-Yale of Japan, he is considered an "erito koh-su" (elite course) executive on an "eskarehtah" (escalator) toward corporate success.

Israelis fail to mind P's, Queues

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Queuing up in Israel is not a safe undertaking for the meek and mild. In fact, some observers wonder whether such a thing as an Israeli queue really exists.

It is difficult to pinpoint an Israeli queue's end, and its front is usually a pushing, yelling mass of humanity jammed against the counter.

Most bus stations and cinemas have waist-high steel railings designed to force people into forming a straight line. But railings are no obstacle for a real master of queue-jumping.

"The Israeli queue is designed like an upended pyramid," newspaperman Amnon Rubinstein has written. "It begins with two or three people jostling against a counter. More arrive and push in from the sides, squeezing the center — composed of polite, orderly citizens — outward and away from the counter where they become the forgotten reversed peak of the pyramid."

Manners, polite expressions of disapprobation, even fullblooded bellows of rage at queue-pushers, are of little avail.

"Every good queue-jumper comes with an excellent excuse," says one Israeli. "Either he's a soldier, and soldiers get first grab at everything. Or he's doubleparked. Or he has a bad leg. Or he's a regular and gets special treatment from the staff."

The situation has improved in recent years. Young Israelis seem less inclined to jump queues than their fathers and mothers.

The queue-jumping phenomenon is also a favorite example given by Israeli critics who complain that the quality of life here is deteriorating.

"It's nothing that one doesn't experience anywhere south or east of Europe," says one Israeli. "But we always liked to believe we had European culture."

An Israeli girl recalls a strange incident that occurred the first time she went abroad.

"I was standing alone at a bus stop in London, and I began to get an eerie feeling. I turned around and, to my astonishment, found that a long, silent queue had formed behind me. The line was so polite, so orderly, so absolutely dead-straight that it made me homesick for Israel."

Trichinosis still cause for concern; 285 cases listed

Progress Bulletin
Food
Pomona, California ■ Wednesday, February 23, 1977

By GAYNOR MADDOX

Take the case of the tired or indifferent butcher. It is closing time and he must clean up his shop. There are a few scraps of pork lying around. He scoops them up and throws them into his meat grinder which is almost full of scraps of beef to be ground for hamburger. So he turns it on and the hamburger turns out to be a combination of beef and pork. And that is the beginning of a dangerous story.

There were 285 cases of trichinosis reported last year — nearly 2.5 times greater than any of the past five years. Why? At the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta, Dr. Peter Schantz, epidemiologist in the Parasitic Disease Division, says:

"The reason probably is that more raw pork was mixed in with raw beef trimmings to sell as hamburger. As some pork is known to carry trichinosis unless thoroughly cooked, and as hamburger is cooked only a short time, the hamburgers may transmit trichinosis to those who eat them. There seem to have been several more proved cases of butchers grinding pork trimmings with beef. That might explain the greatest number of cases."

The Center for Disease Control alerted state health officials. In all the United States 34 cases of trichinosis involving pork in ground hamburger were found. Of these, 28 cases were in New Jersey.

The combining of pork scraps with beef scraps is illegal in most states. It is also an ethical violation of trust with those whose religion prohibits the eating of pork.

Dr. Schantz says: "New immigrants often bring with them a thorough trust of pork products free of trichinosis. In Portugal, Germany and Italy the public inspection system of pork products is so thorough that fear of trichinosis does not exist. They cook pork, and also eat it raw, as in the old country. In the United States these immigrants assume that we inspect pork the same way. Result: increase in cases of trichinosis in the United States. Also, of course, the careless cleaning of meat grinders which results in the unintentional addition of pork leftovers. The public needs to be more cautious about the hamburger it buys. Is it all-beef as advertised? Rely only on reputable butchers.

The meat trade fears all references to trichinosis. But they must face the fact that this threat to consumers is real. Admittedly it is not overwhelming. It can be managed by tougher meat inspection and more general information, not less, about the threat of trichinosis in some pork products.

At the National Live Stock and Meat Board in Chicago, David M. Stroud, president, says: "We do not deny the existence of trichinosis in some pork. (It has also been found in walrus, elk and bear). But the data shows that there is a probability of only .002 in grain-fed swine."

Dr. Schantz warns, "Cook all pork until all pink has vanished in the meat." The Live Stock and Meat Board advises the use of a meat thermometer when cooking pork roasts, for example, and cook until it registers 170 degrees Fahrenheit.

Royale round steak, savory chicken prepared with ease

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor

Cooking for two can be frustrating, especially if you're a little weak on math. Often it is necessary to convert a recipe designed for six, eight or more servings and this can be a bother.

Here are some recipes that call for basic ingredients in the quantities needed to help you with your shopping. Many of the items you already have stocked on your kitchen shelves. You can now make a royale round steak, savory chicken, calico macaroni or chili-style franks with ease. Serve with potatoes, rice or green salad or a fruit cup.

ROYALE ROUND STEAK

½ pound round steak (¾-inch thick)
2 tablespoons shortening
1 can (7¾ ounces) semi-condensed tomato royale soup
½ cup finely chopped onion
2 teaspoons bottled meat sauce
¼ teaspoon pepper
Cooked rice

Pound steak. Cut steak into serving-size pieces. In skillet brown steaks in shortening; pour off fat. Add remaining ingredients. Cover. Cook over low heat 1 hour 30 minutes or until done. Stir occasionally. Serve with rice. Makes 2 to 3 servings.

SAVORY CHICKEN

1 chicken breast (about 1 pound) split
¼ cup finely chopped onion
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 cans (7¾ ounces each) semi-condensed golden chicken and noodles soup
½ cup water
1/3 cup chopped turnip
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
1 cup biscuit mix
1/3 cup milk

In saucepan, brown chicken and cook onion in butter until tender. Add soup, water, turnip and parsley. Cover; cook over low heat 20 minutes. Stir occasionally. Meanwhile, combine biscuit mix and milk with fork. Drop by spoonfuls onto pieces of chicken. Cook uncovered 10 minutes. Cover; cook 10 minutes more.

CALICO MACARONI

2 slices bacon
2 frankfurters, sliced
¼ cup chopped onion
1 can (14¾ ounces) elbow macaroni and cheese
1 can (about 8 ounces) drained peas and carrots
1 tablespoon hot dog relish
⅛ teaspoon pepper

In saucepan, cook bacon until crisp; remove and crumble. Brown frankfurters and cook onion in drippings until tender. Stir in remaining ingredients except bacon. Heat, stir occasionally. Garnish with bacon. Makes about 3 cups, 2 servings.

CHILI-STYLE FRANKS

1 cup sliced frankfurters
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
2 cans (about 7¾ ounces) semi-condensed old-fashioned bean soup
2 tablespoons ketchup
½ teaspoon prepared mustard
½ teaspoon chili powder

In saucepan, brown frankfurters in butter. Stir in remaining ingredients. Heat; stir occasionally. Serve over rice or biscuits. Makes about 2 cups, 2 servings.

Try Czech potato salad a la blanka

By Cecily Brownstone
AP Food Editor

In Czechoslovakia cooks usally put pickles in their potato salads — or so we heard. Sure enough, when we looked into "The Czechoslovak Cookbook" by Joza Brizova Crown we found that both the recipes given for potato salad called for just that savory addition.

Then Blanka Kmoch, who now lives in New York but who received a degree at the Home Economy Institute in Kolin, Czechslovakia, confirmed the addition. Blanka gave us another good idea: "In America potato salads are usually served with ham or turkey on a cold buffet. In Czechoslovakia we serve them with hot dishes: fried fish fillets, roast chicken or breaded pork chops."

CZECH POTATO SALAD A LA BLANKA

4 pounds potatoes
2 medium carrots
Salt
2 cups mayonnaise
⅛ teaspoon white pepper
1 tablespoon sugar
3 tablespoons dill pickle liquid
3 tablespoons cider vinegar
2 tablespoons salad oil
½ cup finely diced dill pickle
½ cup finely diced onion
½ cup finely diced celery
¼ cup minced parsley
¼ pound finely diced cooked ham (generous 2/3rds cup)
2 hard-cooked eggs, finely chopped
½ cup cooked green peas

In a large saucepot bring 4 quarts water and 2 tablespoons salt to a boil; add the scrubbed, unpeeled potatoes and carrots. Boil, covered, until tender when pierced with a fork. Drain, remove skins from vegetables. Slice potatoes — there should be about 2 quarts. Dice carrots — there should be about ½ cup.

In a large bowl or refrigerator container stir together the mayonnaise, pepper, sugar, pickle liquid, vinegar, 3 tablespoons water and oil. Add potatoes, carrots, dill pickle, onion, celery, parsley, ham, eggs and peas. Toss thoroughly but lightly. Serve at room temperature or chill. Garnish with sliced hard-cooked egg and dill pickle slices.

Makes 12 servings.

Sausage salad pie favorite

Here's a new treatment to an already popular salad idea. Choose one of your favorite processed meats such as chicken or turkey loaf, for this tasty pie filling.

BAKED SAUSAGE SALAD PIE

FILLING
1 cup Mayonnaise
1 teaspoon Lemon Juice
⅛ cup Pecan Pieces
¾ cup Celery (¼" dice)
3 drops Tabasco
1 pound Chicken Loaf (diced ½")

TOPPING.
1 cup shredded sharp Cheddar Cheese
¾ cup of Crushed Potato Chips
1 pre-baked 9-inch pie shell

Blend filling ingredients thoroughly. Pour into pre-baked pie shell. Top with shredded Cheddar Cheese and crushed Potato Chips. Bake in 350 degree oven for 15 minutes. Serves 8.

Paris' Comedie Francaise open

PARIS (AP) — The refurbished theater of the Comedie Francaise has opened again after $13-million-worth of repairs and the event is being taken as an illustration of how French culture has become hamstrung between grandeur and poverty.

The 300-year-old company's Salle Richelieu has a computerized light system that can put lighting effects for a whole season's repertoire on a tape cassette. It also has individual audio boosters for hard-of-hearing spectators, fewer and wider seats, plush backstage rooms for actors awaiting cues and a closed-circuit television system that allows drinkers to filter Moliere through the comfort of the all-marble bar.

The details are a handful of the ones that critics of the government's cultural program use to assert that official culture in France is elitist, limited to Paris and obsessed with showoff tradition.

Almost symbolically, the theater administration had to announce after the opening performance of Alfred de Musset's Lorenzaccio that it could not put on two other plays it planned last fall because the new mechanical grandeur at the Salle Richelieu was a little more complicated than expected.

After a cost overrun of about $3 million at the Comedie Francaise, the $180-million construction of the Georges Pompidou cultural center, which many consider an architectural abomination, and increases in the budget of the Paris Opera, there seems to be a real current of opposition to what a Communist National Assembly delegate called a program of "waste and aberration."

The secretary of state for cultural affairs, Francoise Giroud, has treaded lightly around criticizing the big undertakings, but she has pointed out that nine out of ten Frenchmen have never been to a concert or to an opera, that the provinces need a better share of the budget, and that television is vastly underutilized for spreading culture.

So Mrs. Giroud can say: "Above all, France exists through its culture.

Horse marines remain mounted

CAMP PENDLETON, Calif. (AP) — Marines and horses from California worked pretty well together in the Mexican War in 1846 so it's not surprising that California has the last traces of mounted Marines.

But it's unlikely these Marine horsemen will ever see battle.

Their appearances, instead, consist of leading parades on Washington's Pennsylvania Avenue at inaugurals and in New Year's Day pageants.

The unit consists of five men and six horses, but only four of either appear in public at any one time. And one of the mounts may never appear — he can't take parade discipline.

"He goes bananas every time he hears band music," explains S. Sgt. Philip F. Drown, the leader of the Marine Corps Mounted Color Guard.

While the "Horse Marines" consist of but a handful of men, it was not so long ago mounted Marines played an active mulitary role at Camp Pendleton, biggest of the Marine bases.

That was in World War II, when Marines on horseback patrolled the 196-mile base perimeter, submachine guns at the ready.

It made sense in the pre-dune-buggy era. There were fewer problems traversing 4 miles of sandy Pacific coastline, fewer problems negotiating mountain terrain rising to 3,000 feet.

"We have a whole lot of pride," said Drown, who took command of the unit in April 1976 after a tour of duty overseas. "It makes you feel good when people applaud you, when they show you they're proud of you and the nation."

Naturally, the horses are coddled champions. All are ebony, including El Noche, a former racehorse.

The color guard is a fine sight going through its paces at the base stables. The horses are decked with white headbands, red and gold saddle blankets with Marine insignia, scarlet and gold leg wrappings.

The riders wear specially tailored uniforms of contrasting blue, set off by white gloves, belts and hats. Two riders carry the American and Marine Corps flags, two ride with unsheathed ceremonial swords.

The men are volunteers. Each holds a regular Marine job, anything from demolition expert to infantry instructor.

Tax funds are not involved. Instead, Marines around the world finance the horsemen through profits from post exchanges and recreation fees.

Horse Marines date back nearly to the founding of the nation. In 1804, mounted Marines trekked across 60 miles of African desert to reach Tripoli — but they were on camels.

However, Marines on horses fought the Seminole Indians in Florida in the 1830s, distinguished themselves in the Mexican War and even in campaigns early in this century in Nicaragua and Haiti.

Cookie dough

Career women, take note: Make one or two Christmas cookie doughs on one evening, cover and chill. Plan to bake them the next evening after removing the dough from the refrigerator about 15 minutes in advance of baking. That 15 minutes is necessary if the cookies are to be "worked" as in rolling and cutting.

Nabokov: dazzling American stylist

EDITOR'S NOTE — In a rare interview, novelist Vladimir Nabokov, nearing 78, speaks of politics, writing, his native Russia and his adopted America.

MONTREUX, Switzerland (AP) — Vladimir Nabokov, the dazzling stylist whom John Updike, among other critics, regards as the greatest living American writer, admits to being a kept man these past 25 years.

Since 1952, when he first studied her gum-chewing charms and "drip" and "goon"-strewn slang on bus rides to Ithaca, N.Y., the reclusive novelist has lived off "Lolita." The tantalizing, shocking, "disgustingly conventional" American adolescent whose sub-species he classified under the word "nymphet," adding a new erotic noun to the language, has made him more famous than the moth and two butterflies named for him as a world renowned lepidopterist.

"Between the age limits of 9 and 14," Nabokov's stricken hero, Humbert Humbert, describes the species, "there occur maidens who, to certain bewitched travelers twice or many times older than they, reveal their true nature which is not human, but nymphic this is, demoniac and these chosen creatures I propose to designate as 'nymphets.'"

Although the film was only a minor success and the musical by Alan J. Lerner went nowhere, Nabokov is pleased as any parent that his little girl has behaved so well in translation and paperback and hard cover and as a rapidly accepted noun herself — "Lolita: a sexually attractive young girl" Webster's — in the English language.

There have since been other novels, "Pale Fire" and "Ada," and a brilliant auto-biography, "Speak, Memory," to bolster his reputation as the most original English prose stylist since Joyce. As a Russian novelist he is measured with Pasternak whom he abhors and Solzhenitsyn whom he greatly admires, but "Lolita" has been faithful in her fabulous fashion.

"Lolita is famous, not I. I am an obscure, doubly obscure novelist with an unpronounceable name," says Nabokov, who will be 78 in April and has lived in lonely luxury in a deluxe hotel suite overlooking Lake Geneva since 1961, but with characteristic alliteration regards himself as "American as April in Arizona."

Proudly, with a patrician glare around the surrounding Alps at his film star neighbors, he proclaims that he is not a tax exile.

"I pay U.S. income taxes on every cent I earn at home and abroad," he says with patriotic ardor, admitting that at times the tax bill is "so high as to obscure the view from my easy chair." He has not yet computed what the new law reducing exemptions for Americans abroad will do to his royalty statements.

Driven out of Imperial Russia by the Bolsheviks and from Berlin and Paris by the Nazis, leaving behind a fortune, his beloved native language and, on each occasion, priceless butterfly collections, Nabokov loves America with an immigrant's fervor and forgiveness.

America, he says, "is the only country where I feel mentally and emotionally at home."

He broke the glacial silence of his Alpine retreat to rent a television set and watch the astronauts land on the moon.

"That gentle little minuet that despite their awkward suits the two men danced with such grace to the tune of lunar gravity was a lovely sight," he exulted. "It was also a moment when a flag means more to one than a flag usually means."

A half century ago in a debate at Cambridge University, Nabokov gave his last political speech, denouncing the Russian police state, to which he never has returned. But he lost the day to the "Soviet apologist on the Guardian."

His political outlook has "remained as bleak and changeless as an old gray rock. It is classical to the point of triteness. Freedom of speech, freedom of thought, freedom of art. The social or economic structure of the ideal state is of little concern to me. My desires are modest. Portraits of heads of government should not exceed postage stamp size. No torture and no executions. With the passing of years I grow less and less interested in Russia and more and more indifferent to the once-harrowing thought that my books would remain banned there as long as my contempt for the police state and political oppression prevented me from entertaining the vaguest though of return."

But he takes sly delight in the knowledge that "Lolita," which he himself translated into Russian, has been smuggled in for the decadence of the comrades.

Nabokov is content with the company of his books and Vera, his wife of 50 years, to whom all his novels are dedicated. It was Vera who rescued the manuscript of, "Lolita" from a backyard incinerator in faculty row at Cornell University, where he was a funny, flamboyant lecturer teaching a course in European fiction that the football players who flocked to it called "Dirty Lit."

After the novel's sucess, the professor resigned, choosing Switzerland for its "exquisite postal service, no bothersome demonstrations, also butterflies and fabulous sunsets."

The emigre novelist who wrote his first book "on the moth-eaten couch of a German boarding house" and has lived the semi-permanent life of an exile ever since, now prefers the transient glories of one of Europe's poshest hotels because "it simplifies postal matters, it eliminates the nuisance of private ownership and confirms me in my favorite habit, freedom."

Nabokov was born on a country estate 50 miles from St. Petersburg in 1899, the same year as Ernest Hemingway. His first novel in Russian, "Mashenka," was published in 1926, the same year as Hemingway's first novel, "The Sun Also Rises."

His father, a jurist, liberal politician and member of the first Russian parliament, was ruined by the revolution, went into exile in 1919 and was assassinated in Berlin "by fascist thugs while trying to shield his friend, Professor Milyukin."

Bilingual in English and Russian from his earliest infancy and adding French at 5, Nabokov was educated by tutors who taught him chess, boxing, tennis and encouraged his demon: butterfly hunting. His first published works were in English, a poem called "Remembrance," in the 1919 issue of the Trinity College, Cambridge, literary magazine, and in the same year a learned paper on Crimean butterflies.

Nine novels in Russian under the psuedonym V. Sirin came before, at 41, he came to America and resumed writing in English, which he found "exceedingly painful, like learning anew to handle things after losing seven or eight fingers in an explosion."

Nabokov became a lecturer on literature at Wellesley and took a part-time job as a lepidopterist at Harvard's Museum of Comparative Zoology. Meticulous about his English — he still hates to "speak off the Nabocuff"

Cure for 'acne' would salve teen-aged tears

EDITOR'S NOTE: Man has not found a cure for the common cold that plagues the populace, nor has he found a way to avert adolescent acne. But old remedies, new uses, are proving to be an effective pimple fighter for some.

By RICHARD SALTUS
AP Science Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — For about 80 per cent of adolescents, and many older people as well, a cure for acne would save tears and dollars.

There isn't one yet, but a new combination of drugs already in use is generating enthusiasm among some dermatologists. One Los Angeles skin specialist has dropped his other treatments and opened four acne clinics based entirely on the two-drug regimen.

The drugs are not new, but the tandum treatment seems to be more potent than the use of each separately. The two, Vitamin A acid and benzoyl hydroxide, can, according to Dr. Sidney Hurwitz of the Yale Medical School, "produce dramatic results in a relatively short period of time."

He said the one-two punch of the drugs penetrates deep into the skin, flushes out pores blocked with clumped skin cells and cuts down on bacteria that cause reddened, inflamed blemishes.

Hurwitz reported that in a test series of 404 cases, the drugs cleared 80 to 98 per cent of the acne problem in 88.1 per cent of the patients.

However, the professor-in-chief of the UCLA Division of Dermatology in the medical school says the treatment is "nothing startling." The Hurwitz study, Dr. Ron Reisner pointed out, may lack validity because it did not exclude the possibility of psychological factors.

Dr. Jack Kramer, who uses the new treatment at his four Acne Care Clinics, believes it will be used by nearly all dermatologists in the near future.

Kramer, who has practiced in Southern California for 20 years, claims the drug combination is "more than twice as effective" as treatments he used in the past.

But "nobody has a cure," said Reisner, although every so often a new method is used with great enthusiasm. "The history of the last 50 years of acne treatment is littered with 'cures' or 'controls,'" he said.

Kramer said he spends considerable time with each patient, telling him how the drugs work and emphasizing that the drugs must be rubbed on the skin religiously — one in the morning and the other at night.

Although the drugs are potent and may cause an allergic reaction, this has happened in less than 1 per cent of the cases, he said.

Because most patients see almost immediate improvement and are largely free of blemishes in a few weeks or months, the treatment is considerably cheaper than traditional therapy, according to Kramer.

A patient undergoing standard treatment may see the dermatologist twice a week for well over a year, spending as much as $1,500, he said.

The two-drug treatment requires a much smaller dose of antibiotics.

Use of the drugs has resulted in a new approach for Kramer.

"I tell patients they can eat chocolate or almost anything they want, because we have found that dietary restrictions are not very important in treating acne," he said. "I tell them not to use abrasive cleansers — which don't do much good anyway because they don't go deep enough."

Oldster recalls 'Little Egypt'

By WILLIAM BARNARD

CONCORD, Calif. (AP) — Julius C. Meyer, 94, sipped his Manhattan cocktail and said: "The present generation didn't invent entertaining sex-type shows.

"There's nothing new about such shows," Meyer, a small, droll man with a mischievous smile, added. "Why, 83 years ago I say Little Egypt, first of the celebrated belly dancers. It was at the great Columbian Exposition in 1893, a World's Fair along the shore of Lake Michigan in Chicago."

Mayer paused for another sip. "She was something," he said cheerfully.

"She wasn't beautiful but she was attractive and her costume was revealing. She had black hair and oriental features and she was at the Turkish Theater on the Midway. She was accompanied by high-pitched reed instruments. I remember she put her hands over her eyes, with her elbows extended outward.

"Then she wiggled and wiggled," continued Meyer. "She was not a great dancer but she was amusing. Fact is, I went back to see her three times. Little Egypt was famous, with writeups in newspapers across the country and she drew big crowds. She didn't take her clothes off as Sally Rand did later at the Chicago World's Fair in 1933, but still she did a sexy dance. Maybe I went back to see her four times."

For half a century, Meyer was with a leading department store in Chicago and was head of the auditing department when he retired.

After retirement, he moved to California and ran a restaurant named "Bob's" in Berkeley until a dozen years ago. Fourteen years ago his wife died and now Meyer lives at the San Marco Convalescent Hospital in Walnut Creek.

Meyer remembers the Columbian Exposition as "a magnificent fair, with the states of the union and countries around the world represented.

"Who could forget the California exhibit?" he said, smiling. "It was a big statue of a man on horseback, made of prunes."

The main ride, he remembers, was a tremendous ferris wheel, three times as large as present-day ferris wheels.

"Instead of seats, there were 30 cages for people to ride in. I didn't ride it because occasionally something went wrong and it would stop for an hour or longer while people waited in their cages.

"Do you remember George M. Cohan or do you just remember fellows like James Cagney and Joel Grey who imitated him?" asked Meyer, abruptly changing the subject.

Meyer put aside the finished Manhattan. "Well, here's how Cohan really sounded on 'I'm a Yankee Doodle Dandy'," he said, and in a surprisingly strong voice he sang it all the way through.

After that, Meyer sat down to dinner at the home of his daughter and son-in-law, Jeanne and Max Kahn, in Concord.

A glass of white wine was at his place, and someone came along and offered to fill his water glass.

"Never mind that," Meyer chuckled, waving the water away. "That's to wash with!"
